YOUNG BANKER ADMITS KILLING BRIDE IN HOME

Shooting Accident, Husband Says.

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pekin, Ill., March 12.—[Special.]—The mysterious slaying of Mrs. Betty Collison Crabb, a bride of five weeks, who was shot in her father-in-law's home in nearby Delavan on March 1, was declared solved tonight. Her husband, James W. Crabb, member of a wealthy Tazewell county banking family, confessed the shooting, according to Sherif Ralph C. Goar. The shooting, declared Crabb, was accidental, and occurred when his wife tried to take a pistol away from him.

Crabb's confession, which Sherif Goar described as complete, came as family lawyers and others reached the jail to liberate him on a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Henry J. Ingram of Peoria, an hour earlier. In view of his story, the lawyers withheld service of the writ. However, a preliminary hearing on the writ will be held here at 10 a. m. Monday.

Seized on Murder Warant.

Only nine hours before Crabb confessed he was seized on a murder warant during the progress of an inquest into his wife's death in Delavan. He was spirited away, locked up in jail here before his father, Willis Crabb, president of the Tazewell County National bank in Delavan, and family lawyers were even aware that he was gone.

Throughout his first hours in jail—and while his father and attorneys were desperately trying to find a judge to issue a writ—Crabb, who is 21 years old, refused to discuss the shooting. Time and again, however, he was questioned by Sherif Goar, State's Attorney Rayborn Russell, Investigator Richard Piper and P. T. Sullivan, head of the state bureau of investigation, who had been assigned to the case by Gov. Horner.

About 9 p. m. Crabb wilted, exclaiming, "I guess I'd better tell everything!" He then proceeded to tell how his young bride, only 19 years old, was fatally shot. Throughout his story he insisted the shooting was entirely accidental. His statement was made orally. A signed statement will be sought tomorrow.

Sherif Describes Confession.

Sherif Goar outlined Crabb's admissions to newspaper men, whom he summoned to the jail door. Several hundred men and women waited outside.

"Crabb made a complete confession," said the sherif. "He said he picked up his .45 caliber revolver from a table and carried it with him into the hall, where he had been quarreling with his father after returning home from a party with his bride."

The purpose of taking the gun into the hall, the sherif mentioned parenthetically, was to frighten his father. The same motive sent young Crabb into his bride's bedroom a few seconds later, Sherif Goar added.

Enters Wife's Bedroom.

"Crabb went into his wife's bedroom," the sherif continued. "She was sitting on the bed. She implored him to put the gun down. He was leaning over the foot of the bed, and he says that she leaned forward and grabbed the gun.

"The gun went off, the impact of the bullet in her right breast knocking her backward over the bed. As she gasped for breath, he jerked the pillow from her head to make her more comfortable. He then laid the pistol in the clothes closet in the same bedroom."

According to the sherif, young Crabb said he ran across the hall to the bedroom occupied by his father and his stepmother, Mrs. Catherine Crabb. The stepmother accompanied Crabb to the honeymooners' apartment and told him they had better summon Dr. H. W. Brink. About this time two policemen, who had been summoned by the elder Crabb to quell the son during their quarrel, entered the house. Dr. Brink arrived soon afterward.

Wipes Gun with Sheet.

"About this time," said Sherif Goar, "Crabb returned to the bedroom, took the gun from the closet, wiped it off with the bedsheet, and shoved it between the mattress and the bed, where I found it."

This explained the most puzzling circumstance of the shooting. It had been intimated that Mrs. Crabb had shot herself, but authorities could not

ROBINSON CRUSOE JR. MAROONED ON ISLE IN JACKSON PARK LAGOON

For an hour yesterday, Joseph Bellis, 13 years old, 7413 Chappel avenue, was a juvenile Robinson Crusoe. He was marooned on the island in the Jackson park lagoon. Joseph walked on the thin ice toward the island, the ice broke as he neared his goal, and after jumping to the island he was unable to return. A Jackson park coast guard crew, commanded by Boatswain Alfred Cristofferson, threw a line to him, directed him to lie down on more solid ice at another spot near the island, and pulled him safely across fifty feet of ice.

Johnny Gets Hero's Photo for 4 Box Tops and $5 Call

Atlantic City, N. J., March 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Marie J. Crittenden found out today that it was her son Johnny, 10 years old, who made that $5 telephone call to Chicago. Johnny sent four box tops to a Chicago breakfast food firm in return for which he was to get a ring and the picture of a heroic detective. The ring arrived, but not the picture, so Johnny got on the phone and delivered a five minute lecture to an executive of the company. Two days later the picture arrived.

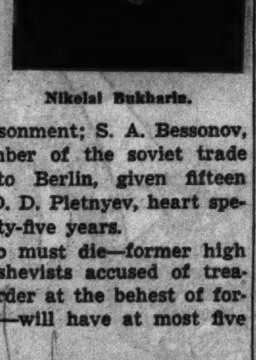
18 Sentenced to Death for Soviet Treason

MOSCOW, March 13 [Sunday].—(AP)—Eighteen of twenty-one defendants today were sentenced to death in Moscow's greatest treason trial.



Nikolai Bukharin.

Those whose lives were spared were: Christian Rakovsky, former ambassador to France, who was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment; S. A. Bessonov, former member of the soviet trade delegation to Berlin, given fifteen years, and D. D. Pletnyev, heart specialist, twenty-five years.

Those who must die—former high ranking bolshevists accused of treason and murder at the behest of foreign powers—will have at most five days to live.

Judges Will Weigh Appeals.

Three days will be given them for the judges to weigh their appeals and two more days must elapse before they are placed before the firing squad.

Among those sentenced to death was Nikolai Bukharin, chronicler of the red revolution who electrified the last session of the long trial with a spell-binding defense.

Among the other one-time high ranking soviet leaders to be shot are Genrikh G. Yagoda, former chief of the dreaded GPU [secret police]; Alexis I. Rykov, premier of the soviet union for ten years who succeeded Lenin, and N. N. Krestinsky, former first assistant foreign commissar.

Others Nervous, Depressed.

The other 17 sentenced to die took the verdict more calmly, although some were nervous and depressed. Bukharin gazed constantly at the floor.

The court found that one of the defendants, A. P. Rosengoltz, one time commissar of foreign trade, personally desired to assassinate Joseph Stalin.

Rosengoltz, the court ruled, sought as many interviews with Stalin as possible, in the hope of an opportunity to carry out his plan.

All the defendants pleaded guilty to charges which included plotting to dismember the soviet union, overthrow the régime, restore capitalism and murder Russian leaders.

Leon M. Trotsky, former bolshevik leader now living in exile in Mexico, was named as one of the instigators of the anti-soviet plotting.

LAWYER BRIEFS CASE IN ADVERTISMENT FOR A MAID OF ALL WORK

Rice Lake, Wis., March 12.—(AP)—A Rice Lake attorney, seeking a maid-of-all-work in his home, ran the following newspaper advertisment:

Maid wanted—Seven children, lots of noise, nothing to eat. Husband an alderman, another business on the side, late for lunch six times a week. Job offers splendid opportunity for one wishing experience in managing private restaurant, small hotel, or day nursery.

PLANES 'ATTACK' FLORIDA 4½ HRS. OUT OF MICHIGAN

Tampa, Fla., March 12.—(AP)—Eight of the army's flying fortresses led a friendly air attack on Tampa from Michigan today to demonstrate how the army can cover the nation in an emergency.

The big ships roared into Drew field at about 250 miles an hour, with squadrons of smaller bombers and buzzing little pursuit ships in their wake.

They came here from Selfridge field, Michigan, in 4½ hours, flying five minutes apart. After landing 109 troops they left for Langley field, Va., for lunch.

"Just a routine little errand," an officer said. "This is not a maneuver. We're just ferrying men here for the ground crews of other ships. The practice flying will start Wednesday."

Zoo Head on Anxious Seat; Penguin May Be Hatched

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[U. P.]—The first penguin ever hatched in an American zoo cracked its shell today at the National Zoölogical park. Dr. William N. Mann, director of the zoo, said the hatching, if successful, would make zoölogical history. He said it would not be certain whether the blessed penguin event is a success until the baby penguin has entirely shed its shell.

Grandpa, 60, Borrows Baby and Wins Diaper Contest

Miami Beach, Fla., March 12.—[U. P.]—David Finkel, spry, 60 years old, a grandfather, borrowed a baby today and defeated another man and four women in the finals of a diaper changing contest. His time was 21 seconds.

Finds Bullet Shaped Egg; Views It as Sure War Sign

Danville, Ill., March 12.—(AP)—Farmer Walter Poggendorf emerged from his henhouse today, blinking in astonishment, showed his neighbors an egg shaped much like an oversize .45 caliber bullet and exclaimed: "I tell you, it's a sure sign of war."

HITLER PROCLAIMS ANNEXATION AND DEFIES WORLD TO TRY TO STOP IT

Nazi Coup Approved by Italy's Fascist Grand Council.

ROME, March 13 [Sunday.]—(AP)—Italy's fascist grand council gave its approval today to Adolf Hitler's Nazification of Austria.

The council's approval was expressed in a statement issued after it had received Hitler's promise that German expansion to the south would stop at the Italian frontier. German troops today reached Brenner pass, strategic gateway between Austria and Italy.

In a personal letter to Premier Mussolini Hitler embodied a similar guarantee to France, but gave no assurances he would respect frontiers of other countries.

Hitler's letter, which he sent to Mussolini by special emissary, was read to the council by Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister.

French Proposal Rejected.

The foreign minister informed the council that Italy had rejected a French proposal for concerted action in the Austrian situation. Such action, it was said, "would have succeeded only in rendering more difficult the international situation."

"The Italian government has, for obvious reasons, determined not to interfere in any way in Austrian internal affairs," the council's statement said. "The grand council emphasizes especially that the plebiscite [which was canceled yesterday] was ordered without previous notice by Schuschnigg [the deposed Austrian chancellor].

"Not only was it not suggested, but not even approved by the Italian government, which had no knowledge of it, neither with regard to method nor substance.

"The grand council considers what has happened in Austria the result of a pre-existing situation and an open expression of the sentiments and will of the Austrian people, confirmed in an unequivocal manner by the striking public manifestation with which the events have been greeted."

Schuschnigg Is Criticized.

Since Austria, Hungary, and Italy were bound under the Rome protocols to keep one another informed on matters of vital, common importance, Italian political circles said Schuschnigg's failure to notify Mussolini of his recent talk with Hitler or of his decision to hold a plebiscite.

[While the British cabinet decided yesterday that Hitler's seizure of Austria was not a cause for war, despatches from London said the government was closely watching Italy's reaction. In the eyes of the British, Italy cannot look easily upon Germany's expansion and in the long run must be the real victim of it.]

Hitler's letter to Mussolini, which was read to newspaper men, contained the following explanation of Germany's actions:

"There is not involved in this act [the German ultimatum to Austria] anything but legitimate national defense, therefore action which any man of character in my place would discharge in the same way.

Says Duce Would Do Same.

"Also, your excellency would not have acted otherwise if Italian destiny were involved. I, as Fuehrer and a National Socialist, can not do otherwise.

"In this critical hour for Italy, I have shown you the firmness of my intentions. Do not doubt that also in the future there will be no cause for change in this respect.

"Whatever may be the consequences in future events, I have traced clear the German frontier with regard to France. Now I draw it equally clear with regard to Italy. It is Brenner. This decision will never be jeopardized or attacked."

Hitler's letter said that "events have burst upon us unexpectedly" because he had had no inkling that Schuschnigg would order the plebiscite.

Austria Pledges Friendship.

Ciano received a telegram from the new Austrian government assuring a determination to continue "the intimate relations so happily existing"

When German troops arrived at Brenner pass, many Italians were apprehensive, even though German and Italian commanders exchanged gestures of friendship at the border.

'ADOLF' POPULAR NAME NOW FOR VIENNA BABIES

VIENNA, March 12.—(AP)—The change from the Schuschnigg authoritarian régime to a Nazi authoritarian government today vitally affected the lives of every one in Austria.

These were some of the outward appearances:

Delivery boys who yesterday wore Fatherland front emblems and greeted you with "gruess gott!" today stamped into your house in heavy boots and shouted "heil Hitler!" on entering and leaving.

A policeman yesterday smiled at you and passed the time of day. Today he didn't. Perhaps he thought you were not a Nazi. Maybe he felt an inward blush because you wondered that he could change his colors so quickly.

Prices Go Up a Little.

Prices went up a little—probably a groschen or two and perhaps only temporarily because the storekeepers were all out last night celebrating and could not buy their vegetables in the public markets in the usual way.

Americans in Vienna had plenty of callers. Jews sought advice about fleeing, if possible. Others wanted news. All asked: What's going to happen?

Three babies born in one Vienna hospital today were named Adolf.

Older boys hastened to join the Hitler Youth organization, although previously they had pledged allegiance to the Fatherland Front jungvolk.

Girls were busy making Hitler girl uniforms.

Swastika Flags Sold Out.

You cannot buy swastika flags in Austria. They are all sold out. Flag factories added hundreds of women to their stafs. You cannot buy some kinds of cloth. It was all bought yesterday to make Nazi uniforms.

Apartment houses were almost without janitor service. The men were out parading.

Saturday is Austria's traditional rug-beating day—it is allowed by law only on Fridays and Saturdays—but there was little of that today. People were too sleepy from all-night celebrations.

Jews were almost beside themselves with anguished worry. One, a 55-year old official of a theatrical casting bureau, was told he could remain on his job only if he would allow an S. A. [Nazi] guard to be always in his office. He is jobless today without prospect of another job. That example can be duplicated hundreds of times.

Outdo Even German Nazis.

Few persons who wanted to sleep could do so. The narrow Vienna streets reverberated with "Heil, Hitler!" cries. Residents of Berlin here said there were many more—and more vociferous—Hitler salutes than in Germany.

Non-Nazis, even Jews, found it "expedient" to wear swastika emblems—particularly when dealing with such officials as government telegraph functionaries.

Some of Vienna's age-old coffee houses were silent and deserted for the first time in years—Jewish patronage almost nil.

The fate of the schilling [present value, 18.9 cents] caused no little worry. Germany owes 60,000,000 schillings for imports and may soon owe much more. Austria thus may be forced to sell to countries with little foreign exchange.

Wildly Acclaimed as He Travels Into Seized State.

VIENNA, March 12.—(AP)—Adolph Hitler joined Germany and Austria tonight and defied the world to part them.

He proclaimed this new pan-German union from a balcony in the city of Linz to cheering thousands.

This union joins a Germany of 66,030,000 population with an Austria of 6,372,000 and adds 32,369 square miles to the German reich.

Hitler spent the night at Linz and Vienna was prepared for his triumphal entry tomorrow. There were wild demonstrations tonight throughout Austria, especially in Graz, long a Nazi stronghold.

Troops Sweep Through Austria.

As Hitler spoke in Linz, goose stepping Nazi troops, rumbling tanks, and planes swept through Austria to remake the map of Europe and rouse new fears of European war. The troops came by land and by air.

"Any other attempt to part this people will be in vain," the triumphant Fuehrer told wildly cheering throngs massed to welcome his return to his native land and fulfillment of the long dreamed union of Germany and her southern neighbor.

Declaring it his "divine mission" to return Austria to the German fatherland, bare headed Hitler, in an army overcoat, told the crowd: "Your presence is testimony it is not the wish of only a few to found this pan-Germany, but it is the will of the German people itself.

St. Germain Treaty Scrapped.

"It would be fine also if some of our well known international seekers after truth could not only see the truth here but also recognize it."

The new Nazi chancellor of Austria, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, greeted Hitler by proclaiming annulment of the treaty of St. Germain, which forbade a union of Germany and Austria.

[The peace treaty of St. Germain was signed on Sept. 10, 1919, in St. Germain, near Paris, by representatives of the Austrian republic and of 25 allied and associated powers.]

Diplomatic circles expressed belief that the presence of so many German troops in Austria was not intended primarily to intimidate Austria so much as Czechoslovakia.

Troops Reach Brenner Pass.

They pointed out that the German troops, encircling half of Czechoslovakia, form a powerful threat of a pincerlike action to that country, over whose 3,250,000 Germans Hitler has expressed himself guardian.

Hitler's armed forces penetrated into every part of Austria, bringing German troops face to face with Italy at the Brenner pass.

All Austria went Nazi. Federal, provincial, and municipal governments were taken over by Nazis.

Austrian troops not only stood by, but also fraternized with the invading legions.

A wave of arrests struck fear to thousands of Austrians—Catholics, Jews, Socialists, and former Austrian government chieftains alike.

Frontiers Are Closed.

Austria's frontiers were closed to prevent a mass exodus of those who fear Nazlism.

The Nazi government forbade the sending of money outside the country, under heavy penalties.

Kurt Schuschnigg, the chancellor Hitler forced out of office, was imprisoned in Belvedere palace, surrounded by 2,000 storm-troopers and 50 policemen. Nazis said the guards were for "his own protection." His young son was taken from the palace to discourage any attempt by Schuschnigg to escape.

From the moment der fuehrer's car rumbled across the Inn river bridge near Braunau, his birthplace, scenes of wild enthusiasm greeted the conqueror.

Shower Flowers Into Auto.

Peasants, workers, school children, and Austrian Nazis lined the streets and highways. Children showered flowers into his auto. Old women wept as he passed, hailing him as "the liberator of Austria." Women knelt in prayer after he passed.

Crowds waiting in Linz, the upper Austrian capital, were worked into a frenzy as his two mile long caravan neared the city. Six German tanks and lines of German troops moved into Linz as the citizenry roared its approval.

Hitler's eventual appearance brought new outbursts.

"I do not know what day you will i ‹ called," he told them referring to Schuschnigg's postponed plebiscite on support of the government.

"I hope it is not far off. Then you will have to stand by your conviction. I believe I can be proud of my fatherland before the entire German people. It must prove to the entire world any other attempt to part this people will be in vain."

Crowds Hoarse from Shouting.

Hitler found the Linz crowds hoarse from hours of shouting in the flag-draped streets. The new Austrian cabinet welcomed him, as did boyhood friends, many of whom had not seen Hitler for many years.

Today saw Hitler's first step on Austrian soil for about twenty-five years, as far as is known publicly. He left Austria in 1912 to live in Munich and lost his Austrian citizenship when he joined the Bavarian army in 1914.

The Nazis took over all government posts. In cities they assumed control of telegraph, telephone, and radio communications. Strict censorship was imposed. Newspapers immediately felt the Nazi fist.

Fatherland Front Dissolved.

The Fatherland front, formerly Austria's only legal political party and the organ which attempted to dam the Nazi stream, was dissolved.

Thousands of the "Austrian legion," [Nazis who fled to Germany after their unsuccessful putsch in July, 1934] streamed back across the border to take part in the victory.

Vienna factories operated early in the day under guard of Nazi storm troopers armed with cat-o-nine-tails, with which they flogged socialist workers.

Among Austrians arrested were numerous prominent citizens of Salzburg, who were placed in "protective custody" by the new régime. They included a Catholic newspaper editor, two Jewish merchants, the president of the Salzburg labor bureau, and several police officials.

The province's former governor, Franz Rehrl, was led away still protesting in his nightgown.

Swastika Flies Over Palace.

Vienna's streets bore eloquent testimony of the turbulent crisis and its effects.

Over the former palace of Emperor Franz Joseph waved the swastika.

Only shattered windows remained where portraits of former Chancellor Schuschnigg once were displayed.

Pictures of Engelbert Dollfuss, the chancellor assassinated by Nazis on July 25, 1934, were defaced on walls they formerly adorned.

Others who appeared loath to show swastikas on their homes were ordered to at once.

End Export Restriction.

A several months' old decree cutting Austrian exports to Germany by 40 per cent, to allow for ultimate equilization of German debts of 60,000,000 schillings [$11,340,000] to Austria, was suspended.

This was taken as an indication that Austria was being drawn into Germany's four year economic self-sufficiency plan.

Tourists arriving in Vienna from Budapest said no foreigners were being permitted to cross the border into Hungary. No reason was given for the action, but the political situation in Hungary was intensified when Nazis there announced they would hold a mass meeting to discuss the Hungarian revisionist program. The tourists said police were on duty in great numbers in Hungary. They said there was a rumor in Budapest that Premier Koloman Daranyi had left the country for an unannounced destination.

CHICAGOAN, 3 BROTHERS REUNITED.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 12.—[U. P.]—The four Peace brothers, Richard from Chicago, Ernest and Sidney from London, and William from Australia, were reunited in Victoria today for the first time in eighteen years. The quartet was completed with the arrival of William, the eldest, aboard the Niagara today.

Visualizing Swift Moves After Austrian Coup

This map of Austria shows the principal events of the day following Reichsfuehrer Hitler's bloodless conquest of that country and addition of it to Germany. Dotted line shows route of Hitler's triumphal journey. In a speech in Linz last night the Nazi dictator defied the world to part the united Germanic lands.

SEES HITLER'S COUP IN AUSTRIA AS AN AID IN EASING WAR PERIL

Germany's annexation of Austria should lessen rather than heighten the danger of a general European war, because the best hope of peace is to ease Germany's feeling of injustice arising from the Versailles treaty.

This opinion was expressed yesterday before the Chicago council of foreign relations, meeting in the Palmer house, by Maj. James S. Barnes, British soldier, journalist, and diplomat. He said:

"The Austrian 'anschluss' [union] should help to satisfy Germany. The situation has been stabilized. I don't think there is a present danger of a war along the lines of Fascism vs. Democracy."

Major Barnes defended the policy of British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain as a realistic attempt to deflate the emotionalism which might drive Germany to war against France and Great Britain.

Three Armed Bandits Get $400 in Holdup of Tavern

Ignoring a few dollars in the cash register, three armed bandits yesterday took $400 from a drawer under the bar of a tavern at 823 Adams street. John Panoffa, the owner, who was in the basement tapping a barrel of beer, shot at them through a grating in the sidewalk as they fled in an automobile driven by an accomplice.

Vienna's Dollfuss Square Is Renamed Hitler Square

VIENNA, March 12.—[U. P.]—Dollfuss square in the center of the city was re-named Adolf Hitler square today. Provisional signs bearing the new name were put up at noon.

CZECHS ASSURED NAZIS HAVE NO HOSTILE MOTIVES

Hitler Seeks to Preserve Peace, Berlin Says.

PRAGUE, March 12.—[U. P.]—Germany today told Czechoslovakia through diplomatic channels that she entertains no hostile intentions toward the little republic.

In connection with the Austrian crisis, observers emphasized the difference between the positions of Czechoslovakia and Austria. Unlike Austria, Czechoslovakia has military alliances with two great powers, France and the soviet union.

Poise Is Preserved.

Responsible quarters here preserved their poise. Czechoslovakia was said to be prepared to continue to adapt her policy to that of western powers, especially France.

The cabinet, in extraordinary session, conferred until near dawn.

Before the session ended, the government reasserted that any attempt by Germany to encroach upon Czechoslovakia's borders would be met with armed resistance.

Frontiers Are Armed.

The Czechoslovakian general staf denied that the army was being mobilized, but admitted that the customs guards were being reinforced to prevent illegal infiltration of fugitives. Strict control of the frontiers was ordered to prevent arms smuggling.

HITLER'S GRAB OF AUSTRIA MAKES VATICAN WORRY

VATICAN CITY, March 12.—(AP)—The Vatican, long embroiled with Naziism, watched its advance into Catholic Austria today with deep concern. Although no official statement was issued, a brief comment in the Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, reflected the anxiety.

"No one in the world," it said, "can think the Osservatore Romano is indifferent to events so grave for the life of a people so near both geographically and spiritually.

"The brevity of time prevents us from dealing with the situation but we intend to return to it at the earliest possible moment."

Herbert Hoover Is Guest of President of Poland

WARSAW, Poland, March 12.—[U. P.]—Former President Herbert Hoover was entertained at lunch today by President Ignace Mosciki. During the morning Hoover visited Premier Gen. Felicjan Slawoj-Skladkowski and other high government officials. Later he left for Latvia.

'A DIVINE MISSION GUIDED MY COUP,' HITLER DECLARES

Insists New Pan-Germany Is Willed by People.

VIENNA, March 12.—(AP)—The complete text of Adolf Hitler's speech today at Linz, upper Austria, follows:

"I thank all of you who are gathered here and who give, by your presence, testimony that it is not the wish of only a few to found this new pan-Germany, but that it is the will of the German people itself.

"It would be fine also if some of our well known international seekers after truth could not only see the truth here but also recognize it.

"When I once departed from this city I had the same feeling and conviction that fills me today.

Imagines His Feelings.

"Picture my feeling of emotion, after such long years of faith, to see it, my faith, brought to fulfilment in rapid shouts of joy when fate called me from this city to be leader of the reich.

"Then fate must have given me a commission, and it can only have been a single commission—to return my beloved fatherland to the German reich.

"I believed in this divine commission. I lived and fought for it. I believe I now have fulfilled it. And you are witnesses to it.

"I do not know what day you will be called [apparently referring to a plebiscite such as Schuschnigg had called and then canceled]. I hope it is not far off.

Proud of His Fatherland.

"Then you will have to stand by your conviction. I believe I can be proud of my fatherland before the entire German people. It must prove to the entire world that any other attempt to part this people will be in vain.

"Just as you then will be obliged to perform your duty for this German future, so is all Germany prepared to fulfill the obligation to you in seeing you liberated. And she begins to fulfill those obligations today.

"You will see in the German soldiers who are marching in from all sections of the reich, you will see in them fighters who are ready and willing to sacrifice everything for the entire community of German people, for the power of our reich, for its glory.

"Now and forever Germany. Sieg Heil. [Hail Victory.]"

SPECIAL OFFICER KILLS SELF.

Logansport, Ind., March 12.—[Special.]—Fred Jackson, 57 years old, a furloughed railroad police officer, ended his life today by shooting himself through the right temple with his service gun. Ill health is blamed.

SECOND PLANE PLANT WORKER IS SEIZED IN PLOT TO BETRAY U. S.

New York, March 12.—(AP)—A second Seversky Aircraft corporation employé tonight was reported seized in connection with a probe of the sale of American military secrets to foreign agents, but federal officials declined to comment.

Employés of the Farmingdale, N. Y., plant in which some of the army's fastest pursuit planes are under construction said two federal agents took into custody a mechanic a few hours after Otto Herman Voss, 39 years old, a German-born aircraft worker, was ordered held in default of $10,000 bond.

Voss was charged with delivering codes and other military documents to a foreign power.

Polish Press Welcomes Unified Austria-Germany

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, March 12.—The Polish press, commenting today on the disappearance of Austria as an independent state, declares it is a normal and natural proceeding which has been expected for some time in Warsaw. Poland welcomes the unification of the German nations, and events in Austria contain nothing alarming for Poland unless the great powers interfere, it was declared. The press adds, however, that interference would mean catastrophe.

VIENNA PREPARES A WILD WELCOME FOR HITLER TODAY

Beautiful City Hall Plaza Renamed After Him.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, March 12.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler will arrive in Vienna from Linz tomorrow. A wild welcome awaits him. Already the beautiful city hall plaza has been renamed Adolf Hitler square.

Joyous crowds began torchlight parades through the streets tonight, little realizing, apparently, the probable effects of this drama upon their personal lives in the next few months.

In the chancellories of Prague, Czechoslovakia; Budapest, Hungary; and Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia—and probably in Rome, too—such realization is keen, however.

Equilibrium Is Upset.

The platonic protests by Paris and London against the use of armed force in making Hitler's dream of "anschluss" come true do not mean much, but what is grave is that European equilibrium has been upset. History teaches that such upsets inevitably lead to war, and the wind which is blowing over central Europe tonight is a war wind.

Germany has occupied one of the really vital strategic positions in Europe, and, incidentally, has swelled its armed forces by the addition of Austria's far from negligible army.

Czechoslovakia is encircled. The plains of Hungary are defenseless. Mussolini has definitly been ousted from central Europe and now has on his frontier a menace far greater than the Austro-Hungarian empire, the splitting up of which was Italy's reason for entering the world war.

Expect Plebiscite This Summer.

The changes in the map of Europe which yesterday's ultimatum ushered in are far from finished. There is no telling how far or how fast they will go—whether the next world war is hours, days, months or years off—but experienced observers here are ready for anything at any moment.

It was reported tonight that the eventual plebiscite to be held in Austria will take place in August and that it will be on the issue of German unity. Many observers, however, believe it will take place much sooner.

The German military occupation of the country is proceeding systematically and with lightning rapidity. Viennese awoke this morning to find German officers checking in at leading hotels. They belong to the German air infantry, whose mission in time of war is to land in enemy territory hours ahead of the fastest motorized units and to hold strategic points until the bulk of the advancing army reaches them.

Called Brilliant Operation.

This morning's performance was a striking example of how this mission can be fulfilled. Before noon more than 200 big German bombing planes were reported to have landed at Afpern airdrome, near Vienna, to have deposited soldiers armed with light automatic weapons, and then returned to Germany for more. The same thing was going on all over Austria. It was not a simple maneuver, but a brilliant military operation designed to forestall entry of any other foreign military forces into the country.

Among the first officers to reach Vienna was Gen. Walther von Reichenau, commander of the Leipzig army corps, who appears to have established his headquarters in Vienna.

During the day, squadrons of huge black tri-motored bombers roared low over housetops of the capital and Austrian villages, dropping propaganda leaflets.

"Panther" Troops Arrive.

In the evening several light armored units of the famous German Panther divisions reached Vienna and participated in a great parade toward the opera house, drawing frenzied cheers from the crowds.

Everywhere the German troops were joyously acclaimed by the local population. Certainly there was no need of them to maintain order. The Austrian police and army and more than 40,000 returning Austrian legionnaires [exiled Austrian Nazis] were amply sufficient for this. As a further precaution the SS men [picked guards] armed with rifles patroled the streets of Vienna in trucks or stood guard on street corners.

The Nazi victory is so complete and overwhelming that for the moment no organized opposition to the new régime exists.

Nazi Conqueror Starts Triumphal Journey

BEDLAM ON SHORT WAVES AS NAZIS BOAST OF COUP

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The triumphant return of the native—Adolf Hitler—into Austria yesterday was indescribable pandemonium on the international airlines throughout the day and night. For the second successive day Hitler's short wave broadcasting staf stuck at their control boards in Berlin to waft to the world the tumultuous story, in recorded form, of Hitler's coup.

There has been nothing like it on the radio before. One might compare his reception in Linz as an auditory experience to some portions of the British coronation broadcasts; in dramatic intensity it was suggestive of the recording of the Hindenburg disaster.

Hitler, of course, was the whole show. Like a vaudeville bill, the broadcast was continuous, starting all over again as soon as one cycle had been completed.

His entry into Linz was replete with drama, if one may believe the babel of sounds, the indescribable whooping and cheering. And the broadcast experts did a great job of picking up individual voices and cries from among the clamoring multitude.

Next to the demonstration of the populace the most impressive event was Hitler's impassioned proclamation to Austria, spoken at Linz, with the ever present backdrop of vocal bedlam.

WOMAN DEBTOR FREED ON $3,000 BOND AFTER SEVEN WEEKS IN JAIL

Mrs. Anna Reabus, who had been in jail for seven weeks for failure to pay a $7,500 judgment to the parents of a little girl killed by her automobile, won her freedom yesterday on a $3,000 bond until March 25. Then the hearing on her plea of insolvency will be reopened.

The bond, set by Judge Albert E. Isley of Newton, sitting in the County court, was arranged by relatives, who scheduled $90,000 worth of real estate.

Attorney Clarence N. Dunagan, representing the parents of Aphrodite Pappas, 4 years old, the victim of the accident, said the evidence showed that Mrs. Reabus had been living out of the state until her arrest. He asked that the bond be made large enough to cover the judgment, so she wouldn't leave the state again.

HITLER TO RULE AUSTRO-GERMANY WITH 2 PREMIERS

Goering, Seyss-Inquart Picked for Jobs.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 12.—While Reichsfuehrer Hitler entered Austria, his homeland, as a conqueror today, Pan-Germany celebrated the beginning of the Austro-German union triumphant in the realization that 7,000,000 Austrians will join the fatherland and that Germany will be bigger than it was before the world war.

The allied powers fought for four years in that war to take away from Germany the millions of citizens and the border provinces which they claimed. Nazis pointed out joyfully, however, that Nazi Germany conquered the Fuehrer's homeland by means of pressure propaganda and by moving a giant army toward the borders of Austria when its chancellor, Kurt Schuschnigg, attempted to escape incorporation into Germany. Austria is bigger than the lost provinces, they boasted.

Church Bells to Ring.

Germany's elation over Hitler's triumph was evidenced in many ways. Laurel wreaths and elaborate decorations were placed in buildings as a symbol of the joy felt over the Austro-German union. Berlin streets were red with flags.

Loudspeakers on street corners blared out accounts of events on the Austro-German border, and described fraternization scenes between Austrian and Italian soldiers and officers on Brenner pass, the gateway from Austria to Italy. The Austrian legation in Berlin for the first time in history hoisted a swastika flag.

It was ordered that all churches in Germany see that their bells ring for fifteen minutes tomorrow in honor of "hero's day."

Hitler started for the Berlin airfield on the way to Austria at 8:05 o'clock this morning, accompanied by an impressive retinue, including Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the supreme army command. His plane landed in Munich, where cheering throngs were waiting, and then Der Fuehrer continued the trip from Munich by car, speeding over the mountain roads at sixty miles an hour, sweeping past German troops moving toward Austria on motorcycles, in trucks, on horseback and on motorized batteries.

Honored At Birthplace.

In tiny Muehldorf-am-Inn Hitler retreated to a school building to prepare for his reception in Austria, then his party climbed into fifteen high, six wheeled cars built especially for this mountainous region, and headed for Braunau, Austria, Hitler's birthplace. Church bells pealed, factory sirens screeched, and a band played when, at 3:30 o'clock, he entered Braunau whose streets were packed with cheering crowds of Austrians.

The Nazi district leader welcomed Der Fuehrer and led a stirring Nazi chorus of "Sieg Heil!" for minutes on end. While Hitler passed the house in which he was born, crowds sang the German national anthem. After a short time the journey to Linz was resumed, and Hitler entered that city at 7:30.

"One Nation, One Fuehrer!"

During Hitler's triumphal progress through Austria Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German minister of air, will rule Germany. Thus Goering today officially assumed the rôle of acting vice chancellor, to which he has aspired for years. A conflict for this post had raged behind the scenes among Hitler's chief lieutenants, but it is now ended with victory for the most energetic, most colorful, and most popular of Hitler's aids.

Though Hitler, in a proclamation to Germany prior to his speech at Graz, still referred to Austria as a separate country, today's slogan in all speeches and demonstrations following the entry of German troops into Austria was: "One nation, one Fuehrer!" In his proclamation Der Fuehrer promised the Austrians a referendum which will place a seal on the incorporation of Austria into Germany.

Talk of Reorganization.

Immediately after the Germans occupied Austria, Nazi party members began to discuss the probability of a reorganization in the German government after the Austrian plebiscite. The principal plan under consideration by the Nazis was the appointment of Goering and Arthur Seyss-Inquart as chancellors, respectively, of Germany and Austria, with Hitler as the supreme Fuehrer above them. Seyss-Inquart became provisional chancellor of Austria upon Schuschnigg's resignation yesterday. He had been in the Austrian cabinet as minister of interior since Hitler forced its reorganization after the Berchtesgaden conference with Schuschnigg on Feb. 12.

The Germans' self-confidence was shown today when Sir Eric Phipps and Andre Francois-Poncet, ambassadors respectively of Great Britain and France, called at the German foreign office to present copious notes from their governments against the "march into Austria."

Heard by Minor Official.

They were received by a minor official who rejected the notes as "inadmissible." He informed these governments, it was said, that "their information about Austria was incorrect." Diplomats understood that the ambassadors also were warned that "Austro-German relations are a purely internal German affair which is none of their concern."

The government realized that the international situation will remain tense for some time to come. It was said to be confident, however, that the plebiscite in Austria, carried out by the same methods found successful in Germany, "will silence the opponents of Austrian anschluss [union]." In an effort to ease the tension with Great Britain, Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, will remain in London for an indefinite period to use his influence, diplomatic sources said, on his British friends.

The first measure taken under the new Austrian régime to be announced in Berlin was the partial lifting of a decree restricting Austrian imports into Germany. This decree became effective last November when Germans failed to pay for goods they had been receiving from Austria. The 50 million schillings [nominally about $9,460,000] due Austria played a prominent part in the conflict between Hitler and Schuschnigg which led to Schuschnigg's overthrow.

GOALS OF REICHSFUEHRER HITLER'S EXPANSION PROGRAM

Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany, in his reichstag speech of Feb. 20, indicated a purpose to unite the 80,000,000 Germans of Europe, many of them in other countries, into one country. The fall of Austria added its 7,000,000 inhabitants to the 66,000,000 of Germany. Other areas in which the population is predominantly German are shown in gray on the map. There are about 3,250,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia, 1,650,000 in France, 1,060,000 in Poland, 800,000 in Rumania, 550,000 in Hungary, 600,000 in Jugo-Slavia, 389,000 in Danzig, 235,000 in Italy, and 50,000 in Belgium. Several of the German populated areas lie down the Danube river valley, on whose economic resources Germany for many years has cast envious eyes. Those resources are shown on the map.

ROOSEVELT EYES HITLER COUP AS IT AFFECTS U. S.

Keeps in Constant Touch with Developments.

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today followed anxiously the swift moving developments in Austria and pondered their effect on the American nation. He made no statement, however. He was advised of every phase of the situation as rapidly as reports were made to the state department from American diplomatic officers in Europe.

Foreign experts reported little possibility of war in the movement of German troops into Austria. They also said the German action does not entail any embarrassing diplomatic problems of recognition of the new Austrian government.

Boosts Naval Bill.

On capitol hill it was believed the Austrian situation would serve to bolster the cause of big navy advocates and speed the passage of the 1 billion 113 million dollar naval expansion bill. It also was believed that it would strengthen the cause of isolationists who demand strict avoidance of foreign entanglements.

In the house advocates of increased national defense were confident that the latest European development will serve to speed all American armament programs. The naval expansion bill will occupy the attention of the house next week. Stiff opposition is expected, but administration leaders believe that some of the starch will be taken out of the bill's foes by the march of German troops.

Nazi Envoy Explains.

Diplomats paraded into the state department to report on the reactions of their governments to the Austrian coup. Ambassador Hans Dieckhoff of Germany was the first to present himself. He told Secretary of State Cordell Hull that a breach of promise by former Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg led to the current developments in Austria. It was reported that the ambassador said German troops entered Austria at the request of the Nazi chancellor, Arthur Seyss-Inquart.

The German envoy said that in a meeting with the then Austrian chancellor, Schuschnigg, German Chancellor Adolph Hitler arrived at an agreement on methods to be employed to ease the tension between Germans in Austria and the Austrian anti-Nazi government. Had the agreement been followed, Dieckhoff said, there would have been no difficulty.

Dieckhoff said that no ultimatum has been issued to Austria. He said the Austrian president still is carrying on and that the Austrian government will continue, although he admitted a crisis exists. This crisis, Dieckhoff insisted, was provided by Schuschnigg's decree ordering a plebiscite on Austria's future policy in what he termed direct violation of promises made to Hitler.

Other Envoys Call.

The German ambassador was followed to the state department by the newly appointed French ambassador and the British ambassador. Ambassador Saint-Quentin conferred with Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles. The British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, also conferred with Mr. Welles.

The developments in his homeland gave Edgar L. G. Prochnik, Austrian minister to the United States, a trying problem this morning—whether to hoist the Austrian or the Nazi flag over the Austrian legation. The problem was met by flying both flags, the Austrian flag being placed above the Nazi emblem on the legation flag staff.

AUSTRIA'S FALL VIEWED AS NEW PERIL TO SWISS

ZURICH, Switzerland, March 12.—[U. P.]—The abrupt end of Austrian independence was a severe shock to Switzerland. It was feared here today that Switzerland's political position, and still more its military situation, had changed for the worse because the nation now is inclosed on both the northern and eastern sides by Germany. Pan-Germanic propaganda describes Switzerland as a German country.

The Zurich Zeitung commented editorially:

"German methods must cause alarm to small states and outrage feelings of justice. Austria's fate is a severe warning to the Swiss people who must never doubt that independence is the wish of all citizens."

BELGIUM TENSE; AUSTRIAN AFFAIR RECALLS BIG WAR

BRUSSELS, March 12.—[U. P.]—The Austrian crisis precipitated a tremendous sensation in Belgium, buffer state in the world war.

The tension was tempered by a general belief that in event of war Belgium would escape a repetition of the invasion in 1914. It was predicated on the assumption that Germany would concentrate her efforts on a campaign to the south and east rather than west across Belgium.

Prince Otto, pretender to the Austrian throne, returned to Steenockerzeel from Paris, where he was said to have been informed that help at this time was impossible since the occasion was unfavorable for his restoration to the throne.

BRITISH EXCLUDE HITLER'S COUP AS EXCUSE FOR WAR

Cabinet Appears to Hold Action Inevitable.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 12.—War in Europe over Adolf Hitler's seizure of Austria was excluded for the immediate present by British cabinet ministers today after a two hour session during which the European situation was examined in the light of Berlin's rejection of British and French protests.

German efforts to assure Czechoslovakia that Hitler is not going to make his next meal on that country, coupled with Joachim von Ribbentrop's prolonged stay in this country presumably to smooth things over, have brought some reassurance to the troubled population here that Armageddon again is not just around the corner.

Cabinet Is Alert.

After the cabinet session today a statement was issued saying the British were keeping in close touch with the French and German governments for any action that would have a disturbing effect upon public confidence in Europe. Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain left for Chequers after the conference to spend the week-end. He had instructed all ministers to remain within reach of London.

It was stated that a further protest on the Austrian situation may be made to Germany. Another cabinet meeting will be held on the situation Monday. The prime minister than will make a full statement to commons on the British position.

Big Question Remains Puzzle.

The big question in diplomatic circles tonight is whether Hitler has any more surprises up his sleeve and, if so, whether the British will join the French in effecting a halt. In other words, will the French or British or any one else tell Hitler to keep hands off Czechoslovakia?

The fact that the Germans already have been assiduous in telling the Prague government it need not worry seems to indicate that some diplomatic reminders in this direction have been made. What seems to have transpired here is that, while the British officials knew the "anschluss" was a foregone conclusion and were, in a way, unopposed to it, they were angry at the methods which Hitler took to hasten it. It gives credence to charges made here that he already is waging an undeclared war in central Europe.

Italy's reaction is watched in London with the greatest interest. Whether Mussolini secretly encouraged Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg to show fight after his session with Hitler in Berchtesgaden and whether Hitler let Mussolini know in advance about what he was going to do yesterday, the British do not believe Italy can take an easy long view of German penetration of Austria, and much emphasis was given here to the fact that German troops went across Austrian Tyrol to the very gates of Brenner pass, through which lies the path to Italian Tyrol, populated almost entirely by Germans.

Held Logical Development.

British observers appeared to scout the Italian statement that what happened in Austria yesterday is a logical development. Italy alone cannot do much, and as soon as Mussolini started to do something Jugo-Slavia probably would make a countermove. The British are not unpleased at the situation in which Il Duce finds himself, and they have an idea that in the course of the Anglo-Italian negotiations, which got further under way in Rome today, the Italians will endeavor to enlist some sort of coöperation from Britain with a view to slowing down the German penetration.

Arthur Henderson, former prime minister, will ask Chamberlain in parliament on Monday whether the latter will assist France in the event of any attack on her as a result of France's assistance to Czechoslovakia.

Stare at Door Like in 1914.

When the cabinet ministers assembled today, Downing street was packed with curious crowds who gaped at the big black door with its number 10 with something of the uneasiness that characterized the crowds who stared at the same door in 1914.

London's streets are full of grave-faced people who buy up every extra edition of the newspapers, eager to read of the newest happenings in Austria. Newspapers urged the speeding up of rearmament.

A cabinet statement said the "cabinet discussed events in Austria and it was reported that a protest in the strongest terms had been made in Berlin. The prime minister and the foreign secretary previously had made similar representations to Von Ribbentrop. It was felt that action of the German government was bound to have a most disturbing effect on Anglo-German relations and upon public confidence throughout Europe. His majesty's government is keeping in close touch with the French government and giving continuous consideration to the situation.

Agree with Eden's Policy.

Berlin's rejection of the French and British protests as "unwaranted" and the explanation that no ultimatums were sent to Schuschnigg, the Austrian former chancellor, are considered as weak alibis here. At the same time today the Socialist press was critical of the Chamberlain and Halifax policy and declared that what has happened gives full justification to Anthony Eden, who resigned as British foreign secretary over a question of policy.

Some other opposition papers go so far as to declare that what happened in Austria was done by Hitler in full connivance with Chamberlain, if not in agreement with him.

The surprise at Von Ribbentrop's continued stay in London was augmented when the German embassy issued a statement giving a further explanation of why German troops had to be sent into Austria. The explanation was to the effect that the deposed Austrian chancellor, Schuschnigg, had acted unconstitutionally.

Call in Labor Leaders.

After the cabinet meeting, Lord Halifax, foreign secretary, called in Maj. C. R. Attlee, chief of the Labor party, and Archibald Sinclair, Liberal chieftain, to explain the situation to the opposition leaders.

Later, Baron Georg Franckenstein, Austrian minister, called at the foreign office. Sir Sidney Clive, marshal of the diplomatic corps, went to the German embassy to talk with Von Ribbentrop. The latter's long stay here is causing many eyebrows to be lifted in diplomatic circles. He had planned to hurry home by plane yesterday, but said he couldn't get a seat. He announced he would go today. However, at the German embassy it was said he might leave tonight or tomorrow. Von Ribbentrop came to London for the formal purpose of taking leave as German ambassador. He is known to have been in telephonic conversation with Hitler and also with Berlin's state officials.

Passenger Travel Slowed Down.

Travel agencies today told prospective tourists to postpone trips to Central Europe until the situation clears. All companies have received cancellations.

Many European markets were closed today because of the crisis. Dollars improved sharply as the demand for them grew, the New York exchange rate jumping 2 cents against the pound.

HILARIOUS AUSTRIAN CROWDS PULL DOWN STATUE OF DOLLFUSS

GRAZ, Austria, March 12.—(AP)—Yelling throngs pulled down a memorial statue to the late Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss in the main street of Graz tonight.

Civilians, soldiers and police shouted the Nazi greeting of "Heil Hitler!" as a crowd gathered around the Dollfuss memorial and brought the figure of the diminutive Austrian, who was murdered in the abortive Nazi putsch of 1934, crashing to the street.

There were uninterrupted demonstrations and jubilation throughout the town, with 6,000 persons awaiting the arrival of German troops. The burgomaster of Graz telegraphed an invitation to Reichsfuehrer Hitler to visit the city.

TRACE HISTORY OF AUSTRIA, LONG IN WARS OF KINGS

Nation Closely Entwined with Germany's Traits.

The history of Austria, a country of 32,352 square miles and about 7,000,000 population, closely intertwines with that of Germany. Austria sits astride the east-west land routes of Europe and in the middle ages was known as Eastmark, a buffer province of Germany.

From the time of Charlemagne [796] to the rise of Napoleon [1804] Austria figured constantly in the wars of acquisitive kings. For the most part its fortunes coincided with those of the current Holy Roman emperor, whose domain at one time comprised all the land in central Europe, as well as Italy and Spain. The Hapsburg dynasty monopolized the holy Roman title.

Wins Lost Territory in 1815.

Emperor Francis' battles with young Napoleon Bonaparte cost him portions of his territory, especially at Austerlitz, and in 1810 Austria nominally was allied with France when Napoleon married Maria Louisa, Francis' daughter. Three years later Austria deserted Napoleon and by 1815 won back all lost territory.

From that time until 1848, Prince Metternich, Austrian foreign minister, dominated Austria and to a great extent the politics of Europe. Then, as now, the political problem was one of conflicting racial groups. Metternich's success in building kingdoms contrasted with his indifference to the need of social reform.

Joseph Becomes Emperor.

The nationalist spirit rising in Italy and in Austria flamed into revolt and in 1848 Metternich fled, Francis Joseph becoming emperor of Austria after the revolt was put down.

Austria's chief rival for leadership in the confederation of German states was Prussia and this produced the Austrian-Prussian war in 1866. The Italians attacked at the same time and, in its joint victory with Prussia, made another gain in their rise to statehood. Defeat excluded Austria from German affairs.

In 1867 the Austrian empire comprised with the Hungarian monarchy and the dual monarchy of the Austrian-Hungarian empire was established, a nation in name only because of the conflicting peoples within it.

Defends Balkan States.

Alienated from Germany, Austria turned its ambitions to the Balkan states and became a rival of Russia in defending Serbia, Bulgaria, and Rumania from Turkish oppression.

The rivalry was one of the causes of the world war, the spark of which was an anti-Hapsburg Serb's assassination in 1914 of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, son of Francis Joseph, Austrian emperor from 1848 until 1916. Austria-Hungary played a subordinate rôle to Germany in the war and lost heavily.

Makes Way for Republic.

Emperor Charles I. made way for the proclamation of an Austrian republic on Nov. 12, 1918. The republic sought to become a state in the new Germany republic, but the victorious allies prevented this, the Versailles treaty specifically forbidding such a union or "anschluss."

The old empire was divided beween Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania, Italy, and Jugo-Slavia.

In the post-war years the allies have blocked several attempts at German-Austrian union. In 1934 Italy assumed the rôle of protector of Austrian independence. The casting of the Rome-Berlin axis, however, caused Italy to change its policy of active opposition to the anschluss.

Forces Nazilism on Austria.

As a result, Hitler was able to force the Nazification of Austria. This came about in a swift succession of events. On Feb. 12 Hitler conferred with Austrian Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and demanded the latter take Nazis into his cabinet. Five pro-Nazis were admitted. On Feb. 24 Schuschnigg made a speech dedicating himself to Austrian independence in defiance of Hitler. Last Wednesday Schuschnigg announced a plebiscite for today to decide the outcome. On Friday German troops invaded Austria and Schuschnigg resigned. Yesterday Hitler returned to his native Austria, its ruler.

Spirit of Spring

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Irwin Rochlin, 11 years old, 900 Ainslie street, flying his kite yesterday for the first time this year.

Temperatures rose at the rate of 2 degrees an hour yesterday as Chicago enjoyed real spring weather. A climb to 64 degrees for the maximum of the day was recorded at 3 and 4 p. m.

But it won't last long, according to Forecaster H. A. Downs. He predicted today will be partly cloudy and somewhat colder, with a maximum of 48 for the day. Tomorrow there will be rain or snow, and still colder, he said.

BORDER GUARD SLAIN IN POLISH, LITHUANIA FIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, March 12.—Declaring that trouble along the Polish-Lithuanian frontier must end and some method found for normal relations between the two countries, official Polish newspapers today published strong attacks against the Lithuanian government in connection with the shooting of a Polish frontier guard yesterday.

According to the Lithuanian version of the incident, the guards heard firing and upon investigating saw a number of Polish guards, one of whom allegedly crossed the demarcation line. The Lithuanians called upon him to surrender, but he opened fire and an exchange of shots followed, resulting in the Pole being killed. The Lithuanian report suggests that the Poles agree to appointment of a mixed commission to settle the incident.

The Polish communique admits the shooting occurred in Lithuania, but says it provokes a grave situation, details of which cannot be given now.

SAFECRACKERS GET $700 FROM FOOD MART SAFE

Safecrackers blew a Brinks Express safe in the Stratford Food Mart, 4837 Elston avenue, with nitroglycerin early today and obtained about $700 in cash, the receipts from Saturday's business. The "yeggs" gained entrance to the place, which is one of the largest of its kind on the northwest side, by breaking a door on Elston avenue. The sound of the explosives was deadened by wrapping the safe in heavy paper. George J. Murlas, who with J. Meilinger owns the mart, estimated the loss. He said another large safe containing approximately the same amount of money was not disturbed.

FRANCE ORDERS BORDER TROOPS TO STICK TO POST

Cancels All Leaves in Maginot Forts.

PARIS, March 12.—(AP)—Troops manning the powerful Maginot line defenses facing the German border tonight were held to their posts as France took an increasingly grave view of the European crisis.

French officials meanwhile sought to convince Great Britain it is necessary for mutual safety to take a joint stand to discourage any German encroachment on Czechoslovakia.

They considered the war-created democracy on the reich's border the real powder barrel because of alliances with France and Soviet Russia.

Premier Designate Leon Blum at the same time gave up attempts to form a national union government of all parties and sought desperately to recreate a people's front cabinet to give the country a ministry.

Disapprove Reds in Cabinet.

His proposal to include Communists in a cabinet for the first time brought almost united disapproval from center and right groups in the chamber of deputies.

The ministers of Camille Chautemps' government which resigned Thursday remained at their posts immersed in the international developments.

Edouard Daladier, minister of national defense and war in that cabinet, ordered the troops in the Maginot line to remain at their posts without leave until further notice after he had conferred with military chiefs.

The line is the famous barrier of steel and concrete and heavy guns which was constructed after the world war to halt any new German invasion.

Defense System Stretches Far.

It is a vast and mighty underground system stretching virtually from Switzerland to Belgium. The full import of the order canceling leave was not disclosed, but it was agreed generally that it was a sign of grave apprehensions.

Daladier conferred lengthily with army and air commanders. France definitly is committed by treaty to aid Czechoslovakia in event of aggression; Britain's hands are free.

The foreign office pointed out, however, there were no juridical grounds on which to base a charge of violation of a neutral state's territory in the case of Germany's Nazification of Austria.

The Franco-Czechoslovakian treaty, it was said, was not intended to cover a similar situation. By this it was meant that Austria's new chancellor, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, acting for the Austrian government, asked Germany to send in troops.

Find France Covering Up.

The French held that there was little likelihood of a similar case arising in Czechoslovakia but hastened to point out the Franco-Czechoslovakian treaty applied only to flagrant instances of aggression.

Observers expressed the opinion France thus was "covering up" for the future, especially in the eventuality she should find British support lacking at a crucial moment.

Constant communication was maintained with London, but late tonight there was no indication Britain was resolved to accompany France in a stand that might heighten the danger of war.

Yvon Delbos, foreign minister, earlier conferred with the British ambassador, Sir Eric Phipps, and Czechoslovakian Minister Stephan Osusky.

PRANKSTER STARTS DOUBLE PLAY THAT COSTS HIM A $50 FINE

Judge Samuel Heller was reminded—in a way—yesterday of the old Cub infield double play combination: Tinker to Evers to Chance. Only this time it was Konecki to Wogdyla to Murach.

Because he started the play, Henry Konecki, 23 years old, 2248 North Laramie avenue, was fined $50, while Paul Wogdyla, 16, of 2143 North Laramie avenue, his companion, was dismissed. Victim of the play was Miss Lillian Murach, 15 years old, 2139 North Long avenue.

Last Monday, at Konecki's suggestion, the court was told, Wogdyla dumped a package of itching powder down Miss Murach's back as she played checkers with another girl in a park fieldhouse.

KIDNAP STORE'S MANAGER; LOOT SAFE OF $1,700

Two gunmen stole $1,700 late last night from the Neisner Brothers store at 3231 Lincoln avenue after kidnaping the manager after store hours and forcing him to reopen the store and to open the safe. The manager is Louis Weinstein, 7300 South Shore drive.

Weinstein was driving home when the robbers curbed his car at Lincoln and Diversey avenues. They entered his car and ordered him to drive back. Seeing several janitors cleaning up, they drove Weinstein around an hour and returned after the janitors had left.

The gunmen alternately threatened Weinstein and assured him he would not be harmed. Several times they addressed him as "Louie," although he does not know them. After the safe was opened and the money taken the gunmen tied Weinstein and left.

TAX ADJUSTER DIES AFTER HIS ARREST AT HINES

Arthur Goodwin, a tax adjuster, who was arrested yesterday in Hines Veterans' hospital, on nine warants charging embezzlement, died early today in the County hospital. He was a patient at Hines for heart treatment, but police said hospital attachés told them his condition was not sufficiently serious to prevent his removal to the Summerdale police station. On the way there he became ill and was taken to the County hospital. He was 46 years old and lived at 1055 Pratt boulevard.

According to Detectives Thomas Leddy and Anthony Murray, Goodwin collected tax money from property owners on his promise to obtain tax reductions and to pay the taxes. In some cases, the police charged, he paid only part of the taxes, and in others none at all. The amounts involved range from $85 to $2,600. Goodwin denied the charges.

M. R. BISSELL SLUGGED FOILING KIDNAP ATTEMPT

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 12.—(AP)—M. R. Bissell Jr., 56 years old, president of the Bissell Carpet Sweeper company, reported that an attempt was made by two men to abduct him early tonight.

Police of suburban East Grand Rapids appealed to state police and the federal bureau of investigation to join in a search for the men, who fled in an automobile.

Bissell said an unidentified telephone caller summoned him to Blodgett hospital, in East Grand Rapids. When he arrived, he said, a man approached and ordered him to get into the car, in which a second man waited.

Bissell resisted and the first man struck him with a pistol he had been holding, then got into the car, which sped away.

Knoxville, Tenn., March 12.—[Special.]—The sale of phosphate lands to the Tennessee Valley authority at a profit of $527,185 to the International Agricultural corporation evoked renewed interest here today. It is one of the items spoken of by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of TVA in his demand for a congressional investigation of the affairs of the 520 million dollar experiment in a planned society.

In Knoxville, headquarters of the Authority, folks are wondering whether another Teapot Dome is to be cracked open, if congress makes the inquiry. Chairman Morgan's stand, appears to have strong support among the townspeople, judging from talks with professional and business men and farmers in market square.

Staf of TVA Divided.

Members of the TVA staf itself seem divided between the opposing groups in the board of three. But mouths are buttoned up; no one among the working force is courting reprisals. Friends of Chairman Morgan in the TVA jump sideways when openly asked for information, intimating that jobs are at stake. But the old grapevine is still working and the town has an epidemic of gossip and hearsay, with strong currents of criticism of the Authority.

The episode of the claims of Senator George L. Berry for 5 million dollars' compensation for marble properties inundated by Norris dam reservoir, which recently were held commercially worthless by a federal court commission still gets headlines. It was this that touched off Dr. Morgan's explosion and request for an inquiry by congress. But the phosphate lands also are getting public attention.

Outside Usual Channels.

Chairman Morgan, in his indictment of affairs on the board, said the handling of the Berry marble claims and the buying of the phosphate lands were the only cases in which the board of directors took the handling of the acquisition of land or minerals out of the usual TVA channels and directed it themselves. In the purchase of the phosphate lands, Chairman Morgan said "purchase prices were determined under the direction of H. A. Morgan," one of the three TVA directors.

In the allotment of duties among the directors, David E. Lilienthal has had the power end, H. A. Morgan, agriculture and fertilizer; Chairman Morgan, the dams, he being an engineer.

"The fertilizer policy," said Chairman Morgan, in his demand for a congressional inquiry, "for example was adopted without being disclosed to the TVA board, and no impartial technical appraisal and report of the fertilizer program ever has been made to the board or to the public."

TVA Announces Purpose.

The phosphate land deal in Williamson county, near Nashville was announced Sept. 1, 1937, by TVA. It made known that a large "reserve" phosphate land tract in Williamson county had been bought from the International Agricultural corporation, headquarters in New York, for $678,000. C. Neil Bass, administrative assistant to H. A. Morgan and TVA conservation engineer said 338 acres had been purchased and mineral rights on 215 other acres. For the entire 553 acres the price averaged slightly more than $1,200 an acre.

The affair slumbered until Jan. 25, when a financial paper carried a brief item of an announcement made by J. J. Watson, president of International Agricultural corporation, to the shareholders. It said:

Not Interested in Profit.

"Profit of $527,185 made from sale of land to TVA Jan. 25, 1938. J. J. Watson, president, informed stockholders at annual meeting that sale of certain phosphate rock lands in Tennessee to Tennessee Valley authority resulted in a net profit of $527,185 to the company."

When this matter of a net profit of $527,185 on a purchase price of $678,000 was put up to TVA officials by local newspapers they said the Authority was not interested in the profit, but in whether the government was getting its money's worth.

Divorces Blonde Hater

Mrs. Genevieve Dart in court yesterday as she won divorce.

Mrs. Genevieve Dart of 7517 Cornell avenue, who is a blonde, won a divorce and $12 weekly support money yesterday from Albert C. Dart of 7231 South Park way after she testified that Albert didnt' prefer blondes anymore.

Mrs. Dart is 25 years old. She said they were married at Crown Point, Ind., in June, 1934, and that they separated in August, 1936, after Dart began going out with brunette women.

"I thought that gentlemen preferred blondes?" queried Judge Walter La Buy.

"Not Albert," said Mrs. Dart, who was represented by Attorney Harry X. Cole. "Why, he even brought brunettes along when he came to visit our baby daughter after we split up."

FOIL ROOSEVELT PLAN TO HUSH UP SCANDAL IN TVA

Bridges to Press Demand for Senate Inquiry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special]—Unprecedented efforts of President Roosevelt to hush the uproar caused by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan's charges against the Tennessee Valley authority, of which he holds the title of chairman, appeared to have been defeated today. Neither Dr. Morgan nor his two warring codirectors will resign, they indicated.

At the close of an extraordinary White House conference that lasted for six hours yesterday President Roosevelt gave Chairman Morgan, David Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan until next Friday to compose the differences that have split the directors or resign. Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan, forming a majority of the board, have successfully opposed the chairman for months.

Two Motions Before Senate.

Defeat of President Roosevelt's hope to still the uproar is apparent from two angles. First, Senator H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] announced today he would move Monday in the senate for adoption of his resolution calling for a senatorial investigation of the entire TVA. Second, Senator George W. Norris [Rad., Neb.] announced he would offer a resolution demanding the ouster of Dr. Morgan unless he resigns. Norris also said he would fight Bridges' resolution for a senate inquiry and press for adoption of his motion to have the Federal Trade commission conduct the investigation.

Thus in any event the TVA charges made by Dr. Morgan will be brought upon the floor of the senate and become the subject of debate and interrogation. Dr. Morgan challenged the integrity of his colleagues and added that conditions within the TVA warranted a full congressional investigation.

Dr. Morgan refused to accede to President Roosevelt's demand yesterday that he substantiate charges against Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan. In the 81 page transcript of the proceedings, Dr. Morgan made it clear he would not present his case before the star chamber session in the White House and would reserve his information until such time as he can place it before congress in open hearing.

Puts President on Spot.

Dr. Morgan's announced refusal to resign placed the President in a position of being unable to do anything about it, according to Dr. Morgan's supporters. Under the law the President can remove a TVA director only in case he is found to have required political credentials from TVA employés. Supporters of the chairman doubt that President Roosevelt would choose to exercise his authority under this provision and remove Dr. Morgan for having given jobs to deserving Democrats.

A director otherwise may be removed only by a concurrent resolution of the house and senate, according to lawyers in congress, recalling the Supreme court's ruling in the case of William B. Humphrey, whom the President removed from the federal trade commission. The court held in this case the President usurped authority and the commissioner's widow received his back salary with interest.

Senator Bridges, Senator William H. King [D., Utah], and Senator Royal S. Copeland [D., N. Y.] agreed today that the White House session of yesterday emphasized the need for a full congressional investigation.

Bridges Praises Morgan.

"Chairman Morgan did just right," Senator Bridges said, "and he showed a great deal of courage. His statements were gagged and shut off in the middle by an anxious President, fearful of the bad impression which an honest statement might create."

The senator pointed to the 81 page transcript of the proceedings as containing astounding evidence of presidential bias. He said Mr. Roosevelt was not interested in arriving at the facts, but only in blasting Dr. Morgan.

Compares It to Soviet Trial.

"What started out to be an authentic imitation of a soviet demonstration trial became ludicrous when the appointed victim, prejudiced and pretried and preconvicted, refused to do his part, refused to confess and to carry on in the rôle into which he was cast," said Bridges.

"There is a curious affinity between the soviet demonstration trial and the technique applied Friday by the President.

"As in Russia the judge, the jury, the prosecuting attorney, and the bailif were combined in a single entity.

"As in Russia the verdict was ready before the trial began.

"As in Russia the motive behind the trial was to find a goat upon whom to blame the folly and mistakes of an overballyhooed adventure into Utopia.

"As in Russia a human sacrifice must be offered in mitigation of the failure of another five year plan.

Praises Morgan's Stand.

"But the analogy ends there. Dr. Morgan failed to fulfill his rôle. This is America, not Russia.

"Arthur Morgan is an American, not a browbeaten soviet prisoner. He stood on his rights. The alleged fact finding occasion' became a farce when he stated that he would reveal his information only to the proper authority: an impartial congressional investigation.

Terms Attitude Astounding.

Norris found Dr. Morgan's attitude and not the transcript to be "astounding."

"His conduct indicates to me that all he wants to do is smear the other board members," he said. "The result of it all would be to kill the whole project."

To this Bridges retorted that the hearing was an "attempt to liquidate Dr. Morgan in the Russian manner." The New Hampshire senator said that the "awful smell of the TVA" cannot be hid by assailment of Dr. Morgan.

SEN. HOLT RAPS GUFFEY COAL ACT AND JOHN LEWIS

Charleston, W. Va., March 12.—(AP)—Senator Rush D. Holt [D., W. Va.] today declared he would "rather retire from office than sit in the United States senate as a puppet" of John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chieftain.

The young senator termed the Guffey coal act a gold brick which John Lewis sold the miners to please his vanity.

Holt asserted Lewis "has told the state of Pennsylvania that it shall recognize him as emperor."

TEMPLE OF IGNORANCE

By CALEB

"WE call our research and laboratory building a 'Temple of Ignorance,'" said a great leader of industrial research recently.

It's a strange designation for the men and the buildings from which have come many a discovery and contribution of far-reaching importance to the world.

"You see," the research man explained, "we spend most of our time working on things we can't understand or don't know enough about. You might almost say we live in continual ignorance—because the minute we find one answer we start being ignorant about something else.

"The only time we ever lose interest in a problem is when we find the answer to it."

What a place the world would be if all the ignorance in it were of the sort this research man describes! Keen mental hunger—feeding on the dissatisfaction and relentless drive of minds determined to satisfy that hunger.

Centuries ago that sort of hunger had to be satisfied in hiding from the cry of "witchcraft" or "heresy." It is significant that today many an intellectually hungry mind turns to business and industry for the facilities to begin and carry out beneficial research.

Three things characterize the modern business mind. It is orderly—searching carefully and scientifically for facts; it is open—accepting facts as they develop; it is constructive—applying known facts to the use and service of society.

It may be that not all business meets all three requirements. Whatever business does not meet them is not modern—and will not endure. Selfish business is as old-fashioned as a one-cylinder automobile.

Today the research and laboratory method permeates every phase of modern business. The questing, orderly, open-minded approach is the accepted mode. The drive against ignorance goes forth from the cloistered research quarters, and business itself, from top to bottom, becomes the laboratory.

Under this system one formula appears again and again with strange persistence. Where the answer required is business success, the formula invariably is: a sustained contribution to the welfare of the individuals and the community the business serves.

Lacking that element, the formula is seriously unbalanced, the equation does not check—and the answer is wrong!

Some "Don'ts" for Pile Sufferers

If you are a sufferer from Piles or some other rectal disorder, read carefully the following list of "don'ts" — prepared by The McCleary Clinic, widely known rectal specialists. Don't neglect a well defined rectal ailment and expect it to right itself. Don't use an ointment for temporary relief, believing it will produce a permanent cure. Don't wait until your whole system may become undermined before you consult a competent rectal specialist. Don't take the grave chance of some malignant and incurable condition developing before you decide to do what you should do now. The McCleary Clinic has prepared a book that describes all rectal conditions and the mild McCleary treatment. It will be sent free to any rectal sufferer.

RECORD CROWDS JAM OFFICES TO PAY INCOME TAX

People Present Problems in Varied Moods.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

The largest crowd of income tax payers ever seen in the United States courthouse jammed every hall of the second floor corridors yesterday. They filed slowly past deputy collectors, digging into their pockets for Uncle Sam's share of their 1937 incomes. Veteran employés in the office of Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue for the Chicago district, said they had never seen so many tax returns filed in one day.

Six thousand persons—a patient, interminable line—presented 6,000 problems to the 140 deputies, for each came for help. According to Daniel Connerty, assistant field deputy, there have been 91,000 new taxpayers this year in the Chicago area.

Stickler for Details.

The government is a stickler for details, too, a blonde young beauty operator learned. It was her first trip to the courthouse, and she was jaunty and confident.

"I've figured my income down to the last cent," she announced as she slid into the seat vacated by the young man with the twins. "I don't owe you anything. I just came in to be sure I wouldn't be bothered later." She waved her blank triumphantly.

Her announcement was apparently a challenge to the deputy across the desk. He bent over her return, figured a few minutes, and handed it back to her with a grin.

"You owe us one-half a cent," he said. "And, since you can't pay that amount, your tax will be a penny. You will pay it on the fifth floor."

Pin Money on Stocks.

A little old woman with a rusty black hat and a querulous voice was next. Her return showed an income of $9,000. She claimed no personal exemption.

"My husband claims mine," she giggled. "He doesn't know I make a separate return of my own. It's little pin money I pick up on my stocks.

There are many such admissions, Mr. Connerty asserted. There are also many women who receive high salaries, and the number is increasing every year.

Huddled over row on row of desks in the large field service room, the men and women confided their business to ninety deputies. The room buzzed monotonously as they whispered of money given old friends, of donations to poor relatives, and checks to divorced spouses. The deputies eyed them coldly and advised that these items, alas, were not deductible. Poor relations, old friends, and divorces, they said, were an old story.

Worried About Exemptions.

A young man beside them shifted from one foot to the other and crumpled his income tax blank. He was worried about his exemptions.

"It's like this," he explained, flushing deeply. "I have two babies. Twins, they are. They were born on Dec. 17. I've been told that I won't get any exemption at all for them, and I want to tell you, mister, I deserve it!"

This, obviously, was a new problem to the deputy. He pondered it compassionately.

"Well, Buddy," he said finally, "you sure do. But it can't be done. Now, if they'd been born two days earlier you could have a month apiece."

Despite the upturn in the number of returns, collections are lower this year. Only $25,683,743 has been received, a drop of $331,416 from the $26,025,159 in the comparable 1937 period. The largest individual return so far is a quarterly payment of $90,000 on a tax of $360,000.

Mr. Harrison announced his office would remain open until 8 p. m. Tuesday, the deadline for filing. Returns mailed before midnight Tuesday will be honored without a penalty, he said.

Income Tax Drama

Bewilderment, anxiety, and surprise showed in the faces of the record number of income taxpayers who crowded the United States courthouse yesterday.

ASSESSOR'S USE OF TAX RETURNS IS UP TO HORNER

Governor to Get Request Through State Board.

Whether County Assessor John S. Clark is to have the continued use of federal income tax returns in assessing personal property is a moot question on which tax payers and tax offenders were speculating yesterday and to which Gov. Horner holds the answer.

There is no indication when the governor will make known his decision—nor what it will be. Technically, it will be based upon the recommendation of the Illinois tax commission to which the request has been referred, but there is little doubt that the commission will confer with Mr. Horner before making its recommendation.

283 Millions Added to Rolls.

The assessor will meet with the commission here tomorrow to discuss the request. It is expected that Mr. Clark will explain that through the use of the 1935 income tax green sheets—the duplicate each taxpayer must file with his original return—he, Clark, was able to add $283,000,000 of intangible personal property to the tax rolls, principally in stocks, bonds, and cash, for the first time.

These assets revealed by the federal returns reduced the problem of assessing intangible personal property to more of an exact science.

Mr. Horner has said nothing to indicate whether he will obtain the 1936 federal returns so that Clark can use them in preparing the 1938 assessments. Some of his friends, however, report that the higher taxes resulting from the availability of the 1935 returns have brought complaints to Mr. Horner's desk from all over Cook county.

Reason Given for Complaints.

Explaining the reasons for the complaints, the governor's friends quote the assessor's own figures on the increase or decrease in assessments in 1937, as compared with 1936, on various classes of personal property. In all save one class—household furniture—the 1937 assessment, which was based on federal tax returns, was higher.

For example, the 1936 assessment on taxable stocks and bonds was $64,610,061; for 1937 it leaped to $191,623,312. Although this was the most disproportionate rise, the assessments on capital stock of Illinois corporations, net credits, office furniture and fixtures, machinery, equipment, merchandise, money, mortgages, and unclassified personal property all were substantially increased. The household furniture assessments fell from $22,053,276 for 1936 to $12,415,859 for 1937.

Seek Assurance of Secrecy.

Another complaint which it was said had been carried to the governor was that persons other than the assessor had, in some fashion, gotten access to the returns in distinct violation of the law. Mr. Horner is being urged, it was reported, to insist upon positive assurance that this would not happen again, should he decide to coöperate with Clark on the 1938 assessment.

One matter the assessor will discuss with the tax commission tomorrow afternoon is the effect of the $96,000,000 slice the board of tax appeals made in the 1937 total assessment of $780,496,637. More than half of the reduction affected the $283,000,000 of intangibles Clark placed on the rolls with the aid of the federal income returns.

BOARD UPHOLDS CLARK

By confirming $1,824,818 assessed valuation of intangible property owned here by so-called foreign [out-of-state] holding companies, the board of tax appeals yesterday decided an important point in favor of Assessor Clark. The board held, briefly, that securities and other intangibles owned by such companies operating in Illinois are taxable in the state.

Attorneys for some of the companies argued in vain that control of the property was exercised from some other city and that therefore it should not be subject to taxes in Cook county. John Battles, head of the personal property division of the assessor's office, pointed out that the state statute reads that the tax may be assessed on stocks, bonds and other intangibles "in transit to or from this state, or used, held, owned, or controled by persons residing within this state."

One Company Is Upheld.

Delaware holding companies and the assessments ruled upon were: Utilities Power and Light corporation, $1,612,904; Utilities Power and Light Securities company, $91,669; Casco Securities company, $29,415; and H. and M. Bond and Share company, $90,830. The Inland Power and Light corporation had a $199,094 assessment canceled on testimony that none of the securities is in the county.

The board took under advisement the appeal of the largest single 1937 assessment, $10,028,151 against the Standard Gas and Electric company. Attorneys said the company is under 77B receivership in Delaware.

Voters at Elgin Defeat Increase in Tax Rate

Elgin voters yesterday defeated by 2,456 to 2,188 a proposal to increase the corporate tax rate from 67 cents to 87½ cents on each $100 of assessed valuation. The higher rate would have increased the Elgin municipal revenue by about $40,000, permitting the payment of $175 minimum monthly salaries to police and firemen as stipulated by state law for cities of Elgin's size.

U. S. MUST BOOST INCOME TAXES, WARNS HARRISON

Senator Opposes Levy on Undivided Profits.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—A warning that the income tax base must be broadened if the administration continues its high spending policy was sounded today by Senator Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], chairman of the senate finance committee.

The present $2,500 exemption for married persons and $1,000 for single persons should be lowered to gain added millions in revenue and to force upon thousands who do not pay an income tax a realization that government spending directly affects them, Harrison said.

"I have come to the conclusion that if we are forced to continue an exceptional spending policy the income tax base should be broader, resulting in an increased tax consciousness upon the part of the people," he declared.

Committee Gets Revenue Act.

Harrison made the statement after his committee had received from the house the 1938 revenue act passed yesterday. The senate finance committee will begin consideration of the measure Monday.

Harrison came out flatly against the undistributed profits tax which is retained in modified form in the house version of the bill. He also said that the graduated capital gains tax should be replaced by a flat rate of approximately 15 per cent on all capital gains from sales of property held for more than one or two years.

The committee chairman expressed the opinion that some of the high surtax rates both on individual and corporate incomes should be reduced. He offered no hope that this would be accomplished at the present time.

Calls Profit Levy Failure.

"The undistributed profits tax, beautiful in theory, has not worked," Harrison declared. "Business does not like it and would prefer a flat rate. While the house retained only the skeleton of the undistributed profits tax, the remains will haunt business, and its complete removal and return to a sufficient flat corporation tax is preferable. It is simpler and more understandable."

Harrison said he would make an effort to strengthen section 102 of the present law, which imposes a penalty upon the unreasonable accumulation of reserves for the purpose of evading taxation. The department of justice has failed successfully to prosecute thus far under this section.

"If I interpret the sentiment of the senate correctly," he said, "it desires to do justice and give encouragement to business in every provision of the pending tax bill, within government revenue requirements. I know that is the sentiment of the finance committee.

"So far as I am concerned, whatever influence I may possess as chairman of the committee I shall exert toward raising the required revenue, removing some complicated provisions, and as far as possible restoring confidence to business."

15 SYPHILIS TEST STATIONS OPEN 2 MORE WEEKS

Because of an increasing demand for free and secret syphilis tests, fifteen neighborhood testing stations will be kept open for another two weeks, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said yesterday.

The decision was made at the conclusion of a five week program, during which 9,014 persons volunteered for tests at 27 designated stations. Of the 8,475 persons tested through Friday, 378 were found to be infected. Examinations of 244 doubtful tests are being repeated.

Following are the fifteen stations which will remain open and the times when tests may be taken:

MONDAY—811 South Kedzie and 4353 South State, both 9 to 1; 4647 North Clark, 12 to 5.

TUESDAY—Montrose and Western and 2009 Walnut, both 9 to 5.

WEDNESDAY—Hoyne and Wellington, 12 to 5; 27 East 31st and 6312 Wentworth, both 9 to 1.

THURSDAY—2401 South Kedzie, 8919 Commercial, both 9 to 5; 368 East 63d, 9 to 1.

FRIDAY—48 East 51st, 9 to 1.

SATURDAY—77th and Ellis, 8217 South Halsted, and 2411 West 55th, all 9 to 1.

The municipal social hygiene clinic set an all-time record last Tuesday in treating 1,845 persons in a day.

By agreement, Mrs. Byfield will receive $10,000 a year until she remarries. From this she will support her daughter, Gene, 7, who will remain for six weeks every summer with Mr. Byfield.

U. S. PRODUCERS FIGHT PERIL OF TARIF REVISION

Wide Scope of Reductions Arouses Protests.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—Upon completion of the pending and impending reciprocal tarif negotiations the Roosevelt administration will have accomplished the revision downward of virtually the entire American protective tarif.

Only recently has the full scope of the tarif reductions been brought home to American manufacturers, farmers and other producers. Alarmed by the prospects of removal or reduction of protection from competition with foreign commodities more cheaply produced abroad American producers are heading toward Washington for a mighty protest in the next two weeks.

Hearings Will Be Held.

On Monday, before the committee for reciprocity information, will begin the public hearings on the concessions of tarif rates on imports into the United States that the Roosevelt administration proposes to make to Great Britain and the British colonial empire in return for British concessions on American exports to those territories. On April 4 similar hearings will begin on proposed concessions by the United States in a supplementary reciprocal tarif agreement with Canada.

The concessions it is proposed to make to the British and the Canadians and the concessions already made in the seventeen reciprocal tarif treaties negotiated up to date affect, it is estimated, more than 90 per cent of the products covered by the existing tarif law.

Many Groups Affected.

In the negotiations with Great Britain alone virtually ever trade group covered by tarif law is affected. These trade groups are:

Chemicals, oils and paints; spirits, wines, and other beverages; earths, earthenware and glassware; cotton manufactures; metals and metal manufactures; flax, hemp, jute and manufactures; wood and wood manufactures; wool and wool manufactures; sugar, molasses and sugar manufactures; silk manufactures; tobacco and tobacco manufactures; papers and books; agricultural products and provisions; sundries; manufactures of rayon or other synthetic textiles.

Following the negotiations with Canada there are to be similar negotiations of trade pacts with Australia and the other British dominions.

Roosevelt Near Objective.

The Anglo-American tarif treaty is to be the capstone of the reciprocal tarif structure reared by the Roosevelt administration. It has been the supreme objective of the Roosevelt diplomacy because with such an agreement the revision of the American tarif would become virtually complete and without it the protective system would barely be nicked.

The British at first appeared to be hesitant and coy, but last year finally consented to bargain, an outstanding reason being the desire to promote American good will and coöperation in dealing with the threat of the dictatorships.

As in the case of the 17 existing reciprocal treaties the concessions in the prospective agreement with Britain will be generalized to other nations entitled to unconditional most favored nation treatment. That is, any tarif reduction we give Great Britain automatically will be given to any other nation that does not discriminate against our exports.

Hull Labors for Program.

The author of this virtually single handed feat of scaling down the American protective tarif is Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who has devoted a lifetime to warfare on the institution of protection. As representative from Tennessee and as senator he battled protection year in and year out.

Under the reciprocal tarif legislation the revision of duties was surrendered by congress to the executive. The reductions are made in secret negotiations and are not divulged until the treaty is concluded and made public.

Mr. Hull's contention is that his method is superior to the old one. Formerly our tarif rates were revised without reference to the tarif rates of other countries.

The extent to which American producers are affected by the proposed concessions to Great Britain is indicated by the figures for Illinois. In that state there are 204 types of industries. Only four of these are positively not affected. They are railroad repair shops and producers of cattle feeds, ice cream, and statuary. Of the 12,090 industrial establishments in Illinois not more than 400 can be listed as possibly not affected.

Hundreds Will Protest.

Several hundred individuals and agricultural, industrial, and labor organizations are scheduled to appear at the hearings beginning Monday in opposition to the proposed reductions of protective duties in the Anglo-American treaty.

Representative Leo E. Allen [R., Ill.] received today a delegation of Illinois manufacturers who are up in arms over the threatened reduction of protective duties.

"The proposed British trade agreement," said Mr. Allen, "will not only flood American markets with cheaply made foreign manufactured goods, close American indsutries by the thousands, place hundreds of thousands of American industrial workers on the relief rolls, but will reduce wages of every industrial worker in the United States.

"If the Hull reciprocity agreements with Great Britain become effective the Christmas shopper in Illinois cities will be carrying home hats, shoes, caps, hardware utensils, toys, etc., made by British workmen, while thousands of their neighbors who were formerly employed in Illinois industries and their children will have no reason to be merry. A good neighbor policy should begin at home.

Home Markets Destroyed.

"The British agreements promised a market for the Illinois corn farmer, but instead they will let down the floodgates to an avalanche of foreign oils and animal fats that are being used in producing lard and butter substitutes, thus destroying our home markets for lard and butter. Poultry, cider, vinegar and molasses are to have the tarif reduced as well as oats and oat products. What about our Illinois corn sirup and American oatmeal?"

YOUNG BANKER ADMITS KILLING BRIDE IN HOME

Shooting an Accident, He Says in Confession.

As the sherif was giving his resume of the oral confession, a band of high school students who had attended a basketball game between Peoria and Pekin High schools paraded past the jail, blowing on horns.

The noise attracted scores of men and women, who swarmed outside the jail, assuming the horns signalized a confession. Word was passed out of Crabb's story of the shooting, and soon spread throughout the city.

Attorney Brings Writ.

It was at this moment that J. M. Powers, one of the lawyers for the Crabb family, drew up to the jail, carrying the writ of habeas corpus. Sherif Goar admitted Powers and told him of the confession.

Powers was allowed to talk with young Crabb, as were the latter's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Crabb, and his brother, Dan, of Bloomington. Crabb was reported very tired and nervous. Attorney Powers later pointed out that Crabb's statement was only an oral one, but he emphasized that its entire meaning was that "the shooting was an accident." He said he did not know which one—Crabb or his wife—fired the shot.

The warant on which Crabb was seized at Delavan, 17 miles south of here, was issued on the demand of Glenn Collison of Champaign, father of Betty.

The arrest of young Crabb was dramatic. Debonair and casual, he had strolled away from the inquest room after giving his testimony. Sullivan and Sherif Goar approached him in an empty rear hall.

"I have a warant for your arrest," Sherif Goar said quietly. "Come along."

Crabb, his face ashen, was hurried into a car and brought to the jail. The inquest still was in progress and it was fifteen minutes before the Crabb family or townspeople in Delavan knew what had happened. Then an excited exodus toward Pekin began.

Demand Admittance to Jail.

Indignant over his son's arrest, Banker Crabb hurried here with the family attorneys. The group appeared at Sherif Goar's residence and rang the bell repeatedly.

Finally a young woman answered and Powers introduced himself.

"I am Mr. Powers," he told the woman, "and this is County Judge W. J. Reardon. We are attorneys for the Crabb family, and this is Mr. Crabb. We demand admittance to the jail to see our client. We demand to see Sherif Goar, and we are demanding an immediate preliminary hearing."

Denied admittance to the jail, Crabb and his attorneys sought vainly to find Circuit Judge Joseph Daily of Peoria to obtain a writ of habeas corpus for the release of James.

A crowd of 1,500 persons, mostly men, milled about the jail during the afternoon. As evening fell, Assistant Deputy Sherif Elmer Eller came out on the stoop.

"The Crabb boy," he announced, "is in here on a warant charging murder. Now please go."

Banker Crabb was the first to go, saying: "I'm just going to get some air." Police later cleared the grounds.

Open Verdict Returned.

Not until 3 p. m., two hours after the boy's arrest, did the coroner's jury finish its deliberations.

It returned a verdict that Betty came to her death from pulmonary hemorrhages caused by a gun shot wound in the right chest, received in a manner unknown. Further investigation was demanded in the jury finding.

As the inquest opened today it was apparent that few of the 1,100 residents of Delavan believed that Betty, who was married Jan. 22 to young Crabb, had committed suicide. The inquest room was crowded with spectators, for the Crabb family—the elder Crabb owns some 3,000 acres of rich farming land—is well known in this section of the state.

The strange death of the young bride in the home which she and her husband shared with his father and step-mother, who is 29 years old, had been the principal topic of conversation for twelve days.

The circumstances of her death were taken up again at the inquest today, during which attorneys for the Crabb family clashed time and again with Coroner Nelson Wright Jr. until Prosecutor Russell finally announced they could not object to his questions. Crabb, his father, and his step-mother stood on their constitutional rights and refused to answer many of the questions.

Husband Takes Stand.

Asked why she did not go to Betty's aid after she had been wounded, Mrs. Crabb replied that she had refrained from doing so because Betty's wounds were serious and that a doctor could do more than she.

Coroner Wright seemed persistent in his inquiries about her marriage last June to Crabb, who is 46 years old, but she declined to answer.

When James followed her to the stand it soon became evident that he, too, was standing strictly on his legal rights. He refused to testify to eating a lunch of milk and sandwiches the night his bride was killed and declined to tell whether it was his custom to eat late at night. He said he did not know who placed the gun between the headboard and mattress of Betty's bed, where it was found.

With that he sauntered from the room and into the arms of Sherif Goar, while his father took the stand. His testimony dwelt with lights, noises, the blaring of the radio, and why he had locked doors leading into his bedroom.

Sherif Goar, who was the first to testify, identified the revolver and described finding it in the Crabb home.

"Is it possible to take that gun and with your trigger finger shoot yourself?" Coroner Wright asked him.

"Well," Goar replied, "it would be impossible for me to point the gun at my right breast and pull the trigger."

"Suppose this gun were held in a position that you could shoot yourself, what would be the recoil?" the coroner asked.

Doctor Tells of Reflex.

"This is the largest size revolver made," answered Goar, and the recoil is severe. The recoil would be away from you."

Dr. Brink testified that if she had shot the gun her reflex action would have thrown it up and forward—instead of behind her head.

The last witness was Betty's father, who told the jury that his daughter had been in perfect health before her death.

The elder Crabb's first wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Crabb, from whom he was divorced in 1935, attended the inquest today. In 1931 she and Crabb were seized by robbers and locked in the bank vault while two men looted the bank of $7,000.

PROPOSES LIMIT ON POWER OF SIX ROOSEVELT AIDS

Offers Amendment to Bill on Reorganization.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—In a half serious and half jocular vein, Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.] today introduced an amendment to the government reorganization bill specifying the qualifications of the six new presidential secretaries proposed in the measure.

Mr. Roosevelt has requested that congress approve the six new $10,000 a year jobs in the interests of White House efficiency. The President now has three $10,000 a year secretaries, more than any other President ever employed. They are his son, James; Marvin McIntyre, and Stephen Early.

Senator Clark implied a fear in his amendment that the six secretaries might become assistant Presidents with the power of making decisions and issuing instructions.

No Power on Decisions.

The amendment, referring to the section authorizing the new positions, read:

"Such assistants shall be in addition to the present secretaries to the President, who deal with the public, with the congress, and with the press and the radio; such aids shall have no power to make decisions or issue instructions in their own right; they shall not be interposed between the President and the heads of his departments; they shall not be assistant Presidents in any sense; their functions shall be, when any matter is presented to the President for action affecting any part of the administrative work of the government, to assist the President in obtaining quickly and without delay all pertinent information possessed by any of the executive departments so as to guide him in making his responsible decisions."

Thus far, the amendment was serious enough and Senator Clark said he would support it on the senate floor with the argument that it was necessary in order to restrain the new secretaries in the performance of their duties.

Takes Dig at President.

The remainder of the amendment, however, was interpreted as a sly dig at the President. It used Mr. Roosevelt's own phrase when it required that the six secretaries shall have a passion for anonymity.

"They shall remain in the background, issue no orders, make no decisions, emit no public statements," the amendment concluded. "They shall be men in whom the President has personal confidence and whose character and attitude is such that they will not attempt to exercise power on their own account; they shall be possessed of high competence, great physical vigor and a passion for anonymity."

ELECTION BOARD APPOINTS 10,000 JUDGES, CLERKS

The board of election commissioners yesterday appointed 10,000 election judges and clerks for the April 12 primary. It will name 9,250 more officials this week. There were nearly 35,000 applicants for the jobs.

Meanwhile, the board offices in the city hall were thronged as voters hurried to register or change their addresses. The list of eligible voters was increased by 3,709 names before the office closed at 9 p. m., bringing registration from 3,852 precints in the city and in country towns controled by the board to 1,923,376. The total in November, 1936, was 1,806,000.

The deadline for registration is midnight tomorrow. Voters in the 527 suburban precincts under the jurisdiction of County Clerk Michael J. Flynn will have until Tuesday.

Canal Proposals

Routes and distances from New York to the west coast through the present Panama canal and by two proposed locations for a second canal. 1. By way of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec in Mexico, which Chicago Army and Navy club believes should be considered. 2. By Nicaraguan route. 3. Through present Panama canal.

Should the government further consider a second canal to connect east and west American coasts, it should investigate the advantages of a route across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec in southern Mexico, Brig. Gen. James A. Ryan, president of the Army and Navy club of Chicago, said yesterday.

Sailing distance from San Francisco to New York via the Panama canal is 5,230 miles. Gen. Ryan said this would be shortened to 4,752 miles by way of the Nicaraguan canal and cut to 3,730 miles via the Tehuantepec course. The latter canal, he added, could be more easily defended in wartime; it would cost less, and it would require fewer locks and provide more freedom from earthquake damage and repair.

He said such a route had been studied by the navy as early as 1871 and that there are voluminous reports on it now in navy archives.

BALLROOM SUED FOR $50,000 UNDER DRAMSHOP ACT

Owners and operators of the Merry Garden ballroom, 3136 Sheffield avenue, were sued for $50,000 damages under the dramshop act yesterday by Joseph Daniele, 22 years old, of 718 North May street, and his wife, Rose, who is 20. Defendants are the American National Bank and Trust company; Rice-Byfield, Inc.; Herbert Byfield and Harry Rice, the lessees; and Charles Zimmerman, operator of a bar concession. The suit charges that Daniele was beaten by three young men who had become intoxicated in the bar on Feb. 27. Daniele is still in a hospital with skull and jaw fractures. His assailants are scheduled to come to trial in Boys' court Tuesday.

FIRE ROUTS 20 FAMILIES.

An early morning blaze on the second floor of a six flat building at 4755 Langley avenue drove twenty colored families into the street yesterday.

5 FIREMEN DIE WHEN WALL OF STORE CAVES IN

Fifty Families and 500 Employes Flee.

Paterson, N. J., March 12.—[Special.]—Deputy Fire Chief James Sweeney and four other firemen were killed tonight when a wall caved in while they were searching the smoldering ruins of the Quackenbush company department store's warehouse which was ruined by a spectaculer fire of undetermined origin this afternoon. The other four firemen killed are Capt. John Davenport and Louis Rodesky, Mat O'Neil, and William Lynch.

Jumps from Second Floor.

Soon after the fire started at 2 p. m. an employé trapped in the warehouse suffered a broken leg when he jumped from a second floor window and a fireman was felled by smoke. Both were taken to the hospital.

Dense clouds of smoke arising from the building forced fifty families in the vicinity to leave their homes, shoppers to flee from the store, and a motion picture theatre audience to disperse, and damaged the store.

Sale Is in Progress.

Fire Chief Thomas L. Coyle estimated the damage at $250,000. Robert W. Pyke, president of the Quackenbush company, said that figure was conservative and added that in addition to the loss of the warehouse and its contents the smoke damage to the store proper might be almost 100 per cent.

When the fire started the concern was celebrating its fifty-third anniversary with a sale that attracted hundreds of shoppers, all of whom were forced to leave as well as the 500 employés in the store.

AFTER THIRD SOS CALL HE REALLY IS IN DISTRESS

There was a man in distress early yesterday just south of the Zion city limits. The police were called three times about it between 2 and 3 a. m.

The third call was traced to a tavern. There the police found Kermit Herrick, 24 years old, 2917 Gabriel avenue, Zion, spending his WPA pay check with lavish hilarity and finding it great fun to send distress calls to the police.

Yesterday afternoon Herrick was fined $50 and costs. His distress increased when he couldn't pay and went to jail.

THE LESSON OF 1917 AND 1938.

It will pay the American people at this time to recall the campaign for intervention in the world war. A conspicuous line taken by the propagandists is likely to have been forgotten, but it was important in its influence upon the decision finally accepted by the people.

Then as now the great majority of Americans had no disposition to go to war for anything short of the defense of the country. They had been exhorted virtually from the beginning of the conflict to take sides, to throw their weight into the scale against the central powers, to save democracy, to save civilization. There had never been in American history up to that time so skillful and widespread a propaganda to influence the nation in its foreign affairs. Nevertheless, except for minorities of the colonial minded, or sentimentalists and of people of racial ties with the allied nations, American opinion remained unmoved. It was so securely dominant as late as 1916 that Wilson was elected on the slogan, "He kept us out of war."

But events were carrying us nearer and nearer toward participation. The submarine campaign was winning more adherents to the war party, although the public in the main was not ready to accept it as decisive upon our policy. Then as now the mass of the people considered that the sacrifice of war ought not to be imposed upon them to insure a comparatively few Americans the privilege of travel or enterprise in regions where war was raging.

At this stage appeared the assurance from the interventionists that these sacrifices would not be so great as was assumed. Intervention, it was urged, would not require an American army in Europe. The navy would help to destroy the German submarines, but no American boys would have to die in France. It was to be a sort of token payment upon our alleged debt to democracy and civilization. The prestige of our vast power, our economic influence and moral weight would do the trick without the expenditure of a drop of American blood.

The moment the die was cast and we were committed to the conflict these comforting theories were blown away. At once we were told flatly that our new "associates" wanted men, as well as other things. Our prestige and supposed moral influence, our money and munitions were more than acceptable, but they had had them in large quantities without winning. What they wanted now was men and plenty of them. Before we got through with that contribution we had two million Americans in France and Flanders and over two million more conscripted to go as soon as possible. The rest of the story we know.

And now we have been told that it is our duty to quarantine warlike nations and bellicose adventurers. The measures of this quarantine are not specified. Certainly we are not and shall not be invited in crude terms to go abroad to fight and die. There is the new notion of sanctions. It was not devised in time for the interventionist campaign of 1917. But the old formulas will be working, a war without battle, a war of economic and financial pressure, a peaceful war.

This should be foolish indeed to be deceived again. Policing the world may sound attractive to ambitious politicians and would-be reformers of mankind. But it means fight or it means nothing. If we quarantine we shall make war and we shall have 1917 over again.

Also if we make commitments we shall underwrite the ambitions and interests of the nations whose strength we support or whose weakness we supply. If we make commitments to France and England we shall encourage intransigeance where it would be in our own interest to encourage moderation. We shall tighten their grip on the spoils of the world war and upon every advantage on which the demands of peace require compromise and accommodation. If this results, as it will result as we ought to know from our own experience, when our supposed coöperators in the noble quarantine of trouble makers have brought about another war we shall be in it, not to apply moral and economic pressure but to send another army of conscripts to fight on foreign soil for foreign ends.

That is the lesson of 1917, and the lesson of Versailles, and the lesson for 1938.

THE FIRST ROBIN (OFFICIAL).

The first robin may now be accepted as official. Early reports are sometimes received with skepticism, but the news is now authentic and reliable. The robin has arrived and if he runs into his customary luck, which is usually a foot of heavy March snow, he will be obliged for the favor of some soft bread crumbs. He probably doesn't care much for that diet, but when he bears a workable lawn by two or three weeks he'll take any handout that he can find, including the red barberries that have been carried over the winter.

The traditional and romantic standing of the robin as a harbinger survives the just claims of many other migrants who are much more typical of the illusive, filmy and vagrant character of spring itself. This red breasted thrush is almost as matter of fact and domesticated as a barnyard pigeon. The meadow lark, who will drop into the same snowdrifts about the same time as the robin, has all the qualities of a first-rate harbinger, with a little call which evokes the delicacy of white plum blossoms and shyness of anemones.

And before any of the migrants arrive the brilliant cardinal in the gray woods has tuned up his spring song and fills the early morning with it. If a neighborhood has been in luck it will have seen flocks of purple finches, a bird that is as friendly as the chickadee, and will have heard their light and pleasing calls. Even the bluejay has added a liquid note to his outgiving.

The early robin has a perfect right to be a glum, silent fellow when he first arrives. His house is not in order and he's in a way of camping out in the garage for several weeks. It will take a soft wind and a bright sun and the lengthening day to send him into the tree tops with a song of confidence. Although a factish sort of fellow he is the real spring bird, as the human observer will concede experiencing the response which tingles within him at the sight of the red breast and the alertly cocked head.

FOUR ANNIVERSARIES.

Fascist Italy celebrated its 15th anniversary late last year, making a lot of imperial high jinks in gratitude to Mussolini, who received the adulation graciously and threw his chin about in his best manner. Russia also celebrated the twentieth anniversary of the survival by the survivors of the Red purges and the perfection of the technique of the frameup. Germany came to its fifth anniversary of Fascist control under Hitler, and recently Mr. Roosevelt, having his own fifth anniversary, celebrated it by listening to the 15th Psalm and later, at his press conference, giving his views on who should dwell in the tabernacle.

Mr. Roosevelt, looking back over the five years, indicated that he hasn't found any reason to doubt the wisdom and success of the policies, enterprises and undertakings which have marked this period of what is sometimes called the Roosevelt revolution. The term is not distasteful to the occupant of the White House, who has merely added to it that it has been peaceable.

In the country outside of Washington the era has not been a happy one. It has been the hope of the country at large to escape from it. Even six months ago there were great expectations that people at last were leaving the time of their discontent and unhappiness behind. Unfortunately this hope has been disappointed. Several million people who were at work in the summer and looking forward with new confidence to their future are now added to the unemployed and again seeking public relief. New appropriations for the care of the idle and destitute are required and new additions are being made to the national debt, which is approaching a total of 38 billions.

The methods used by the government in the last five years have not added to the well being, comfort, or prosperity of the people, have not relieved their anxieties or given encouragement to the destitute. The period of experiment has been painfully long, the use of authority has been unstinted, and no scheme has been stopped by counting the cost of it. The nation's industry and productive processes, which have been remarkably persistent in keeping a stiff upper lip, have not given up the fight, but they are more perplexed than ever before and the evidences of a general national fear are everywhere apparent.

The injurious consequences of governmental interference in all the manifold private activities of the American people are generally recognized, but there is no disposition on the part of the government to desist or to remove the obstructions which stop recovery and prevent the escape from the new depression. It might be that if personal deprivations were visited immediately upon the responsible authorities of government when their schemes go wrong a corrective would be set to work. The political adventurist and reformist does not pay for his mistakes. He can say truthfully of the sinking ship that it does not belong to him.

When he has thrown three million men out of work he can eat just as heartily as if there had been no misfortune to other people.

JUST FOOLISHNESS.

[London, England, "Sphere."]

The United States contains 6 per cent of the world's area and 7 per cent of its population. It normally consumes 48 per cent of the world's coffee, 53 per cent of its tin, 56 per cent of its rubber, 21 per cent of its sugar, 72 per cent of its silk, 36 per cent of its coal, 42 per cent of its pig iron, 47 per cent of its copper and 69 per cent of its crude petroleum.

The United States operates 60 per cent of the world's telephone and telegraph facilities, owns 80 per cent of the motor cars in use, operates 33 per cent of the railroads. It produces 70 per cent of the oil, 60 per cent of the wheat and cotton, 50 per cent of the copper and pig iron and 40 per cent of the lead and coal output of the globe.

The United States possesses almost $11,000,000,000 in gold, or nearly half of the world's monetary metal. It has two-thirds of civilization's banking resources. The purchasing power of the population is greater than that of the 500,000,000 people in Europe and much larger than that of the more than a billion Asiatics.

Responsible leadership which cannot translate such a bulging economy into assured prosperity is destitute of capacity. But pompous statesmen, looking over the estate, solemnly declare that the methods by which it was created are all wrong, ought to be abandoned, must be discarded, that the time has come to substitute political management for individual initiative and supervision.

There's only one way to characterize that proposal—it is just damn foolishness.

EUROPE'S NEXT BATTLEFIELD?

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
EIGHTH ARTICLE.

TEPLICE-SANOV, Czechoslovakia.—Heiled and heel clicked out of the Sudeten Brown house, piloted by a blond husky, accompanied by an interpreter guide, with a young man in boots thrown in for symmetry, I set out from Prague to see how Czechoslovakia looks through German eyes.

Our road led north and west across the flats of central Bohemia to Karlovy Vary [still Karlsbad to my companions], the first halting point in this unique personally conducted tour, and one of the spots where the discontent of Czechoslovakia's German citizens bubbles up like the famous thermal springs which have soothed so many aristocratic gouts.

* * *

Less than an hour out of Prague you cross the language frontier, but neither the landscape nor the appearance of the villages tells you that you are passing from a Slav to a Teuton land. Under their film of snow you see the same neatly combed fields of wheat or sugar beets or hops, cultivated right up to the road by peasant landlords whose holdings are so small that every inch counts, but big enough to inspire painstaking and improvement. Peasants look the same and so do the villages, each with its baroque monuments commemorating the plague which swept over central Europe in the seventeenth century.

One difference, though:

"You can tell the language frontier by the age of the buildings," my guide remarked. "Whenever you see a lot of new ones, especially schools and pretentious public edifices, you know you are on the Czech side of the line."

* * *

The idea was to show that the German districts are treated as stepchildren by the government—one of the leitmotifs of German propaganda, and the main purpose of this personally conducted tour.

A little farther on a road construction job served to drive home the lesson. A Czech firm from Prague, employing German workmen from Czech parts of Bohemia, who spend their money at a Czech run canteen.

"So you see how the government creates public works in the German areas to relieve our unemployment problem," remarked the Comrade Doktor [followers of Konrad Henlein, the German leader in Czechoslovakia, always address one another as comrades, but my guide, having a university degree, was addressed by the other member of the party as "Comrade Doktor"].

Last stop on the day's run before returning to Karlsbad for the night was Elbogen, a quaint town which Goethe cherished, now heavily industrialized, and, what is worse, exploited as a propaganda feature by the party.

The attraction was a German hospital, a particularly interesting case of overcrowding, bad sanitation, inadequate and obsolete equipment, lack of light and air. My companions insisted on my doing the institution from top to bottom, including a sort of barn attached as an annex for infectious cases. One room in this barn was packed with cases of scarlet fever, which this winter has attained epidemic proportions in the Sudeten land—due to malnutrition, according to the Henleiners.

* * *

On discovering that I had never had scarlet fever the young doctor who was doing the honors advised skipping this feature, but from what I already had seen I was prepared to take his word for it that they had put three or four children in a bed for lack of space.

Next morning being Sunday, we were treated to a curious sight as we wound our way out of Karlsbad, heading down the valley of the Eger. About every half mile along the road were patrols of young boys and girls brandishing tin cans in the faces of passing motorists, inviting contributions to the party's charitable funds.

We contributed our mite, collecting various pins, stickers, and badges so as to have free sailing the rest of the day, but every time we showed our assortment at one of the roadside stickups the banditti good humoredly produced some new local gadget in order to complete our collection.

All this obviously was modeled on the Nazi winter help collections, but if anything it was more thoroughly organized. It was easy to see what marvelous political propaganda this made for Henlein. It emphasized the miserableness of the German population, glorified the benevolence of the party, and by implication condemned the Czech government for making all this necessary.

* * *

Sometimes the charity propaganda is less subtle. Last year, for instance, they sold little painted wooden cocks to dangle from your buttonhole in order to help the home craftsmen in the mountains who make the famous toys known to children the world over. The police banned these trinkets on the grounds it was a political stunt disguised as charity. Reason: the trinket was a little cock [Hahn-lein].

The party then called in all these gadgets, removed the cock's comb, doctored the tail a bit, and converted him into a little duck, which won popular favor. It made the Czechs furious, but they couldn't do anything about it.

This year one of the trinkets which are being sold to aid Santa's artisans was a loutish peasant figure carrying a huge club. I have a kind of vague idea that this may have been a reference to the Teplitz riots, in which some party members were massaged a bit with police clubs. The Czechs apparently haven't discovered this allusion yet, however.

All this gives one an idea of the plans on which the political war between the Henlein party and the Czechoslovak state is being fought. Another example which fits in here: one of the favorite propaganda stories of the Henlein followers is about the German railway worker who was deprived of his pension by the state because he named his son Horst Wenzel, which may or may not have been a naive tribute to the Czech St. Wenceslaus [or Wenzel].

Now a glimpse at the conditions which serve as pretexts for this political philanthropy. Stopping on the outskirts of fashionable Karlsbad, we entered an industrial wasteland where, among abandoned glass factories or on their razed sites, some 400 unemployed had built themselves wooden shacks and barracks and were living there with their families. It reminded me of the Paris zone or slum areas at home, only these were cleaner. Pathetic efforts had been made to give these hovels a homelike appearance.

We talked to some of the squatters, who appeared to be all enthusiastic party members. They all had the same story—out of work, sometimes for more than five years, and the state relief was inadequate. Most of them were on the dole, but an important minority were not. Czechoslovakia is on the Ghent system, whereby unemployment doles are paid out by the unions from funds contributed by the workers, employers, and the state.

* * *

The catch in this system, from the viewpoint of the unemployed, is that you have to belong to a union to collect and you can't join a union unless you have a job. There are always a certain number of derelicts in any country where the Ghent system is followed, but the percentage is higher in Czechoslovakia for a political reason. When the Nazi labor unions were dissolved in 1934 the members who had jobs immediately joined other German unions, but those who were already on relief were not accepted.

When I described these conditions to Czech officials they explained that there was not sufficient money to do more and offered to show me Czech districts just as miserable as the German ones I had seen. Altogether my impression was that the Henlein charge of racial discrimination in social relief work was tendencious, or at least grossly exaggerated.

THIS EXERCISE BUSINESS.

I WAS holding forth at my very best gait, trying to convince a group of pudgy-stomached chaps at the lunch table that each and all should take a little more exercise than walking from the front door to the car and from the car to the elevator.

"You will all develop fatty hearts, if you haven't already," I maintained, after citing as a horrible example a "late" comrade whose widow had just sailed for Europe.

"I don't go much for this athletic business," remarked the banker. "Might get a glass arm or a tennis elbow and then where'd I be? Stuck in a hospital for weeks and weeks with a tin-pan radio, sickening smells, and the sound of crashing trays waking me at night."

"Went down to that physical culture club once," the lawyer said. "Put me to skipping rope—200 times the first crack out of the box. Like to died—heart thumped for nearly a month. Every time I see a kid with a jumping rope I want to have him arrested and held incommunicado until I get his parents on the phone and tell them of my dreadful experience."

"I took to swimming," another declared. "The instructor in aquatics told me to take a shower, put on a pair of trunks, and dive in. When I came up—puffing like a porpoise—I couldn't see a thing. Thought I was blind for a minute, then one eye cleared a bit, and I made a grab for my glasses. Just then I spied my wrist watch—a present from the boys at the office. Had to send to Geneva for new parts. Cost more than a new clock, but I'd had my exercise."

That was almost too much—so, turning to another, I inquired: "Bill, I know you do something. Don't you walk across country with your dog, or ride horseback?"

"No! Sorry, but I don't. I haven't since I came off the floor at the grain exchange. Then, of course, one had to jump about a bit. No! I play bridge with the neighbors and take on an occasional game of billiards, but even that is becoming too strenuous. Doctor says I must take care of the old ticker, you know."

By this time I was desperate—so I faced the only sickly appearing chap in the crowd—a business analyst who pried into ailing industries and gave them oxygen [for a goodly fee]. He was pale, with a grayish cast of countenance, and weighed about 105. I noticed too that his hands trembled.

"How about you, Chester? You surely need exercise—out of doors at that."

I can still see his eyes as they lighted up.

"Yes, I indulge; always have. It's a religion with me. I have a regular routine and go through with it in jig-time. Rise at daybreak; then 20 minutes of calisthenics in my room. Take a shower, followed by a rub-down, don shorts, dash down the backstairs, and away on a ten minute dogtrot, up and down through the alleys."

I gasped. "In this weather?"

"Sure," he continued. "Crisp, cool air is so invigorating, you know. Then breakfast—and what a meal—three stacks of buckwheats and sausage cakes and coffee! En route to the station I take plenty of time—swinging my arms and gulping ozone. In the office I have a rowing machine and a set of dumbbells and about once an hour I have five minutes of relaxation with each."

"Anybody going my way? No! Well, I'll toddle."

He rose creakily, gave a sepulchral cough or two, and hitched slowly toward the doorway.

With that the luncheon party broke up. The grain merchant turned to me with a semi-malicious grin. "Thanks, doctor, for your fine talk on exercise. Seems to have done Chester an awful lot of good."

Of course, I took the joke in good part; I had to. The next time those fellows try to inveigle me into talking shop I will be dumb. After all, perhaps, there is some truth in what they said.

ANESTHETICS FOR TEETH.

Mrs. L. K. writes: Some time ago I heard of having teeth extracted under an anesthetic. It does not seem clear to me that there can be such a thing as an anesthetic for the extraction of teeth, as I do not see how bleeding can be stopped while the person is unconscious. I have eight infected teeth which should be taken out immediately.

REPLY.

Dentists have learned to use local anesthetics with real skill and hemorrhages can be controled by proper means, whether the patient is awake or asleep. If you are in the hands of a competent dentist you need have no concern. Let him choose the type of anesthetic to fit your case. It is inadvisable to have a large number of teeth removed at one time.

X-RAY STUDY URGED.

E. K. writes: Is there some way to stimulate growth of the lower jawbone in a 10 year old child? In this case the jaw does not seem to be developing with the rest of the body. It appears too small and the teeth are crowded. We are advised against having certain teeth removed at this time as it is hoped that the jaw may grow later. Do you agree with this opinion?

REPLY.

There is no remedy for bone growth which will affect the jaw alone. The trouble probably is endocrine—possibly the pituitary. Careful X-ray studies are advised. A skilled oral surgeon should be consulted.

BRAIN TUBERCULOSIS.

M. C. writes: What causes tubercular meningitis?

REPLY.

Tubercle bacilli which have gained access to the meninges [coverings of the brain]. The disease is rarely primary, but may follow tuberculosis elsewhere in the body.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Attacks on British local authorities and on the national government for slowness to do anything about protecting the public against air attack are multiplying.

It is generally agreed among military men here that there is likely to be little warning, if any at all, when the next war starts. For many months past the newspapers have been full of public men's utterances on the need for protection against air raids.

On every hand air raid precautions, conveniently abbreviated to "A. R. P." are a favorite topic. There has been talk of the gas masks the government is providing, of bombproof shelters to be built in the back yard, and of the relative danger of gas as against high explosive. But now it is gradually dawning on the people that all they know is what they read in the newspapers.

It was stated recently in the house of commons that the government now had 26,000,000 of its "canned" gas masks, which are put up in airtight containers to keep them in good condition.

But before the first flush of pleasure had died it occurred to somebody that there are some 47,000,000 people in the British Isles, and that 26,000,000 gas masks would not go around unless they took turns.

On top of that, the masks are not in the hands of the public. On the grounds that the public would not take proper care of them if it had them the authorities are keeping them in storehouses, known only to them, for distribution when needed. How they will know in time to distribute them before the prospective wearers have been gassed they have not revealed.

A booklet to tell householders just what to do to protect their houses as far as possible and how to protect themselves is being prepared by the government. For a year and a half it has been announced periodically that the book was about to be distributed to all who wanted it, but it still is not available; and the government has just announced it will be given only to officials. The date of publication has not been announced.

The London Evening Standard recently conducted a survey in which it asked its readers to tell of any difficulties they might have had in obtaining air raid instructions. It received "large numbers" of letters, it was reported, showing that "large numbers of people still have not the slightest idea what they should do in the event of a raid."

Private firms have put on the market an outfit consisting of a foam pump, a bucket of sand, and a shovel; but it has not been officially approved yet as fire-fighting apparatus in case of a raid, and no officially approved outfit is available.

The cause of all the chaos is that each "local authority" is left to settle its own system of instruction and organization, and most of them have just not gotten around to it. Inquiries sent to town clerks have in many cases brought the reply that the town had not yet made any arrangements.

The British may well hope the dire predictions of their own aviation experts are not true—for more than one of them has said Britain will lose the next war at home before it gets well started, through lack of proper protection against air raids. This, they have predicted, can break civilian morale and cause collapse of the services.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

PREPARATION OF WILL.

Villa Park, Ill., March 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In making my will I have appointed my two sons as [1] administrators. One son is a resident of Illinois [2] the other a resident of South Dakota. I am a resident of Iowa.

3. May these parties act as administrators in Iowa? I have recently heard that in [4] some states a nonresident may not act as an administrator. C. K.

1. Executors is the proper word to describe personal representatives named in a will. Your misuse of the word indicates that you may have made other mistakes which would make it advisable to go over the will with an attorney.
2. The nonresident would not be eligible under Illinois law.
3. No, neither of them would be eligible there.
4. Correct.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BANKRUPTCY.

Joliet, Ill., March 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Recently I went through bankruptcy and I am now advised my one-sixth interest in a joint tenancy deed on property will be sold at auction. Please advise in the event this interest is sold [1] can I claim $400 exemption? I am divorced but paying alimony for the support of my former wife and daughter.

2. Will this have any bearing on getting the $400 exemption? E. L.

1. The $400 is the personal property exemption and would not apply as to real estate. If the real estate is occupied as a homestead there is a $1,000 exemption. Since the purchaser at the bankrupt sale could not acquire a salable title without partition proceedings, it seems probable that he would be willing to settle at a reasonable figure.
2. See 1. If you employed an attorney in the bankruptcy proceedings he is in a better position to advise you than we are.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ESTATE PROPERTY.

Gary, Ind., March 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Do heirs collect rent and take possession immediately, or wait until estate is closed?

2. Are back taxes paid out of estate or by party property is left to?
3. What is the Torrens act?
4. Can party from Illinois appraise Indiana property?
5. Does administrator transfer property or is it done by heir? G. R.

1. The executor or administrator does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate. If the estate is solvent we see no reason why the heirs should not collect the rent from the start.
2. If there is a will, we cannot advise without knowing the wording.
3. It is a statute under which a county official issues certificates as to the ownership of real estate.
4. Depends on the facts.
5. In general, an administrator would have no authority to convey real estate unless the conveyance is necessary to pay debts.

SCHEMO.

Chicago, March 8.—In these days when the trend is to greater speed in travel and more and more time and labor saving devices, why doesn't some one try his hand at shortening up and speeding business correspondence. For instance, in place of saying: "We are pleased to acknowledge your letter of the 12th inst., and in reply are glad to quote you the following prices," let us say "RESPONDO 12 QUOTO." Then the letter in place of continuing with "Hoping to be favored with your order or your further inquiries," you could write the simple word "HOPO." Here in three or four short words a whole letter is written, the equivalent of 50 or 100 words.

Incidentally, the writer needs a hundred thousand dollars, and for this sum will write out a set of 200 words which would cover everything needed in the way of business correspondence, love letters, or novels. PERCY GRAHAM.

JANITORS' PAY.

Chicago, March 6.—Gust Malenberg's excuse for the janitors' wages is all bunk. First he claims he works from 5:30 to 10, which is a big joke. The janitor gets up at 5:30, shakes up the fire, and goes back to bed until 8:30. By noon he is through if he wants to be, except putting on coal two or three times, depending on the weather. He can start work five minutes after he is up and be sitting in his rocking chair five minutes after he is finished. He does not have to go miles to his work. He has the best vacation of any one in the whole United States, except bankers. In the summer he never has to work more than three hours and often only two. If he has a 36 flat building he gets $200 or over a month with a flat, gas, and electricity free. At what other job could he get that pay all the year? That is why they are willing to pay $212 to join the union. A janitor can put one-half his wages in the bank at interest, while the owners have not been getting much on their money for five years. W. J. J.

THEY'RE AFRAID OF SNAKE EGGS.

Chicago, March 8.—This morning I was notified by mail from the postoffice that a two ounce package of shamrocks was found moving through the mails in violation of the plant quarantine act and has been returned to the country of origin.

Having in mind the enormous amount of agricultural products which entered this country during the year just past, to the serious detriment of the farmer, the deportation of the shamrock seems ridiculous.

I would suggest that Mr. Wallace and Mr. Farley direct their guns where the game is so congested that it becomes a jeopardy and permit the dear little shamrock to continue on its way to the buttonhole. STEPHEN MACKEY.

MR. BARUCH'S TESTIMONY.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—How come that Barney Baruch gets all this free publicity for sounding off on something that a few millions of us have known and been talking about since the summer of 1933?

Did McNutt's premature hat shying prick Barney into getting his own bowler into the presidential ring as he bounces off the administration band wagon to the accompaniment of bass, trap, and kettle drums, cymbals, triangles, and other assorted percussion instruments—well, anyway, a loud noise? JUST CURIOUS.

THE DENTAL MEETING.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—I wish to express the official appreciation of the Chicago Dental society for the splendid coöperation in printing news of the activities of the recent midwinter meeting. I think the intelligent and understanding stories written by members of your staf did much to advance the cause of dentistry in the interests of the public and of the profession. HAROLD HILLENBRAND, Chairman, Press Committee.

THE MIDDLE BRACKETS.

Chicago, March 8.—Those in the low income groups needn't worry; they can find a place in the modern government housing projects at a very reasonable rental. The rich, of course, have no worry at any time concerning this problem. But those of us in the middle income group have a major problem on our hands.

Despite a recession that is assuming major proportions the landlord, with traditional greed and indifference, is again boosting rents. The rental increases this year, on top of those of last year, in many cases reach the rent levels of predepression days. The landlord is due for a rude awakening this year. He will find that people will be forced to resort to the same expedients as during depression days. A VICTIM.

FOR FAIR PLAY.

Chicago, March 8.—According to an article in today's TRIBUNE the Japanese minister of war is urging that the 1940 Olympics be canceled.

Maybe it's just as well because in their present contest with China the referees aren't yet on the field, the starting gun has not been fired, and officially the game of war isn't being played. Just read the papers though.

Wouldn't it be the same in any other contest? Why wait for an official opening? Maybe they are already breaking records and setting up new marks. They don't seem to bother with international law. Why should they bother with fair rules and sportsmanship such as are a necessity in games of sport?

Let's stage the Olympics in Little America; there are no bombings there, and no people killed in a war that hasn't yet been declared. JAMES E. MILTON.

ITEM FOR THE SUPERSTITIOUS.

Rockford, Ill., March 7.—Beginning with 1840, every man elected to the presidency of the United States in a year ending in zero died in office. In other words, the President elected in 1840 and the one elected every 20th year thereafter failed to complete his term of office, as appears in the following table:

1840 William H. Harrison.
1860 Abraham Lincoln.
1880 James A. Garfield.
1900 William McKinley.
1920 Warren G. Harding.

J. J. FRANK.

DOES ANYBODY KNOW?

Chicago, March 5.—I would like to know why the walls surrounding the Holstein swimming pool are continually being removed and then replaced.

It would certainly be more advantageous to remove the benches located directly in front of the pool. In warmer weather these benches are occupied by gangs of boys who make this particular spot their gambling headquarters. On several occasions I have noticed tramps sitting on the benches annoying some passerby. MRS. H. KRUBAC.

THE MORE ABUNDANT LIFE.

Chicago, March 8.—What are people like us supposed to do? I am a widowed mother on relief. My rent isn't paid. I must get out, but where? I have no relatives, no one to go to. The landlord says an unemployed man might get a job and pay him some day but there is no hopes for us. If a widow is so much lower than an unemployed man she is entitled to more help. DESPERATE.

FOR CLEANLINESS.

Chicago, March 8.—A former resident of Chicago here on a visit when asked how she liked being back in Chicago, said with a wry face, "It's so dirty, I'll be glad to get home" [Denver]. Why can't our streets be flushed once a week and the garbage container law be enforced? AY JAY CEE.

ON OUR WAY.

Chicago, March 7.—All this country needs now is a President named McNutt! ISIE.

GIRL SKATER, 16, KILLED BY AUTO; SEIZE 'WITNESS'

Driver's Story Doubted and He Confesses.

Helen Szlonzak, 16 years old, 5347 School street, was struck and killed by an automobile last night as she was roller skating in Central avenue at Berenice avenue. The case was reported as a hit and run killing, and when Jefferson Park police arrived John P. Murray, 32 years old, 4209 Washington boulevard, volunteered himself as a witness.

Murray described in detail the car that struck the girl. Police noticed he was nervous, and took him to the station. Early today he admitted he was the driver and that no other car was involved.

Killed by Driverless Car.

Injuries suffered when he was struck by a driverless automobile caused the death of Max Nastali, 48 years old, 5620 Leland avenue, in the Swedish Covenant hospital yesterday. Nastali and Robert Baxter, 16 years old, 5632 Leland avenue, were crossing the street at Central and Higgins avenues Friday night when they were both struck by the car, owned by Eric Tinke, 23 years old, 3612 McLean avenue. Tinke had been pushing the car after it stalled. The machine was in gear, and suddenly spurted ahead under its own power.

Pedestrian Is Killed.

Anton Zelinski, 75 years old, 4508 Schubert avenue, was fatally injured by an automobile in front of 4450 Diversey avenue last night. He was walking across the street at the time. Frederick H. Schottler, 52 years old, 4904 Wilson avenue, the driver, said the accident was unavoidable.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 178 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county. Of these 142 were killed in the city, where 3,190 were injured in the same period.

POLICEWOMAN SEIZES TOY GUN BANDIT, WHO CONFESSES 4 HOLDUPS

Policewoman Helen Bowden of the detective bureau last night arrested a toy gun bandit who later confessed four robberies. He is Nate Mogel, 27 years old, who has no permanent address. His arrest was effected by Mrs. Louise Yount, owner of a delicatessen at 1143 Loyola avenue. On Feb. 17 she was held up and robbed of $12. Last night she saw Mogel standing across the street from her store. She called Policewoman Bowden, who lives at 1122 Loyola avenue. The policewoman seized Mogel and the toy gun was found on him. He confessed the robbery of Mrs. Yount, among others.

DEMOCRATS HAVE A FIRE.

Damage of $25 was done last night by a small fire in the quarters of the Democratic organization of Oak Park, 745 Madison street, Oak Park.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED TO HEAD OF DEFUNCT BANK

Rock Island, Ill., March 12.—[Special.]—Melvin S. Ackles, former president of the dissolved National Union Loan society, which had offices in Moline prior to its dissolution last December, today was held to the grand jury on charges of embezzlement and conspiracy.

It is charged Ackles misappropriated $50,000 of investors' money and turned assets of the concern over to the Mid America company. The Securities and Exchange commission at Washington, D. C., is making an investigation of the case.

Thomas H. Ackles, son of the former president of the society, also was held to the grand jury on a conspiracy charge. The younger Ackles was treasurer of the dissolved investment firm, which dealt in chattel mortgages and real estate. H. L. Howard of Oak Park, Ill., former secretary of the firm, also is under bond on a conspiracy charge.

KIDNAPER GETS 25 YEAR TERM IN U. S. PRISON

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 12.—[Special.]—John Wesley Johns, 35 years old, captured in a Chicago apartment Nov. 6 after he had shot and wounded himself when trapped by department of justice agents and police, was sentenced in Grand Rapids federal District court today to twenty-five years in Leavenworth penitentiary on his plea of guilty to violation of the Lindbergh law. After a gun fight on Aug. 6, 1936, with Kalamazoo police in which his companion, Theodore Bergstedt of South Bend, Ind., was killed and Capt. Dee Williams was wounded, Johns kidnaped Bernard Marthen of Kalamazoo in the latter's automobile and forced Marthen to drive him to Blue Island, Ill.

URGES PROGRAM TO CLEAR RIVERS IN ILLINOIS AREA

Washington, D. C., March 12.—(AP)—The national resources committee believes the abatement of pollution in the Illinois river area is one of the outstanding needs there. This was disclosed in a revision of the committee's 1937 report, sent to President Roosevelt, who in turn sent it to congress.

The report recommended prompt construction of flood control works already authorized by congress, including levee setbacks and floodway improvements in the lower Illinois, Baum's levee on Kankakee river, and channel clearings in levees on the Sangamon river and its tributaries.

The report said the principal problems with regard to the Kaskaskia-Big Muddy area "are those of pollution, especially from mine wastes; water supplies from population and industry, and flood control."

"Recreational and wild life facilities should be developed," it added.

"WHY I'M SO CRAZY ABOUT MY NEW DODGE" BY Sonja Henie

STAR OF 20TH CENTURY-FOX "HAPPY LANDING"

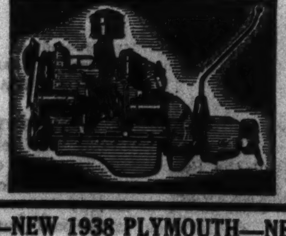
"I GO FOR ACTION!"

"I GO for action!" says Miss Henie, "That's why I'm so delighted with my new Dodge! As you would say it...it is so 'fast on its feet' in traffic, and you almost seem to float when you're gliding over the open road. And it's so marvelously easy to handle, too!"

Thank you, Sonja Henie...that's magnificent praise from the Queen of Action—the girl whose grace and ease have thrilled more millions than any other sports performer who ever lived.

And the new Dodge? Well, there's no better way to describe it than to say, "it's a Sonja Henie on wheels!" Yes, sir...just five minutes in the driver's seat tells you that. For you've never swung the wheel of a car that responds to your will so alertly. And "alert" is the word. For that's how easily this new Dodge handles...how deftly it turns ...how eagerly it answers to the gentle urge of your fingers.

Did you say durability? Economy? They're both here! For under the hood of this streamlined beauty purrs a giant of velvet power! Battleship ruggedness in silken wraps! A money-saving powerhouse which owners everywhere say delivers from 18 to 24 miles to the gallon of gasoline!



DYNAMITE IN KID GLOVES!—The Dodge Red Ram patented Floating Power Engine—the heart of the greatest car performance your money can buy!

AND NOW LET'S TALK PRICE!

Don't let all these great Dodge advantages scare you a bit about price. In fact, owners say Dodge is the best-priced car in America. So if you're thinking of paying more money for a car, remember this: Dodge actually costs far less than some cars that do not give you as much. Or if you think your purse-limit is one of the smallest cars, forget it. Dodge is priced so close to the low-priced cars you'll hardly notice the difference!

Get your Dodge dealer on the phone right now. He will give you all the facts and figures. Both you and your pocketbook are in for the surprise of your lives!

THE SECRET OF DODGE DEPENDABILITY

Have you ever wondered why Dodge cars have such a great reputation for dependability, ruggedness and long life? The answer lies in the fact that for years Dodge has deliberately engineered and built its cars not only for the first owner, but for the second, third and even fourth owners! In fact, records show that Dodge owners who buy new Dodge cars every year or two years use only a fraction of the total mileage built into them! That's just one reason why 142,922 new car buyers have switched from other cars to Dodge in the past year. And that's also why those who really know used car values are saying the Dodge used cars offered by Dodge dealers are the finest buys on the market!

CHINESE RETAKE 2 TOWNS; CLAIM ATTACK AVERTED

Deny Japs Have Invaded Reds' Stronghold.

SHANGHAI, March 13.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Chinese military officials said today they had averted a threatened Japanese drive into Shensi province, China's communist stronghold, by recapturing two important towns on the Yellow river.

One of these was Hoku, from which the Japanese reported yesterday they had started a fanwise move across the northern end of Shensi. The other was nearby Paoteh.

The Chinese insisted the Japanese had not gained a foothold in Shensi province and said a Japanese attempt to cross the Yellow river and enter the province at Hancheng had been repulsed. Hancheng is about 75 miles north of the river's "big bend" where the Japanese were trying to cross and cut the Lunghai railway, China's east-west "lifeline."

Guerrilla Troops Battle Gunboat.

Near the "big bend," the Japanese continued to shell Tungkwan, a city on the Lunghai railway and gateway to southern Shensi. They also bombarded Wensiang, a short distance to the east on the south bank of the river.

A battle between Chinese guerrilla troops and a Japanese gunboat was reported at Hohsien, Yangtze river town near where the United States gunboat Panay was bombed and sunk by Japanese in December. Japanese officials said their troops captured 700 Chinese and took 20 junks loaded with 40,000 bags of salt.

Japs Seek to Rule Foreigners.

Japanese military authorities again raised the controversial question of foreign territorial rights in China, claiming jurisdiction over all persons in Chinese territory under Japanese occupation. The army issued a warning against the transfer of Chinese owned property to foreigners.

Army authorities said such transfers interfered with operations of Japanese armed forces and would be punished to the "full severity of military codes," including death, imprisonment, and deportation.

U. S. Cruiser Launched

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
The 10,000 ton U. S. S. Phoenix as it slid into the Delaware river at Camden, N. J., yesterday.

Camden, N. J., March 12.—[Special.]—The 10,000 ton cruiser Phoenix was launched in the Delaware river here today after christening ceremonies in which Mrs. Dorothea K. Noonan of Arlington Heights, Mass., broke the bottle of champaigne. Gov. R. C. Stanford of Arizona chose Mrs. Noonan to be sponsor of the ship because she is the daughter of Commander Harlow Trask Kays, retired, of Arizona.

The U. S. S. Phoenix, third naval vessel to bear the name, will be completed and put into service in 1939. The vessel was authorized by congress in 1929. The first Phoenix was a small survey schooner and the second was a sailing ship of 440 tons bought at the beginning of the civil war and sunk a few months later in an attempt to block a Confederate port.

Women Voters to Convene in Winnetka May 9 to 11

Mrs. George G. Bogart, president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, sent word yesterday to the fifty local leagues in the state that the seventeenth annual convention will be held in the community house in Winnetka from May 9 to 11.

FLEET WILL SAIL TOMORROW FOR PACIFIC GAMES

San Pedro, Cal., March 12.—(AP)—Tons of provisions, ranging from cigarets to fresh vegetables, were rushed out to day to the gray warships of the United States fleet in preparation for the big annual maneuvers in the Pacific.

The more grim provisions for battle—shells, explosives, torpedoes, bombs—are already stowed away in the magazines. They will not be used in the maneuvers, but they are always stowed away to be in readiness.

Admiral Claude C. Bloch, commander-in-chief, takes the U. S. fleet out to sea Monday to put 150 ships and 500 warplanes through six weeks of hard work to determine the fighting fitness of the 58,600 officers and men aboard. Other ships at Hawaii will join the 105 leaving here.

Hundreds Quit Homes in New California Flood

Los Angeles, Cal., March 12.—[U. P.]—Hundreds of persons in this area were evacuated from their homes tonight as a new rainstorm, following in the wake of the flood which took 189 lives ten days ago, raised the river to the flood stage. Dikes broke in Orange county, driving 300 from their homes.

SPANISH REBELS PUSH FORWARD 24 MILES IN COASTLINE DRIVE

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], March 12.—(AP)—Spanish insurgents were reported tonight to have driven 24 miles into government territory toward the Mediterranean on the Aragon front.

Insurgent dispatches received here from Salamanca said the advancing army occupied Montalban, taking possession of the Utrillas coal mining station, one of the government's most important fuel supply bases.

The advices said the insurgent advance was made without resistance. The government troops were reported to have fallen back, leaving quantities of armament and supplies.

The insurgents also encircled the town of Quinto, between Belchite and Hijar, on the eastern drive to split the government held seaboard.

The northern insurgent army, operating in the vicinity of Fuente de Ebro, reported strong government resistance.

OPPOSE JUVENILE COURT TRIALS OF YOUTHS UP TO 21

Chief Justice, Prosecutor Favor Special Prison.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court and State's Attorney Courtney expressed strong opposition yesterday to proposals that the age limit for juveniles be increased from 17 to 21 years so that offenders as old as 21 would automatically fall in the jurisdiction of the Juvenile court.

The age extension was urged recently by several social leaders and by Judge John Guthnecht of the Municipal court before a criminal justice subcommittee of the Chicago Bar association. Grenville Beardsley, committee chairman, also is opposed to any change.

Why Plan Is Opposed.

If the definition of a juvenile were changed to include offenders as old as 21 so that these defendants could be tried in the Juvenile court rather than the Criminal court, the result would simply mear mixing teen aged criminals with truants and other minor offenders who properly belong in the Juvenile court, both Chief Justice Harrington and Mr. Courtney declared.

And raising the age limit would not bar the Criminal court from assuming jurisdiction in a case involving a minor charged with crime, veteran lawyers agreed yesterday. They held that even an act of the legislature could not deprive the Criminal court of that right and that, as is the case at present, the Criminal court could step in and take jurisdiction of the criminal at any time.

In support of this opinion the attorneys cited a Supreme court ruling in the case of Susie Lattimore [volume 362, Illinois Supreme court reports]. This opinion held that since the Criminal court was created by the constitution its jurisdiction cannot be changed except by constitutional amendement.

Another Extreme, Says Courtney.

State Attorney Courtney said that to attempt to handle teen age bandits in the same court with truants and other minor delinquents would be going to the opposite extreme.

"We have some tough customers among these youthful offenders," said the prosecutor. "It is heart rending to have to send them to the penitentiary, but it is also terrible when they commit murder as many of them do if not checked in time."

Judge Harrington agreed that the Criminal court was the place to try real criminals, irrespective of age. Both he and the prosecutor suggested that some intermediate institution should be established by the state to which youthful first offenders should be sent first instead of to the penitentiary.

Both Stabbers

Each is 16 years old. Each is under indictment for a stabbing murder. And Friday night, over a game of checkers, they met for the first time in the county jail, Warden Frank Sain learned yesterday.

The boys are Theodore Danielsen Jr., confessed killer of his mother, and Walter Pajanowski, 1905 South Kedzie avenue. Pajanowski is alleged to have stabbed a former school mate while intoxicated.

Danielsen said he wanted to meet the other boy under indictment for murder, the warden was told by a guard. After chatting with Pajanowski, the guard said, young Danielsen appeared to lose his reticence, and began mixing with other prisoners.

Donald went to the address given and was met by a man who gave him a $20 bill, and accepted $18.50 change. The man told him to take the groceries to another address, which turned out to be a vacant lot. Donald returned with the groceries, but no $20 bill. The man had picked his pocket after handing him the bill.

RACKETS GROW LIKE BEANSTALK IN N. Y. RELIEF

Graft Usually Dismissed with a Shrug.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 12.—[Special.]—With 1,500,000 persons, or 20 per cent of the city's population, receiving subsistence in some form and the number mounting daily, relief is New York's biggest business. It has become a vested interest, and with it have grown up a special line of rackets which have tapped the public till for unestimated millions of dollars.

Occasionally there is a prosecution, but in general the rackets either are dismissed with a shrug or are protected from public exposure by local officialdom. Investigations and scandals are bad political medicine.

Attitude of Indifference.

Indifference toward rackets and graft prevails in both the city's department of welfare—which is dispensing direct relief to some 600,000 men, women, and children—and the federal government's Works Progress Administration, which doles out support for a similar number through wages paid on made work projects.

Private charities indicate a more careful pruning to prevent waste and find the real needy. The latter, plus government reliefers added to those receiving old age, blind, and dependent children payments, make up the million and a half total receiving subsistence.

Exceed 500 Million Mark.

The cost of such a relief load is enormous. Last month WPA went over the 500 million dollar mark in expenditures and is spending at the rate of 13 million dollars a month. City relief expenses amount to 10 million a month and are going up. For the four year period from 1934 through 1937, the total contributions to relief by the federal, state, and city governments amounted to $1,201,555,243.

An example of the calloused attitude in New York's relief business was afforded a few days ago when an employé was caught stealing from the commodities distribution division of the department of welfare. The man was a member of the State, County, and Municipal Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate. The union defended him before the appeals board on the astonishing grounds that all employés did a little stealing and that the defendant really was discharged for union activities.

Obtain Repair Jobs.

While this man's appeal failed, the efforts of many others to benefit illegally from the relief business have been crowned with success. This is especially true of 200 property owners, politicians or those with political connections, who obtained permanent repairs and improvements on their ramshackle buildings through the WPA.

The work has been carried out in all five boroughs of the city and the cost of WPA labor and materials on these buildings exceeded $2,000,000. The improvements included new stairways, elevator shafts, windows and bricked up walls. Some of the work was done under the guise of preparing relief stations, but the buildings were used for that purpose only a short time, if at all.

The two million dollar political building racket was investigated by the WPA's field force, it was learned from a reliable source, and all the data was sent to Washington. There the information was pigeon holed by government officials and not a single prosecution was started.

Flies to Pershing

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Muriel Richards at airport in Atlanta on her flight from West Palm Beach, Fla., to Tucson, Ariz.

Tucson, Ariz., March 12.—(AP)—Miss Muriel Bache Richards, whose fiancé's father, Gen. John J. Pershing, is seriously ill here, refused to say today when she and Warren Pershing plan to marry.

Miss Richards, who arrivd last night by plane from Palm Beach, Fla., went for a short drive with her fiancé tonight, but spent most of the day secluded in the Pershing lodge of the Desert sanatorium.

Miss May Pershing, the general's sister, sa'd the family had no comment to make on her nephew's wedding plans. He and Miss Richards had planned to marry April 3 in New York City.

No bulletins were issued from the Pershing lodge today, but sanatorium officials indicated the general had a satisfactory day.

CARRIES LIQUOR TO WPA JOB; GETS 30 DAYS IN JAIL

County Judge Perry L. Persons of Lake county yesterday sentenced Otto Pytlik, of Diamond Lake, a WPA laborer ,to 30 days in jail for drunken driving. He also was ordered not to drive or drink for a year. Pytlik was arrested Tuesday in Mundelein after his automobile narrowly missed striking several school children. He admitted he had been drinking when he should have been working, and said he was bringing two bottles of liquor back to his fellow workers on a Libertyville project.

FRAUD CHARGED IN 3D OF RELIEF AT SPRINGFIELD

Investigators for IERC Push Their Survey.

BY WILL O'NEIL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 12.—[Special.]—An investigation by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission has disclosed that at least a third of the relief cases in Springfield and in nearby Clear Lake township are receiving relief through fraud or inefficiency, it was learned here today. The Clear Lake survey has been completed and the one here is nearing an end.

The investigators for the IERC [Illinois Emergency Relief commission] are prepared to recommend that about 40 per cent of the 158 cases on the Clear Lake rolls be closed, according to an informed source. In Springfield the investigators are expected to recommend that 35 per cent of 1,500 cases be closed.

Costs State $1,000,000 Month.

IERC investigations of ten other townships and one county in the state previously have disclosed that an average of nearly 40 per cent of the cases in these areas should not be receiving relief. Thomas E. Courtney of De Kalb, a member of the commission, charged recently that waste and inefficiency such as this is costing the state $1,000,000 a month.

The boundaries of Capital township are coextensive with those of the city of Springfield. A board composed of the county treasurer, county clerk, and five justices of the peace appointed Frank Schinneer, a former IERC employé, as overseer of the poor for the township.

"I invited the IERC to come in here and make the investigation," Schinneer said. "I'll be very glad to get any information they can give me about fraudulent cases on our rolls and any such cases they find will be closed immediately.

Personal Study of Report.

"Furthermore, I will make a personal study of their reports on fraud cases and will present those that appear susceptible of prosecution to the state's attorney. We have been handicapped by a lack of money for administrative purposes, but I am confident that the members of my staf have done the best they could under the circumstances."

A strange situation has been found in existence here in regard to the granting of relief to needy persons. The board which appointed Schinneer, and which has the power to remove him, also appointed Miss Edna Dorsey as supervisor of medical care for the indigent.

Schinneer has an office downtown, but Miss Dorsey has an office in St. John's hospital. Miss Dorsey has the power to grant medical aid to any one she considers qualified to receive it on the basis of need. The IERC investigators have discovered that relief in the form of medical aid was granted through Miss Dorsey's office to nearly 300 cases which had not been approved by Schinneer's office.

Medical Aid for Regular Cases.

Miss Dorsey also approves medical aid for regular cases on Schinneer's rolls. The overseer does not know how much of this has been granted in any month until he receives the hospital bill approved by Miss Dorsey.

During January, the last month for which figures are available, the total relief bill in this township was $45,482. Of this $8,763 represented the bill for hospitalization and $2,580 was paid for dispensary expenses. An examination of the January medical bill showed that $25.45 had been paid for one family for X-ray treatments, prescriptions, and dressings; $20.60 had been paid for prescriptions and dressings for a single woman; $12.40 was spent for prescriptions for a man, and $20 was spent for X-ray treatments of an individual.

Miss Dorsey approves the case before it is accepted by the hospital. In cases which have not been investigated through Schinneer's office she complies with the pauper law to the extent that the applicant is made to sign a pauper's oath, but no regular investigation of the case is made.

"I have no power over Miss Dorsey," Schinneer said. "The only time I know what she has done is when I receive the bill for hospital expenses."

Ray Stout, the county clerk, said that the board which appointed Miss Dorsey notified her some time ago that she was under the jurisdiction of Schinneer's office and that she must cease granting aid unless it was approved by Schinneer.

MEDICAL BOARD ACTS TO REVOKE FERNEL LICENSE

The medical board of the state department of registration and education recommended yesterday that the license of Dr. Jean Paul Fernel, plastic surgeon at 677 North Michigan avenue, be revoked.

The decision was based on a charge of gross malpractice preferred against Dr. Fernel by Miss May Morrill, 53 years old, of Worchester, Mass. She charged that her eyesight was injured and her face permanently scarred as a result of operations performed by Dr. Fernel last November.

Attorney Samuel Hoffman, representing Dr. Fernel, said he will file a motion for rehearing tomorrow with the state department, which is to act on the recommendation. The motion for rehearing, Hoffman said, will be on the ground that two of the board members, Dr. Arthur Geiger, chairman, and Dr. John R. Neal, were prejudiced because they were named in a conspiracy suit brought by Dr. Fernel in 1936 against the American Medical association.

TEMPLE OF JEHOL GIVES WAY TO SHOVELS OF WPA

Start Dismantling Fair Project Tomorrow.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Chicago's replica of the Golden Temple of Jehol, through which hundreds of thousands of visitors at A Century of Progress Exposition softly tread, visioning lama monks turning prayer wheels in worship of their Buddha, will give way this week to the shovels of WPA workers. The structure, one of three fair buildings still standing, will be dismantled to make way for landscaping of the site at 16th street and the lake. Work will start tomorrow.

Each of the structure's 28,000 pieces of wood will be carefully marked for reassembly, then packed in storage cases and removed to a warehouse. The work will cost at least $8,500, according to Donald Boothby, supervising architect, and probably will be completed within three months.

Only Known Reproduction.

The Lama temple is the only existing reproduction of the famous Golden pavilion of Jehol in northern China, summer worshiping place of the great Manchu emperors until the 1911 revolution ended the monarchy. The golden pavilion was built nearly 200 years ago. It is an accurate replica, piece for piece, from gilded copper roof to stone terraces.

Sven Hedin, Swedish scientist and explorer, had dreamed of bringing such a temple to the western world and in 1929 he obtained the necessary financial backing from his friend, Vincent Bendix, Chicago industrialist.

Arrangements were made for a faithful reproduction. Ivory carvers were engaged to make a model, 7 feet square and 6 feet high, scaled to show the placing of each piece of wood in the original. Chinese architects drew plans of the building and skilled craftsmen were employed to make all the pieces with the exception of the roof, the heavy beams, and the columns. The work was done in Peking and required several months after which the pieces were packed in 173 crates and shipped to Chicago.

A Jig-Saw Puzzle.

Chinese painters were brought here to make the final decorations on the exterior and the exquisite ceiling. A Chinese architect aided in erecting the temple on the fair grounds.

In the two years of the fair, 1,971,651 visitors paid a total of $217,709 to enter the temple, a privilege denied all Chinese except the royal family in the case of the original temple. The receipts went directly into the treasury of A Century of Progress, the building having been donated to the fair by the trustees, Mr. Bendix, Daniel H. Burnham, and Attorney Yates Cassels.

The articles for the interior of the building which now are in storage are nominally valued at about $300,000, but there are many things that literally are priceless, Mr. Burnham said.

Mr. Burnham said the temple and the collection will be kept in storage until some one volunteers to take it over, assemble it again, and maintain it as a museum. The trustees are negotiating with officials of the New York World's Fair, he said, and there is a possibility that it will be exhibited there.

RECOVERS SIGHT AS DOCTOR POISES OPERATION KNIFE

Sarasota, Fla., March 12.—(AP)—As a surgeon poised his knife for an emergency operation to prevent total blindness, sight was restored suddenly today to the right eye of a 62 year old woman. Dr. Halton was just about to sever the muscles when the glazed white pupil suddenly rolled and cleared. The pupil, invisible for nine years, dilated. Almost immediately Mrs. Davis saw light, Dr. Halton reported, and in ten minutes could distinguish both shadows and movement.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 12.—Friends of the late Ramsay MacDonald were surprised today to learn that the former Laborite prime minister left more than $125,000. At the time of MacDonald's sudden death in mid-Atlantic while en route to South America on Nov. 9 there was considerable speculation whether he had been able to arrange adequate provision for his children. The income from his government offices was supplemented during his lifetime by gift dividends from shares valued at $150,000 belonging to his friend Sir Alexander Grant.

A TASTY MENU BRIGHTENS EYES IN CHILD HAVEN

35 Young Guests Thrive in Protestant Home.

For nearly twenty-five years the Protestant Child Haven, which now has quarters in an old brick house at 6332 Yale avenue, has been sheltering children from broken and unhappy homes. At present it has thirty-five guests.

These children are not delinquents. They are, however, dependents, and many were undersized and undernourished when they were admitted. Some were persistent truants and about half were listed as "behavior cases with personality problems." The management says that abundant food and proper surroundings have made them well behaved, healthy, and happy.

Started as Girls' Home.

The Haven grew out of a Protestant woman's national movement started with the avowed object of helping needy girls. About 1915 clubwomen established the Haven at 416 West 61st place. It's first occupants were girls who had been taken into custody by juvenile authorities. Later young women, strangers to the city, were directed to it by posters placed in the railroad stations. A year later a similar home, this one for boys, was established at 310 Normal parkway.

Six years ago the old Dr. William Weir house was purchased, and the homes for boys and girls were merged. Boys outnumbered the girls, for boys, the Haven officials discovered, need more home supervision than a deserted father or mother can provide. Relatives are never as eager to take them into their homes as they are their small sisters. Boys, it was found, are more sensitive to insecurity and emotional conflict.

The Child Haven accepts children from 4 to 12 years old referred to it by social service agencies throughout the city. Children are not placed at the Haven for adoption. They are often taken only temporarily and returned to their parents when conditions at home improve. Every effort is made not to break the tie between parents and children.

Smoothing Out the Kinks.

Meanwhile the children's kinks, if they have them, are ironed out. When each child is admitted he is given a psychometric test and a physical examination, the results of which dictate his treatment. He is given medical and dental care. He is encouraged in regular habits. He has work to be done, and if he dislikes his tasks he is taught that they are part of his daily life. Physical punishment is outmoded, punishments being limited to small deprivations. There is a varied recreation program, and the boys and girls romp for hours in the spacious back yard. There are no favorites.

The Haven has no endowment. Its budget is pared to the limit, and is made up, for the most part, of contributions and from the revenue from card parties, bazars, and dances. One-third of its annual $10,000 is furnished by the Community Fund.

WOMAN, 54, SEES ROBBER AT WORK AND DROPS DEAD

Excitement over seeing a burglar smash a window in a lunchroom across the street was believed by police to have been responsible for the sudden death early today of Mrs. Catherine Lapp, 54 years old, 2105 Ashland avenue, Evanston. A heart attack was the immediate cause of death.

Mrs. Lapp, sister Charles Lapp, former chief engineer of the Evanston water works, and member of an old Evanston family, was sitting at her living room window when the thief, a colored man, broke a window at 1601 Simpson street. She collapsed a few seconds later. The alleged thief was later seized.

Lyda Roberti of the Films Succumbs to Heart Attack

Hollywood, Cal., March 12.—[Special.]—Lyda Roberti, blonde Polish born film actress, died today following a heart attack. She had been forced to curtail her film activities during the last two years because of frequent heart attacks. Her husband, Hugh Ernst, radio announcer, was with her when she died. Miss Roberti was a daughter of Roberti, famous clown. She traveled with circuses through Europe and Asia, and also appeared in Broadway stage shows.

JUNGLE ENFOLDS TEMPLE BUILT ON MAMMOTH SCALE

Ruins of Angkor Deep in Brush of Cambodia.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANGKOR, Cambodia, French Indo-China.—[By Air Mail.]—The place of greatest renown in Indo-China is Angkor. Made famous by the publicity given its "ruins," today it is trying to commercialize on its historical prominence.

Arrow locates site of Angkor temple ruins.

Angkor properly is the name for the small tract of jungle where the ruins or disintegrating temples are located and is about four miles from the tourists' headquarters at Siemreap. Owing to the lack of modern transportation, it is not easily reached. One may come inland from Saigon, 500 miles to the southeast, by bus and private car, or from Bangkok, Siam, 300 miles to the northwest, by narrow guage train and bus.

Building Some New Roads.

The countryside is identical to cross country drives in southern Oklahoma. The roads are gravel and clay with an occasional break of tar. Quite a bit of road improvement is being done. All the crushed rock and sand is transported by ox team carts. Small, comparatively modern steam rollers are used in surface making.

The terrain is flat and void of cultivation. Many small natural ponds of half acre size furnish water for the numerous cattle and carabaos [water buffaloes] which graze at large. Expanses of open prairie covered with dry grass flank the highway. One fire going good is noticed.

The natives are a Chinese type and live under French jurisdiction, but unlike China, the country is not thickly populated. Villages are far apart with few huts in between. Local dress is conventional and few flashes of color are observed. No one besides the road workers seem to be doing anything.

Waterwheels in Service.

The village of Siemreap is a flat, open, routine little settlement of 400 population. The buildings are conventional concrete or frame structures with one or two stories. Very few grass huts are about.

Transportation seems to be all bicycles with a two seat trailer attached. There are a few small automobiles. A bit of practical local initiative is displayed. A small river running through the center of town has in it every hundred yards an old fashioned waterwheel about 15 feet in diameter. These are used to raise water from the river on to the grass above.

For tourists the place boasts one large up to date hotel. The cooling system, by fans, however, is not adequate for this hot climate.

A 10 minute drive north by car takes the visitor through a semi-jungle of small scrubby undergrowth to Angkor Wat, the largest of the group of decaying temples comprising the "ruins of Angkor."

Started in 9th Century.

Situated out in the brush without a sign of habitation around—besides a little beer stand—the great temple covers a rectangular piece of ground about the size of four city blocks. To the casual observer, one's first impression is the tremendous architectural imagination of the builders. No one knows exactly how old it is, but natives say it was started in the 9th century. Very little is known of the Khmer tribes which are believed to have built the temple.

The front wall, approximately 300 yards long, 12 feet high, and 4 feet thick, has moulded or carved in stone every imaginable figure and beast from Buddha to snakes and girls to tigers. Elephants, though, have the edge.

The center entrance has a high arch overhead. Entering the first arch by a climb of steep steps, one views the second phase of design. It is a wall of towers, parallel to the front wall, 200 yards back and connected by a stone walk 50 feet wide.

Not as long as the first, but thicker and considerably higher, a long hallway runs longitudinally and is literally packed with stone images similar to the outer wall, but with more Buddhas and girls. At one end is the old oil vat where the condemned were roasted.

Images Form Railings.

The floor of this section is about on a level with the top of the front wall. Two hundred yards back and likewise connected with the walk with images for railings is the third massive line of towers parallel to the other two and about 200 yards long.

Its floor is 30 feet above that of the second and the steps going up are hard to climb. They are very steep and 2 feet high each. They are so old that some have worn away completely with time and use.

The inner bunch of towers is similar to the second, only more massive, taller, and ornately decorated. The imagination cannot picture the amount of effort expended in carving the figures and designs in stone of which the whole thing is made. It would be a paradise for the archaeologist.

Although a thousand years old and falling apart in places, the main structure is intact throughout. The old moats have more or less filled in and all have dried up. The grounds, of course, are not kept up. The other ruins are smaller and have disintegrated more, but all are built along similar lines. No one has bothered to count all, but the brush is full of them.

Storied Ruins

Gate with faces of Siva looking in four directions, one of the monuments of Cambodia's past, which stand in the jungles at Angkor. Siva is one of the three great Hindu gods, and represents the destructive power.

M'LAGLEN, FILM STAR'S BROTHER, GUILTY IN PLOT

Los Angeles, Cal., March 12.—(AP)—Leopold McLaglen, physical culture instructor and brother of Victor McLaglen, film actor, was convicted today of attempting to extort $20,000 from Phillip Chancellor, wealthy writer-photographer.

The Superior court jury, which had deliberated since yesterday morning, was unable to agree on counts charging the defendant with bribing a witness and inducing another person to commit bribery.

Judge Thomas L. Ambrose denied McLaglen's plea for release on $1,500 bail for at least two more days so he could arrange his business affairs.

McLaglen voiced great concern for the welfare of his two pet marmoset monkeys. "Nobody can feed them but me," he said.

Tenants Protest Rent Boosts; Move and Double Up

SITUATION LIKE 1929-'33 AGAIN IS DEVELOPING

Current Depression Is Main Factor.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Tenant protests against the city-wide rent increase, which were at first merely verbal and later written, now have reached the action stage—removal to cheaper flats and resumption of the doubling up of families common from 1929 to 1933. The trek of tenants who balked at rent boosts to less expensive apparments is not confined to any particular part of the city, although it is said to be more pronounced in the industrial sections.

Arthur Kruggel.

Occupants of high priced apartments who have been hit by the present business slump are moving to lower priced suites. Tenants of those lower bracket apartments who have received notices of rent advances and who likewise cannot or will not pay more than they have been doing, in turn are moving to cheaper living quarters.

Ends With Doubling Up.

This chain of seekers of less expensive homes ends up with the "doublers"—families who can't pay even the rents asked in the lowest brackets and are returning to live with their relatives and in-laws.

In one of the largest north side apartment buildings in the medium price rent bracket, fifteen families have declined to accept a rent boost and are seeking cheaper quarters.

In another neighborhood, on the south side, forty families are reported to have balked at proposed rent advances and have joined the procession of "doublers." In this particular neighborhood there isn't an apartment building that doesn't carry at least one "to rent" sign in its windows, a tenant said.

Predicted Months Ago.

The present situation was predicted by some real estate men several months ago when rent increases were first suggested. Several realtors warned that if too much pressure were put on the rent situation, it would break wide open and the moving and doubling up of 1929-1933 would be resumed.

Since a rent increase was first considered the entire housing situation has changed. In recent weeks, it is understood, the occupancy ratio, which had climbed up over the 98 per cent mark, has been slipping. In addition, the increase of unemployed, reduced wages, lower salaries and fewer dividends have combined to make the situation more complicated for the landlords, who are finding their tenants less able to pay an advance and in many instances unable to continue their present rent schedules.

No Concerted Action.

From the property owners' standpoint higher rents are said to be necessary to meet increased operating expenses. The recent boost in janitors' wages is one of several reasons advanced for increasing rentals.

Although rents generally have been advanced in Chicago and suburbs, there has been no concerted action by the various real estate boards. Individual boards discussed the situation and, although unofficially advocating a raise, have left it to their individual members to determine the amount.

These rent increases, according to Arthur Kruggel, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, have been from 5 to 10 per cent. In many cases, however, the advance has been 15 per cent or more.

Officials of other real estate boards pointed out that real estate last year, notwithstanding the rental increases, failed to show a reasonable return on the investment. Until a fair return can be obtained there is no incentive for capital to invest in new construction, a situation which in turn puts brakes on the long talked of resumption of building activity.

Realty Miscellany

Lumber and insulation will be discussed by speakers at the next meeting of the Northern Illinois chapter, No. 6, of the Society of Residential Appraisers, of which Roger P. Minwegen is president. Leon Kramer, wood engineer and president of the Chicago Lumber institute, will talk on the proper grades of lumber for residential construction. John A. Boland of the Reynolds corporation will discuss insulation. The meeting will follow a 6:30 dinner at 19 South La Salle street.

Prof. G. L. Larson, chairman of the department of mechanical engineering, University of Wisconsin, will speak on "Mechanical Hot Water Heating Systems" at the next meeting of the Illinois chapter, American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, at the Brevoort hotel, tomorrow at 6 p. m.

$310,000 Apartment Project for North Side

The above forty-one apartment building, to represent a total reported investment in land and building of $310,000, is to be erected at 3532-3550 Pine Grov e avenue on a 170 by 173 foot site by the Pine Court Apartment corporation, of which Benjamin Galler is president. The suites will have four and five rooms. Sidney H. Minchin, Inc., is architect. Completion is set for Sept. 1.

APARTMENT BUILDING HALTED IN 1929 TO BE COMPLETED BY MAY 1

Completion by May 1 of the seven story apartment building at 5040 Kenmore avenue, work on which was stopped in 1929, was predicted yesterday by A. J. Fitz Gerald, president of the Fifty-forty Kenmore Avenue corporation, owner, and head of the Fitz Gerald Construction company, which has the general contract to rebuild the structure. The building is now 80 per cent completed, he said.

Financed with a $315,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation loan, work was resumed last November, with 165 men now employed. According to Fitz Gerald, 10 per cent of the 136 apartments already have been leased. The building occupies a site 100x150 feet and, in addition to the unfurnished suites, will have two stores on the ground floor. Frank McNally and associates are architects of the present completion program.

The building had considerable notoriety several years ago when the receiver withdrew all watchmen and vandals invaded the unfinished structure. Every bathtub, 158 in all, was ripped out, crated, and trucked away, with the police and neighbors knowing nothing about it until the incident was shown in a newsreel throughout the country a year later.

CLOSE THREE STORE LEASES IN LINCOLN AVE.

Three leases were reported closed in the building at 4755 Lincoln avenue now being remodeled by its owner, Harry S. Adler, from plans by B. Leo Steif & Co., Inc. They include space leased by Bata Shoe company, a store rented by the Prato Brothers Food mart, and a store to the Lake View Quality Markets, Inc. All are for five years on a minimum guarantee and percentage basis and were negotiated by Milton Moses. The building is to have an entirely new front of cast granite and chrome metal. The interior also will be rebuilt.

LEASE CORNER NEAR CUBS PARK FOR PARKING

Downtown Parking Stations, Inc., of which W. R. Dispenza is president, yesterday leased for ten years 40,000 square feet of ground at the northwest corner of Clark and Addison streets, and on April 1 will open its nineteenth Chicago parking unit and the concern's first one outside the loop. It will accommodate 300 cars. The property, owned by Flora E. Talbot, formerly was occupied by the Wright Coal company. It is diagonally across from the Cubs baseball park. Ralph Jackson and Burton Colbert were brokers.

Mutual Securities Will Move Into Larger Offices

The Mutual Securities company on March 15 will move into new and larger quarters on the third floor of the Mutual National bank building, Halsted and 79th streets. Increasing business necessitated more space and a larger personnel, it was said. The company reported a 1937 loan volume of nearly $2,000,000.

Plans 41 Flat Building in Pine Grove Av.

Bids will be taken shortly for a forty-one apartment building to be erected at 3532-3550 Pine Grove avenue from plans by Sidney H. Minchin, Inc. The owner is the Pine Court Apartment corporation, of which Benjamin Galler, president of Galler Brothers, wholesale drugs, is head.

Plans by Minchin call for a three story and English basement building with face brick on all exterior walls, and with exterior stairways hidden. Occupying a 150 by 173 foot site, the building will cover only 45 per cent of the area. In addition to a front landscaped court 60 by 120 feet, the building will have an open area fourteen feet wide on both sides, front and back, with a row of poplar trees along each side.

According to the architect the project, which has been financed, will involve a total expenditure of $310,000 in land and building. It will contain eighty five room and thirty-three four room suites. The building will have 176 rooms.

Corner windows and prow bay windows will be features of the new building. Every four room suite will have four closets and the five room flats will have five. The first floor will be fireproof. Completion is scheduled for Sept. 1.

CHICAGOAN BUYS 1,315 ACRES AT ROSELAWN, IND.

B. C. Alexander of the Alexander Film company, Wrigley building, yesterday purchased the Roselawn ranch of 1,315 acres at Roselawn, Ind., sixty-five miles southeast of Chicago. The property, consisting of two large sets of improvements equipped with cattle feeding facilities, was bought from the Western Investment trust, 4150 South Halsted street.

Hereafter to be known as Dunromin ranch, it will be operated by Edgar Alexander, son of the purchaser, as a grain and live stock farm. Alexander has a herd of 100 registered Herefords, known as the Dunromin herd, which he will transfer from his two farms in the vicinity of Windsor, Mo., and in addition will stock the farm with additional cattle from western ranges.

This is the largest single tract of acreage to change hands in the Chicago area thus far this year, according to the Western Investment trust, which has sold several smaller farms in the territory in recent months.

Michigan Avenue Building Is 100 Per Cent Rented

With the lease of the shop at 637 North Michigan avenue to Mentone, milliner, the two story Michigan avenue building at the northeast corner of Ontario street, again is 100 per cent rented, according to the Bowes Realty company, renting agents.

Brokers' Notes

Sudler & Co. have moved their offices to larger quarters on the twenty-first floor of the Mather Tower building. The firm was organized in the fall of 1927 and moved into the building as its first tenant at that time. Nelson L. Barnes Jr., formerly in the real estate department of the First National bank, is now in charge of residential renting.

The Frank De Lugach Real Estate company has opened a branch office at 257 West 103d street, at Princeton avenue, and will resume selling property in its five developments in that region. H. Debs is office manager. The company will retain its general office at 95th street and Western avenue.

HOME BUILDING SHOWS GAIN IN SUBURBAN AREA

General Construction Is Less in February.

In the face of a decline in building of all types in Chicago suburbs for February as compared with January, home construction showed a considerable increase. Permits were issued last month in sixty-four suburbs for eighty-four new homes, costing $690,010. In January, fifty-seven homes were built costing $486,965.

Comparison of February building with the same month last year showed a fractional loss in general construction of all types and a large decline in home building. The February total for all kinds of building was $1,185,000, compared with $1,889,000 for the same month last year and with $2,039,000 in January, 1938. In February, last year, permits were issued for 100 suburban homes costing $1,256,452.

Repairs Increase.

An increase in permits for repairs, alterations, and additions also was made in February over the preceding month, the figures being $178,246 last month compared with $125,646 in January.

Several communities issued permits for modernization in fairly large amounts. In Lake Forest permits were taken out for alterations costing $57,580. In Evanston permits for $15,200 were issued. Other suburbs and the amounts of repairs were: Glencoe, $11,784; Oak Park, $11,315; Hammond, $10,800; Cicero, $9,495; Aurora, $7,998.

Residential construction last month was divided among the suburbs as follows: Arlington Heights, five new homes costing $50,000; Berwyn, eleven, $95,200; Broadview, five, $27,500; Evanston, eight, $89,300; Glen Ellyn, two, $14,900; Hammond, five, $16,150; Highland Park, three, $29,200.

Homes in Other Suburbs.

In addition there were two houses in Hinsdale, costing $13,700; Kenilworth, two, $36,500; Markham, four, $20,000; Niles Center, four, $36,300; Palos Heights, four, $23,500; Park Ridge, two, $16,300; River Forest, two, $27,000; Riverside, two, $20,500; Western Springs, four, $29,200, and Winnetka, two, with a total cost of $55,600.

Numerous expressions of optimism concerning spring construction, supported by statements about activities already under way or to be undertaken this month, were reported by the Greenebaum Investment company, which made the suburban survey.

HECHT AGAIN HEAD OF WEST CENTRAL BODY

Frank A. Hecht was reëlected president of the West Central association at its annual meeting on March 10. In addition all of the other 1937 officers were reëlected. Three new directors were named: Robert White of Robert White & Co., realtors; Howard Willett Jr. of the Willett company, and Kenneth Curtis of Curtis Lighting, Inc. The other directors reelected were: George O. Fairweather, Irving Florsheim, Gilbert Preston, William Farrell, William Weise, A. N. Sommer, and H. T. Smith. Charles A. Snyder continues as executive secretary.

Expect Billion and Half Dollars for Home Lending

One billion five hundred million dollars will be available for lending to American families during 1938 to help them acquire homes without waiting for insurance on mortgages, according to E. C. Baltz, president of the United States Building and Loan league. This amount, he said, will be available from the thousands of savings, building and loan associations which are prepared to make their largest contribution to debt-free ownership since they placed $1,800,000,000 in home loans nine years ago.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago during the week of March 4 to 10, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 51, with a combined cost of $622,500. For the corresponding week last year there were 48 contracts totaling $648,426. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $7,410,082, compared with $7,830,825 for the same period last year.

PREDICTS GAIN IN MORTGAGE FIELD THIS YEAR

Dovenmuehle Expects Rise in Building.

George H. Dovenmuehle, vice president of the mortgage banking house of Dovenmuehle, Inc., predicts a sharp rise in the mortgage business during the second half of the year.

A year ago in an article written for the Great Lakes Banker, official publication of the Illinois Bankers' association, he predicted the slump which began in the latter half of 1937. In the current issue of that publication, distributed yesterday, Dovenmuehle predicted the upturn for this year.

Explains His Prediction.

Among the factors on which he based his prediction is the pent-up demand for housing facilities which is even more acute than it was a year ago. This, he pointed out, is due to two reasons:

1. Construction of single family dwellings during 1937, although showing an encouraging increase over a year earlier, was not sufficient to offset the shortage created by the rise in population, marriages, and obsolescence of older buildings.

2. Construction of large apartment house projects, on which the future activity of the building trades in Chicago is dependent, did not get under way during 1937 as expected.

Preliminary Work Done.

"By the second half of 1938, however, we should feel the effects of the apartment house planning of the last six months and on which much of the preliminary work now has been completed," Dovenmuehle said.

"The first large apartment house project in Chicago in several years, which will cost approximately $1,000,000, and will be financed by our firm, already has been announced. Plans for several others also have been tentatively approved by this firm and in some cases by the Federal Housing administration."

Dovenmuehle said that actual construction of these buildings will depend to a certain extent upon the speed with which the FHA completes its share of the work and gives the signal to go ahead.

PLAN $50,000 MODERNIZATION OF PONTIAC BLDG.

Hall & Ellis, recently appointed agents for the fourteen story Pontiac building at the northwest corner of Dearborn and Harrison streets, yesterday announced contracts had been let and work started on a $50,000 modernization program. New electric elevators will be installed.

Eleven new leases for May 1 possession, covering 20,000 square feet, were reported. These include renting of the tenth and eleventh floors by the Illinois Herb company and the entire seventh floor to the Brodie Advertising service. All three of the first floor stores have been rented.

Washington Shirt Leases Space for its 22d Unit

The Washington Shirt company has leased the store at 4010 Milwaukee avenue from Chester Lowell and Harry A. Dinkelman for a term of years on a minimum guarantee and percentage of profits basis. After alterations the lessee will open the twenty-second unit of its chain of men's stores. H. B. Rathburn was sole broker in the lease negotiations.

JURY TO RESUME POLICE SCANDAL QUIZ TOMORROW

The grand jury will resume its inquiry tomorrow into the police scandal in the Town Hall district which resulted when Detectives Frank McKune and Earl Flannery freed two men who had been seized by uniformed policemen in the act of a holdup.

Police Commissioner Allman and Capts. John Prendergast, Joseph Goldberg and Patrick O'Connell will be summoned before the jury during the week. The jurors, it is reported, want to find out how William Nichols could operate a handbook in the district for ten years with only minor interferences.

James J. Burke, an employé of Nichols, was the victim of the two accused bandits who were arrested and then released by the detectives.

Last Drake Hotel Bandit to Be Returned from West

Sergt. Philip Brietzke of the detective bureau was assigned yesterday to go to San Diego, Cal., and bring back William W. Mulneschuck, arrested there March 4 and under indictment in Chicago as one of five bandits who held up the Drake hotel on July 29, 1925, and killed an employé. Two of Mulneschuck's accomplices were slain by police as they fled after the holdup, and two others were captured later and hanged.

FELIX BUYS PEKE IN A POKE; LOSES IT; WANTS IT BACK

Dogs Footsteps of Man Who Sold It to Him.

Felix Geldbuto is always glad to see a man about a dog, so a year ago when a stranger came into Felix's tavern at 1335 Madison street with a dog under his arm Felix was intrigued. Even if it was a Pekinese.

"This is a very fine dog," said the stranger. "He even has a pedigree. He is neither halt, nor lame, nor toothless, nor blind. His bark is soothing to the nerves and his bite is a pleasure. The price is $25."

They finally settled on $15 and drinks on the house, and the Peke was esconced in his new home back of the bar.

Brings a Proposition.

Came Aug. 30 and the boys were whooping it up in Felix's saloon, where a prizefight was coming in over the radio. Again entered the stranger and again with a proposition.

"A friend of mine," he said between rounds to Felix, "has a lady Pekinese which is very lonesome. I would like to buy back for $10 the prize gentleman Pekinese I sold you."

Felix, who even on a busy fight night, was not averse to a little shrewd bargaining, set the pooch up on the bar for the stranger to admire, but refused firmly to take a cent less than $25 for an animal of such obvious superiority.

Information from a Lady.

A few minutes later, just as the action became faster and Felix busier, a lady at the bar pulled Felix by the sleeve and whispered:

"Don't look now, but a man just walked out with your dog."

Last Saturday Felix saw the man on the street. He followed. He got a warant. Police seized Frank Burns at 1434 Adams street. With him was a Pekinese, noble of mien, fine of hair, and soothing of bark.

Identified in Court.

Felix and two witnesses identified Burns yesterday in the court of Municipal Judge Samuel Heller.

"I have never seen these people before," asserted Burns virtuously. "Furthermore, I have never been in Felix's tavern, and I have had my Pekinese for many years."

But there were no witnesses to support him, so Burns got twenty days. And Judge Heller advised Felix to see a lawyer about the dog, if he wants the animal back.

The Fisk Jubilee Singers will give a concert Sunday afternoon, March 27, in the Auditorium, and not this afternoon, as stated in yesterday's paper.

J. O. REES QUITS AS DIRECTOR OF CITIZEN GROUP

John O. Rees yesterday announced his resignation as director of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, a post he has held since the committee was organized in 1932. Mr. Rees said he was leaving on a vacation and would announce his plans for the future when he returns.

Bertram J. Cahn, chairman of the executive committee of the citizens' group, expressed regret at Mr. Rees' retirement. He said the work of the committee would be merged with that of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency. The latter organization. he added, would enlarge its work of furnishing information to taxpayers and governmental bodies.

PASTOR GETS A YEAR IN JAIL ON CHARGES OF GIRL; PLANS APPEAL

Danville, Ill., March 12.—[Special.]—The Rev. William McCullom, pastor of the Four Square Gospel church here, today was sentenced to a year in the county jail for having contributed to the delinquency of Mildred Miller, 17 years old. The pastor is 48 years old. When a new trial was denied in Circuit court, attorneys said the conviction would be appealed.

Last fall McCullom was acquitted of a charge of rape made by Retha Miller, 14 years old, sister of Mildred.

McCullom was convicted two weeks ago after Mildred Miller told a jury he threatened to kill her if she revealed that he had illicit relations with her six times.

1938 FORD V-8

Now that National Used Car Exchange Week has reduced dealers' used car stocks, this is an opportune time to buy the new 1938 Ford V-8 you have been wanting. There are three excellent reasons for acting now.

First, the ability and desire of your Ford dealer to accept additional cars in trade—now.

Second, the fact that spring arrives officially next week, and it's a real thrill to meet it with a new car.

Third, the 1938 Ford V-8 itself. It is a great value at its present low price—and the value seems even greater when you learn the exceptional amount of equipment included in the advertised price.

The big 85-hp. De Luxe Ford V-8 offers a new standard of luxury at a low price. The newly styled Standard Ford V-8, even lower in price, is available with either engine size. With the 60-hp. V-8 engine it is "Public Economy No. 1"—owners are reporting 22 to 27 miles per gallon.

You are invited to see your Ford dealer this week for an appraisal on your present car—and the chance to drive the Quality Car in the Low-price Field.

MICHIGAN WINS BIG 10 TRACK TITLE; 5 IN ROW

GOLDEN GLOVES INTERCITY TEAM IS SELECTED

BY FRENCH LANE.

A happy crowd of Golden Glovers assembled in the Illinois Athletic club gymnasium yesterday and officially pitched their training camp in which they will prepare for their annual battle with the champions of the east in New York on the night of March 21.

Thirty boys, a few with bruised noses, one or two with cut lips, one wearing a black eye, but all of them healthy and in fine physical condition, were in camp late yesterday afternoon.

Johnny Behr, athletic director at the Illinois Athletic club, called the roll, told the boys to enjoy a complete day of rest but to be ready to go into training some time today.

Pick Squad of Thirty.

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE; Coach Behr and Wilfrid Smith of THE TRIBUNE sports staf, named the squad of thirty for the inter-city bouts following the championship matches in Chicago Stadium on Friday night.

The eight champions automatically qualified for the team. They fight the eight eastern champions. It was up to the Tribune representatives and Coach Behr to select the other members. In making their selections they endeavored to put together the strongest possible combination for the eight secondary bouts in New York. On a point basis these bouts mean as much as the encounters between the title winners.

Upon their showing in the New York fights will depend the makeup of the Chicago team that fights an all-European team in an international match in Chicago Stadium on the night of May 18.

Here Is Squad.

112 POUND DIVISION.
Kenny Lottman, Peoria, champion; Walter Cavalieri, Chicago C. Y. O., Edward Wright, Detroit, and Al Noto, Chicago C. Y. O. alternates.

118 POUND DIVISION.
Frank Kainrath, Chicago C. Y. O., champion; Clayton Johnson, Sioux City, Bud Chapman, Terre Haute, and John Cronin, Detroit, alternates.

126 POUND DIVISION.
Eddie Dempsey, Davenport, champion; Jack Simmons, Kansas City; Joe Du Pont, Chicago C. Y. O., and Jackie Campbell, South Bend, alternates.

135 POUND DIVISION.
John Benna, Terre Haute, champion; Johnny Joca, Cleveland, Eddie Smith, Detroit, and Verle Davis, Joliet, alternates.

147 POUND DIVISION.
James O'Malley, Chicago C. Y. O., champion; Milton Bess, Indianapolis, and Marvin Liddell, Oklahoma City, alternates.

160 POUND DIVISION.
Cornelius Young, Chicago C. Y. O. champion; George Mitchell, Kokomo, and Joe Benna, Michigan City, alternates.

175 POUND DIVISION.
Linto Guerrier, Rockford, champion; Frank Duket, Green Bay, William Muldune, Cleveland, and Orlando Trotter, Chicago C. Y. O., alternates.

HEAVYWEIGHT DIVISION.
Dan Merritt, Cleveland, champion; Lloyd Montgomery, Nashville, Chief Francis Shoulderblade, Oklahoma City, and Babe Ritchie, alternates.

Indian Is Chosen.

Happiest man on the squad was Chief Francis Shoulderblade, the Cheyenne-Sioux Indian heavyweight. He had returned to Chicago to receive the Joe Louis sportsmanship trophy during the championship battles after being eliminated on a close decision in the quarter finals. This gave the Indian heavy a big thrill. Then a few hours later when he was notified that he had been selected as an alternate on the team and would make the trip to New York the chief was jubilant.

Most Chicagoans believe this year's team is among the strongest ever sent to New York. However, it must not be forgotten that Chicago has never captured an intercity title in Madison Square Garden. One thing seems sure, the easterners are going to know they have been to the wars after they meet these Chicago color bearers.

Light Drills Today.

Coach Behr's program calls for light gymnasium drills today and some boxing tomorrow. The squad of thirty boxers departs for New York on Wednesday afternoon.

WHERE WILL YOU BE?

When Europe's finest amateur boxers meet champions of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Golden Gloves tournament the night of May 18 in the Stadium, where will you be? On that night a capacity throng of 21,000 will see the seventh international bouts, a series which has produced some of the most thrilling chapters in amateur boxing history. Will you be among these fans?

Here is your chance to be there! Mail orders now are being accepted. Just send your check to Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Make checks payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Apply for tickets now and you won't have to listen to your neighbor describe these thrilling fights. You can tell him! Here's the price scale:

$3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, and 55 cents.

Gehrig Signs with Yankees for $39,000

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 12.—[Special.]—Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees announced today that First Baseman Lou Gehrig had signed a one year contract calling for $39,000. This is a $3,000 increase over what Gehrig received last year.

Gehrig, McCarthy said, signed after a conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert in New York. Both will leave New York tomorrow and arrive here late Monday afternoon. Gehrig will start working out Tuesday.

The $39,000 for which Gehrig signed is the final figure offered him by Ruppert earlier this week, and is $1,000 shy of the amount for which Gehrig was holding out. It is the highest salary ever paid any American league ball player except Babe Ruth.

Denies Hornsby Got $40,000.

McCarthy said it was the highest salary ever paid to any ball player, except Ruth, for the Yankee manager said Rogers Hornsby never got the $40,000 he was supposed to be getting with the Chicago Cubs. McCarthy managed the Chicago team when Hornsby was there as a player.

No word has been received from Joe DiMaggio, now the Yankees' only holdout, but McCarthy said the final offer of $25,000 still stands and will not be increased.

In turning down the Yankees' $39,000 offer made the first part of this week, Gehrig said it was an ambition of his to be a $40,000 ball player and that he wanted to get it this year while the getting was good.

Colonel Won't Be Bullied.

However, Ruppert had emphasized he would not be bullied into submitting to his holdouts.

In getting Gehrig signed in New York, Ruppert removed any necessity for signing ceremonies here. He became sensitive this year to charges that camp signings with his stars in the past were staged for publicity purposes. It nettled him. Now he and Lou will arrive together and the colonel can enjoy his vacation.

JOE WEAKENS A BIT

Hanford, Cal., March 12.—[U. P.]—Joe DiMaggio, the New York Yankees only holdout, said today he would give considerable thought to an offer of $39,000, the figure that Lou Gehrig signed for today.

DiMaggio, the Yanks' new home run king, said Gehrig's contract "is his business, not mine." DiMaggio has been holding out for $40,000, threatening to turn dishwasher at his San Francisco restaurant if he doesn't get it.

"I might sign a contract any day now, and I want to be in some kind of shape when I go to Florida to join the Yankees in their camp," DiMaggio said. He has been working out here at the spring camp of the San Francisco Seals, Pacific Coast league club.

WINNER OF 1937 GRAND NATIONAL SOLD AT AUCTION

LONDON, March 12.—(AP)—Royal Mail, winner of the 1937 Grand National steeplechase and one of the favorites for this year's running of the Aintree event, was sold at auction today to Mrs. J. M. Evans for 6,500 guineas [about $34,125].

Mrs. Evans, the former Camille Clifford, Philadelphia actress, announced Royal Mail would start in the Grand National March 25.

Royal Mail's sale was ordered by executors of the estate of H. Lloyd Thomas, who was killed in a racing accident Feb. 22.

Meanwhile, announcement was made of the scratching from the Grand National of Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's American owned Flying Minutes, a son of the 1925 Kentucky Derby winner, Flying Ebony.

DIXON DEFEATS JANNOTTA FOR SQUASH TITLE

Homer Dixon Jr. of the Chicago Athletic association defeated Joe Jannotta, a teammate, 15-11, 18-15, 17-14, in the Lake Shore Athletic club yesterday to win the Chicago District Squash association championship.

In the consolation final Dr. N. K. Rickles of the Lake Shore A. C. defeated H. H. MacDona of the Dartmouth Alumni club, 18-16, 17-15, 15-10.

RECORDS FALL AS MICHIGAN WINS TRACK CROWN

Baer, New Man of Hour, Signs for Title Bout

New York, March 12.—(AP)—Max Baer, who was crossed off the list of heavyweight championship contenders three years ago, today was back in the midst of the fight, ready—and able — to make two million dollar gates bloom where only one sprouted before.

Baer, on the strength of his victory last night over Tommy Farr, has been promised a title bout in September with the winner of the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling championship match in June.

"My agreement with Farr and Baer was that the winner would get the September date with the winner of the Louis-Schmeling fight," said Promoter Mike Jacobs.

Max Isn't Fooling.

Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, added, "the papers for the September fight were drawn up today."

Delays, prolonged negotiations, and curiosity over Schmeling's ability to repeat have made the German's bout with Louis a million dollar venture, no matter where it is held. Baer's personal magnetism, backed up by the obvious earnestness of his comeback, may do as much for his meeting with the winner.

For Baer wasn't fooling, although he may have fooled the skeptics, when he said he was coming back after the championship he let slip away in 1935. The near-capacity crowd that turned out to see him thump Farr at the garden will bear witness to that.

The Baer who slugged with both hands from start to finish, who twice floored the man neither Louis nor Jim Braddock could bring down, resembled the same Livermore Larruper who pounded Primo Carnera into a hapless hulk and stopped Schmeling. He didn't resemble the same Baer who was outboxed by Braddock and who quit on one knee against Louis three years ago.

He's Still a Clown.

He also was the same superb showman who, with Louis, helped draw the only million dollar gate since the second Tunney-Dempsey fight in Chicago in 1927. The crowd that came to jeer last night stayed to cheer him—cheer him, that is, when it wasn't howling over his familiar antics.

Now that he has Baer back near the top, Manager Hoffman is taking no chances on letting him slip. Before he, Max and brother Buddy left for Chicago en route to Oakland, Cal., where Max's father is seriously ill, Hoffman explained Baer probably would do some refereeing and appear in a few exhibitions in the middle west and on the coast.

Farr's manager, Joe Gould, announced the British empire champion would "go right on fighting"—after taking time out, possibly for two months, to let cuts around his eyes heal.

Marty to Get Full Chance to Clinch Center Field Job

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 12.—There's no way of telling what might happen to the Cub outfield between now and next October, but at the moment Joe Marty appears to have provided Manager Charley Grimm with a definite idea.

Marty has earned the top rating among the center field possibilities and the position will remain in his possession until he either makes or breaks himself.

At least that was the promise made by the boss today as he chased his boys through a soggy drill, but the manager, having suffered extensively because of a scarcity of hitting outfielders last season, is not making rosy predictions. He's merely hoping that Marty will prove an answer to one of his prayers.

Marty Shows Talent.

It doesn't take a master mind to figure just why Grimm should suspect Marty might be the solution of one of two outfield problems. One reason for the attention about to be showered upon the former coast leaguer is that he hit .290 last season, his first in the majors. Another is that he is a youngster. Still another is that during his three years in organized ball he improved each time as a hitter. The choicest of his three seasons was 1936, when he batted .359 and made the San Francisco fans cease lamenting the departure of Joe Di Maggio to the Yankees.

If Marty can keep a no trespass sign in center field it will mean there is going to be a real dog fight for left field. Augie Galan, Jim Asbell, Herman Coaker Triplett, Tuck Stainback, and Carl Reynolds will be involved in the mêlée. Nobody will be surprised i., when the scramble gets down to its final stages, the only survivors are Galan and Reynolds. Reynolds did pretty well for years against American league pitching. Galan remains a favorite because of his sensational work as a freshman in 1935. The expectation is that he will come back, but that's a question.

May Play Today.

Tomorrow, if the field recovers from another drenching received last night, the Cubs will resume their training camp series in which the Regulars have thus far compiled two victories over the Yannigans. Leroy Parmelee and Clay Bryant were supposed to pitch for the second team, but the former was still bothered today by a blistered finger so his place will be taken by Albert Paul Epperly, the Three Eye league rookie who seems to have eventual possibilities. Newel Kimball and Bob Lefty Logan will perform for the Regulars.

After Sunday's nine inning game the Cubs will have only four more days in which to rehearse. One or two days will be consumed by additional camp games. Then the squad will depart from the island training base to meet up with the White Sox at Los Angeles. This series covers sixteen battles, the last three of which will be staged in Chicago prior to the opening of the season.

SOX PUT SKILL TO TEST AGAINST PASADENA SOX

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 12.—The White Sox will play baseball tomorrow despite Manager James Dyke's aversion to intra-club and other competitive training didoes prior to the opening of the regular exhibition season. The Chicagoans will line up against the Pasadena Sox in a charity game, the charity spreading to the assembled authors who are eager to work out on a box score.

Dykes will not present the lineup he will employ on the opening day of the American league season but he will send forth the best array now available, except that Luke Sewell will not catch and no first string pitcher will be asked to pitch. The batting order will be as follows:

Hayes, 2b; Rosenthal, cf; Walker, lf; Thompson, 1b; Appling, ss; Kreevich, rf; Martin, 3b; Tresh, c; and Gick, Uhle and Cook, pitchers. Owen will play a few innings at third and Henry Steinbacher will replace Walker.

It appeared for a time today that the White Sox record of having never been completely washed out of a practice in five years would be halted. There were hard rains during the night and morning and a heavy shower shortly before noon. But the record was saved when twenty players donned uniforms during the shower and rushed out onto the field as soon as the downpour stopped. These eager gents, mostly battery men, got in more than an hour of strenuous exercise.

Notre Dame Wins Central Indoor Meet

Table of Points

Notre Dame	56	Kansas State	9
Pittsburgh	24½	Wayne	7½
Michigan State	23	Butler	6
Marquette	17	Western State	6
Drake	10	Michigan Normal	6

Notre Dame, Ind., March 12.—[Special.]—Notre Dame piled up 56 points, the highest total in the 12 year history of the competition to win the Central collegiate indoor track meet here today. Pittsburgh took second with 24½ points. Michigan State was third with 23 points.

Notre Dame scored in every event but the 65 yard low hurdles, taking 20 out of a possible 30 points in the pole vault and shot put. The Irish scored four firsts in the 11 events.

John Woodruff, Pittsburgh's Olympic 800 meter champion, was the only individual entrant successfully to defend a 1937 title. He repeated in the 880-yard run, nosing out John Francis of Notre Dame at the tape. Woodruff replaced Art Thomas of Pitt as the 440-yard champion, winning in 50 seconds, the fastest time turned in since 1932 when Alex Wilson of Notre Dame set his meet and gym record of 49.3 seconds. In the quarter, as in the half, Woodruff won narrowly, in this event from Herman Carr of Marquette.

Woodruff High Point Man.

Woodruff's two victories gave him high point honors. He also ran with the Panther mile relay team, which tied the meet record. Runners-up were Francis, who had displased his teammate, Greg Rice, as mile champion in 4 minutes 20.2 seconds, and Harvey Woodstra of Michigan State, hurdles star.

Rice, however, came back after taking third in the mile, to set the day's only meet record in the two mile. He was clocked in 9 minutes 19.6 seconds, clipping nearly two full seconds off the former meet and gym records of 9:21.5 set by Billy Zepp of Michigan Normal in 1935, and nearly 1" seconds off the former Notre Dame indoor record of 9:30.3 set by Gene Howery in 1931.

Woodstra Ties Record.

Woodstra turned in one of the day's fastest performances, winning the 60 yard high hurdles in 7.5 seconds to tie the meet and gym mark set in 1931 by the late Johnny O'Brien of Notre Dame. Woodstra took second in the 65 yard low hurdles behind a fast 7.2 second performance by Bob Shurilla, Marquette sophomore from Gary. Woodstra got a slow start and hit the third barrier. Shurilla's time was the best turned in in the qualifying and finals.

It was Notre Dame's strength in the pole vault and shot put that put the Irish in the lead. Ed Beinor, football star, throwing with a pulled leg muscle, won the shot put with a toss of 47 feet, 7¼ inches, to upset Bill Faymonville, of the Irish, who was second.

Greer Still Unbeaten.

Dan Gibbs of Notre Dame took the pole vault at 13 feet, while his team mates, John Dean and Harold Langton tied with Lodo Habrle of Michigan State for second place to give Notre Dame 11 out of 15 possible points.

Wilbur Greer of Michigan State, remained undefeated for the season when he won the 60 yard dash in 6.2 seconds. Fred Smith of Drake, 1936 champion, was eliminated in the semi-finals.

Pete Bennett of Pittsburgh turned in one of the day's upsets by winning

FENSKE, MEHL BREAK SIX YEAR OLD RECORDS

Take Three Events to Give Badgers 2d.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Six years ago in the first Western Conference indoor track meet held in the University of Chicago field house, Henry Brocksmith, first of Indiana's great middle distance runners, established the Big Ten one mile and two mile records.

Last night, Charles Fenske and Walter Mehl, from the University of Wisconsin, erased Brocksmith's name from the book of records. Their victories and another record breaking performance by Dave Albritton of Ohio State, in the high jump, were the high spots in the 28th annual indoor games in which the University of Michigan retained the team championship for the fifth consecutive year.

Smith Is Disqualified.

Michigan scored 32 1-3 points to whip Wisconsin. The Badgers, with 26 points, took four championships. Iowa was third with 20 1-3 points and Ohio State was fourth with 19. Indiana, with 18½ points, was fifth, and would have beaten the Buckeyes except that Jimmy Smith, who finished fifth in the mile run, was disqualified for fouling Fenske.

Fenske, who won his third consecutive indoor mile championship, was timed in four minutes, eleven and one-tenth seconds. Brocksmith's record was 4:12.5.

Wins After Foul.

Fenske ran a brilliantly planned race to achieve his peak performance. Had he not been fouled and pushed off the track on the backstretch before he took the lead for the final three laps, it is conceivable that he might have bettered 4:11. Fenske ran the first quarter in 61 seconds, the half mile in 2:09, and the three-quarters in 3:11.

Fenske permitted his rivals to set the early pace and Tommy Deckard of Indiana chose to stay with him. There was a brief brush for the leadership between the pair just after the half when Fenske stepped up the pace, but Deckard yielded and finished badly beaten by 20 yards.

Howard Davidson of Michigan was third. Mel Trutt and Smith of Indiana took the last scoring positions in that order, but Smith was disqualified and no one was moved up.

Mehl Steps Out.

Fenske didn't compete in the two miles, but came back to win the half mile championship which gave Wisconsin a sweep of all running races save the sprint. Fenske sprinted past Bodeau of Purdue on the final lap to triumph in 1:55.4. Bodeau made pace for three laps until Fenske moved up.

In the most thrilling battle of the evening Mehl erased Brocksmith's other conference record when he came from behind to whip Smith by a stride in the two miles. The Badger ran the two miles in 9:18.3, just 1-10 of a second faster than Brocksmith's record in 1932.

Smith Sets Pace.

Jimmy Smith led all the way until the stretch. There he lacked the sprint to stave off Mehl's determined challenge which sent the Badger ahead in the final five yards.

Albritton's record jump was 6 feet 6¼ inches and he displaced his former teammate, Melvin Walker, as the all-time Big Ten champion. Walker set the conference record last year at 6 feet 5¾ inches.

Elmer Gedeon of Michigan gave the defending champions their first victory of the meet when he won the high hurdles from John Collinge of Iowa, in what apparently was a blanket finish. Gedeon's time of 8 6-10 seconds, while 1-5 of a second slower than Lee Sentman's eight year old Big Ten mark, equals the accepted American indoor record. Illinois' Jack Robinson nosed out Bush Lamb of Iowa, for third place. Lamb previously had won the first semi-final heat in 8 7-10 seconds.

Title to Maroon Sprinters.

Jack Davenport, Chicago sophomore, won the sprint title by the narrowest of margins from Frank Kauffman of Wisconsin. William Lehmann of Illinois was third. Davenport's time of 6 3-10 seconds was one-fifth of a second slower than the conference record set by Jesse Owens in 1935 and equaled by Sam Stoller of Michigan, a year later. It equaled Davenport's time in the first semi-final.

Carl Teufel of Iowa won the quarter mile championship from an ordinary field. There was little opportunity for cheering, for the Hawkeye led from start to finish. Harley Howells of Ohio State trailed by two yards, the exact margin by which Teufel led him into the stretch.

As was anticipated, William Watson of Michigan, who holds the conference shot put record, won this event. His distance was 50 feet 2⅝

CUNNINGHAM 1ST IN K. C. MILE, BUT IS BEATEN IN 600

Herbert Whips Kansan in Record Time.

New York, March 12.—(AP)—A world record smashing 600 yard performance by Jimmy Herbert tonight proved too much for Glenn Cunningham after the sturdy Kansan had run the second fastest indoor mile in history at the Knights of Columbus games in Madison Square Garden.

Seeking one of track's most difficult doubles, Cunningham finished third, two yards back, as Herbert reeled off the distance in 1:11.1 to better Chuck Hornbostel's international record of 1:11.3. Howie Borck of Manhattan finished ahead of the champion miler, who was running the 600 for the first time in his career.

After jumping the gun twice Cunningham was left at the post. He trailed for two laps and then started to kick. The kick that had carried him over the mile an hour earlier in 4:07.4 was not enough, however, to catch the front running Herbert and Borck, who a week ago whipped the New York university runner in 1:12.

Wins Mile Easily.

Cunningham tried to close in on the rail at the start of the bell lap, but tripped slightly. When he got back in stride again he was forced to take to the outside, where he passed Douglas Raymond of Boston university, but did not have enough to get by the other two.

By contrast Cunningham had the mile almost to himself. He started in front after Archie San Romani had been forced out of the first lap with a strained leg muscle and finished thirty yards ahead of Gene Venzke of the New York A. C. Peter Bradley, Princeton's I. C. 4-A champion, was third.

The mile victory, achieved before a crowd of 16,000, gave the Kansan his ninth mile under 4:10 during seven years of major competition and his thirteenth triumph of the season. Indoors the time had been beaten only by his own world record of 4:04.4, made at Dartmouth last week. Outdoors there are only three better times on record.

Tolmich Breaks Mark.

Other high spots of the meet saw Allan Tolmich of Wayne university establish a new world record for the 60 yard hurdles and Columbia's Ben Johnson and Lash lose in their specialties for the first time this year. Tolmich lowered the hurdles mark by two-tenths of a second when he cleared the five barriers in :07.3 in the final after he and Sam Allen of Bristow, Okla., had tied the old mark twice each in the preliminary heats.

Francis Ryan, Columbia's champion shot putter, remained unbeaten when he won his specialty with a toss of 51 feet 5 inches.

Slater Beats Beetham.

Francis Slater of Fordham fought off Charles Beetham's closing challenge to take the 880 yard run by inches in 1:55.6. The defeat was Beetham's first setback of the season at the distance.

Slater, national 1,000 meter champion, moved to the front on the bell lap after Edgar Stripling of New York university and then John Congdon of Yale had set the pace. Beetham came up, but his closing kick just missed. Stripling took third.

Hawks Meet Wings for Last Time Tonight

Detroit, Mich., March 13.—[Special.]—Manager Bill Stewart and fifteen Blackhawks arrived here this afternoon fit and ready for their final game of the season with the Red Wings in the Detroit Olympia tomorrow night.

Detroit fans eagerly await the impending clash for the Red Wings' only hope of qualifying for the playoffs depends upon the outcome of tomorrow's game.

The Wings with thirty-one points and four games to play, in order to keep in the running must win. A tie will not do for a drawn game would give the Hawks thirty-eight points.

The best the Wings could get out of their remaining three contests also would net them thirty-eight, but the Hawks, by virtue of having won more games than the Wings, would win the right to contest for the Stanley cup.

The Detroit team's only hope lies in winning all their remaining four games or winning three and tieing one while the Blackhawks lose all three of their remaining games, a somewhat forlorn outlook.

Young to Make Pro Debut with Ciesars Today

Jewell Young, who recently closed a brilliant basketball career at Purdue, will make his professional debut this afternoon, playing with the Ciesar All-Americans against the colored New York Renaissance team. The game will be played in the Hammond Civic center, starting at 3 o'clock.

Jewell Young.

Young's presence in the line-up is expected to improve the Ciesar offense, which all season has needed just one more consistent basket shooter. The Ciesars will take the floor this afternoon with Young and Bill Haarlow at forwards, Vince McGowan at center, and Johnny Wooden and Ed Campion at guards.

The New York Renaissance team has won more than 100 games a season for the last five years. It is reputedly one of the cleverest ball handling teams in the country.

Harvard Polo Team Defeats Cornell, 12-7

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Harvard Polo team defeated Cornell, 12 to 7, last night in the 124th Field Artillery armory. A capacity crowd, which included many alumni of both universities, was thrilled by Harvard's furious opening attack that netted nine successive goals before Cornell could score.

F. Skiddy Von Stade, the highest rated player in college polo, brought repeated cheers from the spectators by his brilliant riding, accurate shooting and skilful maneuvering. Repeatedly he set up opportunities for his teammates. Gaylord Dillingham, Harvard's No. 1 man, capitalized efficiently on all these chances, knocking in six goals to lead the scoring. Von Stade made four.

Harvard Whittles Advantage.

Cornell started the game with a three goal lead by handicap, but the Harvard players quickly whittled down that advantage. Dillingham stroked one in from the sideboards and Von Stade hammered in another. Dillingham made it 3 to 3 by following a slow rolling ball and flicking it into the goal.

Then Von Stade galloped up and dug the brll from under his horse's feet to score again. A few seconds later Von Stade whacked home a brilliant back shot from one third the length of the field. Just before the chukker ended, Forbes made it 6 to 3 for Harvard after taking a pass from Von Stade and dribbling it in.

Dillingham Gets Three.

Harvard continued its attack in the second period, Dillingham scoring three times in succession. Midway in the chukker, Christian flicked the ball out of a scramble in front of the goal to make Cornell's first earned point. That brought the score to Harvard, 9; Cornell, 4, at the half.

Neither team was able to score during the third chukker until about a minute before the end of the period. Then Naquin found an opening and laced one in for Cornell. A few seconds later Forbes dribbled to the goal for Harvard, making it 10 to 5.

Von Stade Scores Quickly.

Von Stade, riding across the front of the goal, poked one in soon after the start of the fourth chukker. Then Christian scored for Cornell on a free hit after Dillingham's foul. Dillingham made up for that lapse by getting another point almost immediately, following in a slow roller and poking it to the goal.

Christain's back shot just before the finish made the final score Harvard, 12; Cornell, 7.

BASEBALLS ARE EQUAL, TEST BY BUREAU SHOWS

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—The United States bureau of standards has just destroyed one of the best arguments of the Hot Stove league.

As a result of extensive tests with a mechanical batsman, it has discovered that there is no practical difference in the liveliness of National and American league baseballs.

Some National league balls, it found, are more lively than some American league spheres, and some are less lively. The slight difference between averages on three balls of each league undoubtedly would have disappeared if more balls had been tested, the report says.

There is no question that the mechanical batsman would be an asset in either league, however. Taken out to the Washington team's ball park, it had no difficulty putting the ball over the fence with every swing. knocking the ball an average of 367 feet.

OHIO STATE WINS SWIMMING TITLE WITH 62 POINTS

Michigan Finishes Second in Big Ten Meet.

Table of Points

Ohio State	62	Minnesota	11
Michigan	54	Illinois	7
Iowa	20	Wisconsin	6
Northwestern	12

Ohio State won its first Big Ten swimming title by nosing out Michigan, the defending champion, in the annual championship meet in the New Trier high school pool last night. The Buckeyes scored 62 points to 54 points for Michigan.

The Buckeyes won five first places out of nine events and scored heavily in the runnerup positions. The Wolverines captured the other four first places but lacked sufficient balance to withstand Ohio State's power.

Capt. Ed Kirar of Michigan set new records while successfully defending his titles in the 50 and 100 yard free style events. He won the 100 in 52.8 seconds, one-tenth of a second under the old mark of :52.9 made by Flachman of Illinois in 1935. He set a new mark in the 50 when he won his qualifying heat Friday night in :23.3 seconds, which bettered the former record of :23.4, also held by Flachman.

Ohio State's 400 yard relay team was timed in 3:35.1, bettering the old mark of 3:35.6 made by Michigan last year.

Haynie Keeps Title.

Haynie, also of Michigan, successfully defended his championship in the 220 yard free style by beating Bob Johnson of Ohio State by three yards in 2:16.1. Lowe of Illinois was third and Zehr of Northwestern and Christians of Iowa placed fourth and fifth, respectively.

The Ohio State trio of Neunzig, McKee, and Quayle had little difficulty winning the 300 yard medley relay in 3:01.7. Neunzig, a back stroke swimmer, opened up a wide lead on the first leg which his teammates successfully defended. Iowa was second, three feet behind, and Minnesota finished third.

Al Patnik, Ohio State's brilliant sophomore diver, won the fancy diving by displacing his colleague, Jim Patterson, the defending champion in the event, who finished second. Patnik amassed 143.32 points to 137.54 by Patterson.

Neunzig Keeps Title.

Neunzig of Ohio State successfully defended his title in the 150 yard back stroke by capturing the event in 1:39. Second place went to Heydt of Iowa, who finished a foot behind.

Ohio State took first and second places in the 200 yard breast stroke, Higgins winning the event, in 2:29.4, and his teammate McKee finishing two feet behind him. Haigh of Michigan was third and Allen of Iowa and Mack of Michigan took the last two places in that order.

Don Beatty.

Don Beatty, 23 year old mechanic from Jackson, Mich., took the all-events lead by running his total to 1,978.

Don, a son of Bill Beatty, a well known bowler of former years, opened his drive to the all-events lead with a 709 series that ended with a 261 after a 237 start and a 211 second game.

In the first game of his doubles he scored a 201, came back with a 245, and ran up a 640 total with a 194. He started his singles series with a 269, built up from a spare, seven strikes, spare, and three in a row. He sagged in the second game to 164, then finished with 196 for a 629 series.

Delbert Rogers and Harry Strohl of Terre Haute, Ind., effected the first change in the doubles standings when they carded 1220 and took over second place. Their total was three less than the leading pair of Frank Ecker and John Tanke of Chicago.

After opening with a mediocre 913 score, the Jersey five, veterans of six national tourneys, hung up games of 1,007 and 1,047. Ed Laczynski, rolling in fourth position, left the number four pin wobbling on a good hit and then missed the spare, costing his mates the lead.

The Karlsbrau five of Duluth, Minn., rolled into third place with a 2,905 score on the same squad.

The final change of the day saw the Rebold Undertakers of Cheviot, O., take fifth place in the five man event with a 2,867 total.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Seven hundred for three games is a cord of wood to most bowlers, but out in the Bruck Recreation on South Halsted street there's nothing unusual about them.

During the week two of these mighty series were bowled. Wally Barman put together games of 297, 218, and 201 for 716 in the Bruck Major league and Ed Gravender collected games of 236, 226, and 244 for 706 in the Swift & Co. league.

Barman's hefty total was the thirty-first 700 made in the Bruck Major league this season. A 767 by Lou Sajdak stands as this organization's season record.

When Gravender kept his bowling ball sailing into the 1-3 pocket with such good results he became the sixth member of the Swift league to break into the 700 class this season. The 1937-'38 record for this league is 748, established by Hank Kluge.

Randolph League.

The Birk Brothers clung to their one game lead in the Randolph league by sweeping their series with the La Palina Cigars. While shooting second high series of the season the Mineralites piled up 3,202 and won three games from the Burlington Routes to stay on the heels of the leaders. Because of losing one game to the Jolly Jacks, the Budweisers, who had been tied with the Mineralites, dropped back to third place. Matt Siwe of the Whitecaps was high individual with 702.

On North Side Alleys.

The Wallace Coals swept their series with the Gold Crowns and climbed to second place, one game behind the Fries-Malwitz team, in the Samuelson Major league. Fries-Malwitz took three from the Michelobs. Thus first place will be at stake when these top teams meet Wednesday night. High individuals were Walter Schuster, 677; Herb Gumz, 657; Gene Mytys, 648; Ed Holcer, 636; Chic Schroeder, 635, and Harry Ledene Sr., 632. . . . Frank Muza's 710 series helped the Virginia club take two of three from the William Jewelers in the Gold Coast Major league. Led by Paul Marian with 695, the Budweisers swept their series with the Triangle Shirts and climbed into second place. However, the leading Fuller Presses aren't worried, for they whipped the Keeley Beers three times. . . . Joe Aubert shoved the pins around for 710 as he topped the Chicago North Side Traveling league. Next were Irwin Jackson, 671, aided by a 277 game; Vic Malecki, 647; Martin Szorc, 536; Stanley Pasciak, 616, and Ed Tadevich, 616.

Windy City League.

After finishing his first game with six strikes Stanley Kosobucki of the Soper Brothers laid in eleven straight strikes for a 299 game in the Windy City Major league. The only thing that kept him from a perfect game was that balky No. 10 pin. However, he was happy with a 718 series. In the team race the Budweisers picked up three more victories, and now have a three game lead over the second place Kralovecs. The Mineralites pulled up to third place by scoring three victories, and now are only five games from first after recovering from a disastrous start.

About the Women.

Congress Recreation, with games of 840, 897, and 1,028, totaled 2,765 in the Bruck Major league. High individuals were Mae Ebert, 596; Ethel Kelly, 580; Gerda Johnson, 566; Flo Waterman, 536; Min Fox, 535; Nettie Kolb, 533; Catherine Coyle, 532; Bee Hochstadter, 526; Louise Koch, 515; Margaret Luchsinger, 516; Elizabeth Claussen, 514; Eleanor Bergen, 511, and Agnes Pitelka, 502.

In the Congress Major league the Budweiser Girls shot Chicago's high series for women with games of 980, 973, and 970 for a 2,923 and won two games from the Logan Square Buicks, who rolled 2,760. Celia Grob was high with 648, which included a game of 257. Carrie Enders was second with 611 and Ann Unhoch third with 603.

B. B. Y. O. FIVES TO OPEN BASKET TOURNEY TODAY

More than 1,500 boys, representing 153 quintets, will swing into play at 10 o'clock this morning on ten courts located throughout the city to open the third annual B'nai B'rith Youth organization basketball tournament.

Ten days of play will be required to determine champions in six divisions, 105, 115, 125, 140 pounds, heavyweights, and inter-B'nai B'rith lodge divisions. The meet wil be climaxed with a clash between all-stars of the Catholic Youth organization and all-stars of the B'nai B'rith Youth organization on March 30 in Lane High school gymnasium.

75 Contests Carded Today.

Play will continue on Monday, March 14, and on March 15, 16, 17, 20, 22, 23, and 30. Today's schedule calls for more than seventy-five contests.

There will be unusual interest in contests in the 140 pound and heavyweight divisions for the referees and B. B. Y. O. officials will recommend players from these teams for a position on the representative B. B. Y. O. all-star team. Emil G. Gollubier, for the last 21 years physical education director of the J. P. I., will coach the all-stars and Elliot Hassan, Hyde Park coach, is in charge of the selection committee.

Hahns Defend 140 Pound Title.

Favorite teams in the heavy division include the Bronze Memorials, South Side A. Z. A., and Marovitz Hebrews, who placed last year in the semi-finals. The Hahns, last year's 140 pound title holders, will defend their championship against sturdy opposition.

Maccabees and St. Louis Play Soccer Today

BY OFFSIDE.

The spring soccer season opens officially today, with a full list of matches carded in all leagues and an outstanding attraction in the meeting of the South Sides of St. Louis and the Maccabees in Sparta stadium in an intercity contest. The South Sides, until two weeks ago, were the favorites to capture the national challenge cup, but failed to get past the Castle Shannons of Pittsburgh, who meet Sparta today in the first of a two game series in the western finals. In the St. Louis lineup are such stars as Alec McNab, Scotty Neilson, Billy Watson, Hughie Davidson, and Billy Gonsalves, called the greatest shot in soccer. Neilson, Watson, and Davidson all are former Brickie stars. The Maccabees will make one change in the lineup that lost by one goal to Sparta in the last cup game—David Rarity, new Scottish star, will play inside right. The match starts at 3 p. m. Lineups:

MACCABEES.		ST. LOUIS.
Griffith	G.	Rodriguez
Henney	R. B.	Erbe
Alb Waldron	L. B.	Davidson
Suzchs	R. H.	Begley

McGee	I. L.	Gonsalves
Lillie	O. L.	Stratmen

Substitutions — Maccabees: Campbell and Perlman. St. Louis: Green.
Referee—Harry Monaghan.

The International league has sixteen games carded today. Two of these matches hold the spotlight. They are the meeting of the joint holders of first place in the league standing, the German-Americans and the Schwabens, at Elston and Kedzie avenues, and the battle between the Vikings and Hansa at Winnemac park. The Vikings trail the leaders by 2 points.

The Chicago league city division has four games scheduled today. The chief attraction is the game at 2600 West Grand avenue, between the American Eagles and the Calumet Parks.

The newly formed Junior association will start with two games, the Wanderers meeting the Schwabens and Oak Park playing the Workers.

DePauw Swimmers Beat George Williams, 52 to 31

DePauw university swimmers defeated George Williams college, 52 to 31, yesterday in the George Williams pool. DePauw won seven of the nine events.

Sporting Art Preview Brings High Praise

An unusual event on Chicago's sports calendar opens tomorrow when the Institute of American Sporting Art brings to Chicago its exhibition—a $250,000 collection of oil and water color paintings, etchings, and sculpture, all on sporting subjects. The exhibition, in the Midland Club hotel, 172 West Adams street, will be open daily from 11 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Comment by sports writers and artists attending previews Friday and yesterday indicated that Chicago's interest in sporting art may equal that of New York, where the exhibitions are annual affairs. Heads of Chicago art galleries rated many of the pictures worthy of exhibition in any art museum, while conceding that the show has unusual popular appeal.

Four Years in Collection.

The 1938 show represents four years' work on the part of Karl William Zoeller, director of the Sporting Art institute, in collecting representative paintings and sculpture of sports, including such subjects as horse racing, polo, horse shows, baseball, yachting, skiing, boxing, wrestling, track, hunting, and fishing.

Racing has attracted the most attention among artists, one complete wall of the large central exhibition hall being filled with scenes of racing at various tracks. Wild life, with ducks and hunting dogs holding a lead over big game animals, is next in favor.

"Da Winner" Draws Comment.

Most attention in the sculpture division went to Mahonri Young's bronzes of boxers, headed by "Da Winner," another item with a humorous twist. Admiration also was expressed for the wood carvings of big game animals by John Louis Clarke, a Blackfoot Indian whose tribal name is Man-Who-Talks-Not.

The winter sports section, topped by the oil paintings of A. Sheldon Pennoyer, and the yachting section, both in the foyer of the exhibition, captured the attention of those interested in these sports. Comment on the portraits of dogs centered on two champion pointers, painted by Raymond M. Hayden; a portrait of "Lobo," motion picture dog star, by R. Fayreweather Babcock, and three canvases by Mrs. R. R. McCormick, one showing a shepherd dog, one a hound, and one two hound puppies.

OPEN ARENA HOCKY LEAGUE PLAYOFFS TODAY

The first of two playoff games in the Arena Hocky league starts this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock with the C. Y. O. Shamrocks battling the Whiting Macks. In the second game the Chicago Hornets will encounter the Waukegan Rockets at 3:30 p. m.

There can be no ties today, for the sudden death ruling in playoffs makes it necessary for the teams to play until a decisive score is made.

$10,000 STAKE AT ANITA IS WON BY INDIAN BROOM

Star Shadow Finishes in Second Place.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 12.—[U.P.]—Indian Broom, ridden by Jocky Harry Richards, won the $10,000 added San Juan Capistrano handicap at Santa Anita today.

The 5 year old chestnut son of Brooms went to the front shortly after the gate was lifted. He held the lead around the backstretch and resisted all challenges to the wire.

Star Shadow, with Charlie Corbett up, was second and Amor Brujo, the big black from South America, was third. Indian Broom's time over a muddy track was 1:51 2-5, exceptionally fast for the mile and a furlong under the conditions.

CUBAN FILLY WINS

New Orleans, La., March 12.—(AP)—Joji T., a Cuban owned filly ridden by a Cuban jocky, won the $2,000 added Lafayette handicap for 2 year olds at four furlongs today at the Fair Grounds.

Cornelio Mojena brought the daughter of Supremus from behind to pass Major B. and draw away from the determined challenge of Sir Witch in the half mile feature.

Joji T. paid $9.20 for $2 and was favorite in the field of 14. Marco Way, heavily backed, bolted after the start and did not race.

Next in importance to the juvenile stake was the Milton handicap at a mile and 70 yards, which wound up in a four horse finish. Flying Watch, with Jack Richard up, nosed out Whipowill. Chance Ray was third and Remining, fastest finishing of all, came in fourth just three noses behind the winner. Flying Watch paid $10.40.

Whipowill set the pace under top impost of 114 pounds and barely failed to last. The favorite, Carvola, finished far back.

Candidates for the $12,000 Louisiana Derby which ends the local racing season March 26 met in a six furlong event, and Bunny Baby, ridden by R. L. Vedder, won by a head from Dolly Val. Spillway, top weighted favorite at 118 pounds, took third place. Bunny Baby rewarded backers with $7.40.

MUCHO GUSTO WINS

Miami, Fla., March 12.—(AP)—Mucho Gusto, a horse that is almost unbeatable over Tropical Park's track, won the Orange Blossom handicap at a mile and a sixteenth today. The 6 year old horse led all the way and won by a length and a half in 1:44 3-5.

Thomas J. Healey's Tatterdemalion was second by a length and a half over Mrs Emil Denemark's War Minstrel. Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' Caballero II., the favorite, was beaten three lengths for the show. Then came No Sir, Baby Talk, Teufel, Palamede, Francesco, and Blackbirder.

Outdoor Fans Open Wild Life Week Sunday

BY BOB BECKER.

By far the greatest rally of outdoor fans America ever has known will start a week from today when National Wild Life week will be celebrated in every state, every city, and every community by nearly all outdoor fans in the country.

The observance is being sponsored by the National Wildlife federation, an organization launched some time ago to bring together all conservation clubs, rod and gun clubs, and other groups interested in fishing, hunting, bird life, forests and similar outdoor subjects. J. N. Darling is president of the federation. Frederick F. Jordan is director of the campaign enlisting all sportsmen and conservationists in the observance of the wild life restoration week. Officials expect not only to focus attention on the nation-wide alliance of sportsmen which now is interested in conservation but also to raise funds for the federation.

Objective Outlined.

The objective of the federation and the celebration it is planning has been outlined by officials of the federation as follows:

"The General Wildlife federation is an alliance of all organizations concerned with outdoor resources. National Wild Life Restoration week will enlist support of the federation in its program of coöperation with federal and state agencies in bringing back conditions necessary to the welfare of native species of mammals, birds, and fish."

One of the features of the week's observance will be the sale of wild life stamps. States will help in the sale of these stamps to outdoor fans. For example, Michigan already has announced that its quota is 2,500,000 stamps which will be sold between March 20 and March 26. Although no commissions or salaries are being paid for the sale of stamps, Prof. Paul A. Herbert of Michigan State college, head of the Michigan committee, has set up a plan whereby a 25 per cent rebate will be given any group participating, provided the money is used for some conservation project.

Stamps Include 16 Designs.

The bird and mammal portraits for the stamps, numbering 16 designs, were drawn by J. N. Darling. Receipts from the sale of stamps will be divided between local organizations interested in conservation and the General Wildlife federation.

13 BIKE TEAMS START WHIRL IN STADIUM TONIGHT

Letourner Sure Number Is Lucky for Him.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Thirteen teams, composed of riders from eight countries, will begin Chicago's 39th international six day bicycle race in Chicago Stadium at 9 o'clock tonight. Bill De Correvont, Austin High school half back, will fire the starting gun.

So much was set forth in a few thousand well chosen words by Mr. Harry Mendel, the veiled prophet, who is neither veiled nor a prophet, in a dispatch to the editor heralding the event. Nowhere in his voluminous thesis, however, did Mr. Mendel explain how De Correvont or any one else was going to get 26 high spirited artists to start a race in which there are 13 teams.

13 Is Lucky for Letourner.

Alfred Letourner, the affable little Frenchman who is paired with Omer Debruycker of Belgium, may approach the takeoff with a great deal of confidence. He believes 13 is a lucky number if worn on a red jersey, and will stand for no other. But the remainder of the field may be a trifle fractious.

The favorites in the race are expected to be Torchy and Tiny Peden, Canada's cycling giants, a pair ever popular in Chicago whose customer appeal may be stepped up accordingly if Torchy's reports of their improvement are true. Torchy, who will be seeking to set an all-time record by achieving his 32d six day victory, thus breaking a tie with Piet Van Kempen, believes his brother to be the fastest rider in the world at the moment, and confidently expects to make a show of the field throughout the week. The Pedens won the San Francisco race last month.

Seven Make Debuts.

Seven riders will be making their Chicago debuts. They are Henry Szamota, the champion of Poland, who speaks six languages and toured the United States last summer as interpreter for his countrywoman, Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, the tennis star; Carl Goebels, Gustav Zims, and Victor Rausch, who arrived from Germany last week and will be making their first appearance in America; Remigio Saavedra, an Argentine polo player who stabled his pony when he learned how generous American six day bike race promoters are; a youngster named De Bacco; George Shipman of Brooklyn, and an Italian, Binnetti, who has been teamed with De Fillipo as the Fascist combination.

Tonight Is Polish Night.

MIDGET AUTO CARD TONIGHT IS CANCELED

Under a new plan to hold meets every other week the midget automobile racing scheduled for tonight in the 124th Field Artillery armory has been canceled. The next races will be held on Sunday night, March 20, on which date a 100 lap race will feature the card.

Thorne Donnelley, president of the Chicago Auto Racing corporation, said the racing group decided to run semi-monthly meets on the assumption that they would prove more popular, both with drivers and fans. It is his plan to run a 100 lap feature on every racing night.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

SLIPPERY WHEN WET.

Marengo, Ill., March 7.—While you are fighting for safe driving I am sure that the public would be interested in a safe road to drive on. Weather bureau statistics report a probable 162 days rainy or slippery out of the 365 days of the year, and it seems to me that the rainy day driver should be given some extra consideration due to the hazard he is taking, not only for himself, but he is a danger to every one traveling with him.

Why are the roads designed and constructed only for the dry weather driver? Superelevations on curves are designed for dry weather only. Is it necessary to construct a roadway of the same material all the way when material men can and will furnish a nonskid material that is ideal to be used for safe driving on curves and on treacherous graces.

Variable winds take the factor of safety out of all calculations for superelevation on curves unless a nonskid material is used. A car approaching a truck on an icy curve on route 20 was blown into a head-on collision. Both were burned up. The driver on neither car had any control of his machine on the ice when the gust of wind struck them.

Route 20, west of Elgin, is noted for its dangerous condition when wet. Not so long ago twenty-three cars and trucks had to be pulled out of the ditches in one day due to wind and slippery, unsafe pavement in a stretch of about fifteen miles. The prevailing condition is not due to the lack of engineering research. There is a nonskid material that can be applied to smooth surfaced concrete, and various states have for years provided a nonskid shoulder that can be constructed at a reasonable cost.

EDGAR A. ROSSITER.

HIS HORN SILENT SEVEN YEARS.

Oak Park, Ill., March 7.—Somebody said: "Take the horns off of automobiles and greatly reduce accidents."

About seven years ago while driving along my horn failed me. It made me extremely cautious in approaching each intersection and I discovered it was the only safe way to drive, and for seven years I have never touched my horn and I have never been even near an accident, although I have driven to Florida and back twice and to California once, as well as much city driving.

I believe that if horns were not used the death rate would be decreased over 60 per cent. Let thoughtful drivers try this without any laws being passed and they will become public benefactors as well as protecting themselves from sorrow and misery. R. E. CANTWELL SR.

NO PARKING AT POSTOFFICE.

Chicago, March 9.—Why is parking prohibited at night around the new postoffice? Is there some wisdom that allows parking at the old postoffice where Clark and Dearborn streets carry street cars and loop trafic and prohibits this privilege at the new building where Canal street is wide and without trafic?

A POSTOFFICE CLERK.

RUTTED CITY STREETS.

Chicago, March 10.—Some of the streets are so bad that the holes are a foot deep. When it rains they fill with water and we poor fish break a spring or an axle. Instead of filling these holes with solid dirt or concrete our political godfathers have them filled with mud or clay. At the first rain the clay is washed away and your hole remains.

It is no wonder that all my out of town friends chide me about the streets. Perhaps in no other city in the world are streets so bad. The city collects millions in auto vehicle taxes, in addition, "Uncle Delano" donates WPA funds. What becomes of all this money? Are we not supporting politicians in office so that they can take our money and give us something in return?

JOHN VALENTINO.

ENGLISH RAILROADS.

Chicago, March 8.—I am 76 years of age and left England when I was 14. At that time I noticed that every road ran over bridges built over every railroad track. When we arrived in New York we took a train for Milwaukee, and I was amazed to see that hundreds of roads ran across the rails.

Now the newspapers are filled with reports of scores of trucks and autos being struck by railroad trains and many people killed. Every one of them would be alive today if the roads could run over the railroad tracks over bridges. F. P.

SAN FRANCISCO FAIR ADOPTS 'SEE WEST' SLOGAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 12.—[Special.]—A slogan "See all the west in 1939" has been adopted for a promotion campaign in connection with the world's fair here next year. Motor clubs and similar agencies have signed contracts for space in a Vacationland building that will be part of the exposition.

Eighty acres of automobile parking space with a capacity of 12,000 automobiles is being constructed on Treasure Island in San Francisco bay, the site of the fair. A parking administration building and service stations will cost $180,000.

State to Line 314 Miles of Roads with Trees, Shrubbery

BY HAL FOUST.

The Illinois highway department has just started a spring planting program that will ornament 314 miles of roadside with 5,369 tall varieties of trees, 3,612 flowering trees, 745 evergreens, 52,800 shrubs and 12,719 vines. F. Lynden Smith, director of public works, said yesterday that the total cost will approximate $268,557, of which $212,000 will be covered by a federal allotment.

"It is fitting to spend road money for beautification," said Mr. Smith, "because a considerable portion of highway usage is recreational travel and because this pleasure driving pays a considerable portion of the gasoline tax revenue.

Helps Control Soil Erosion.

"However, the benefits of roadside planting are not solely esthetic. The control of soil erosion is an indispensible service from this landscaping."

Albin Gries, the highway department's chief landscape architect, said that the planting in general will follow a design policy of harmonizing the roadway with the landscape. Indigenous shrubs and trees will be favored in natural arrangements. Formal arrangements are used where the main figure in the scene viewed through a windshield is a bridge or grade separation or other creation of man.

These Trees Favored.

Among the tall growing trees favored for roadside planting are American elm, pin oak, sycamore, Norway maple, and honey locust. Popular, low, flowering trees are America plum, crabs, and thorns. Virginia creeper, honeysuckle and wild roses are commonly used for ground cover.

The highway landscapers for practical reasons mix varieties more than does nature in native woods. This is so that any blight attacking just one variety will not wipe out the roadside planting.

Metropolitan Area Projects.

The spring program to be financed with state funds includes the following metropolitan area projects:

Cook county—On Route 58, replacements in formal planting west of the North Shore and Milwaukee railroad and McCormick boulevard; planting at state police radio station, and replacements where necessary in all formal plantings throughout the district.

Du Page county—On Route 59, complete roadside planting project from West Chicago south to Plainfield; on Route 59, planting picnic areas and sodding cuts for erosion control between U. S. 20 and Illinois 64; on Route 53, sodding slopes to check erosion south of Glen Ellyn.

De Kalb county—On U. S. 64, planting wide right-of-way near junction of U. S. 64 and U. S. 51; on Route 71, planting picnic area west of Hinckley.

Will county—On Route 59, grading backslopes and sodding for erosion control at junction of Route 59 with Route 69; on Illinois 7, grading backslopes and sodding one mile east of Lockport.

Lake county—On Route 68, sodding slopes for erosion control north and south of U. S. 20.

Federal Roadside Program.

On the federal roadside development program are the following metropolitan area projects, some of them started last fall:

Cook county—On Southwest highway 1.23 miles from Western avenue to 79th street and 1.41 miles from 79th street to Crawford avenue on Route 49, planting B. and O. C. T. subway and the Blue Island railroad separation at Riverdale; on Route 49, planting I. M. B. subway at Riverdale; and on Route 50, planting C. R. I. and P. subway in Oak Forest.

Kendall county—On U. S. 52, 5.26 miles from the La Salle county line to Lisbon, 4.18 miles from Lisbon to Route 47, and 5.36 miles from Route 47 east.

Kendall-Will counties—On U. S. 52, 5.89 miles from Route 59 west.

WARNS AGAINST MEXICO CITY TO OAXACA ROAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, D. F., March 12.—[Special.]—William Harrison Furlong of San Antonio, Tex., has just returned from an inspection of active construction along the 340 miles of highway being built south from here to Oaxaca. He said that the road in its present condition cannot be recommended for tourists. He estimated that it will be finished to the Guatemalan border within three years.

Oaxaca, in a lush tropical setting, is one of the oldest colonial cities in Mexico. Nearby are the ruins of Mitla, a rich archæological field.

Federal officials accompanied Mr. Furlong on his trip. He is representative of the Mexican highway department in the United States and also a representative of the Mexican Automobile association in San Antonio.

The clinics are held to acquaint station men with the latest information on automotive engineering trends, plus modern merchandising methods.

AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY

STOCK MARKET SEEKS PLAN TO BROADEN TRADE

Associate Member Plan Considered.

New York, March 12.—(AP)—The New York Stock exchange today appointed four members of its governing committee to consider proposals to extend the scope of the exchange through associate memberships or through splitting commissions with nonmembers.

If such proposals were adopted it would be a drastic change from the traditional policy of the exchange of restricting its business tc its own member firms. It may open the door to banks, investing institutions, and the thousands of investment bankers and dealers throughout the country, to closer relations with the exchange.

Committee Advised Study.

The group of four was selected by Charles R. Gay, president of the exchange, as result of the report of the committee for study of organization and administration, issued Jan. 27, which was headed by Carle C. Conway, chairman of Continental Can company. The Conway committee did not pass on the merits of such proposals, but reported its opinion that they should receive "careful and special study."

The Conway committee reported that during its investigation: "Testimony has been heard indicating a feeling that the scope of the exchange should be considerably broadened. This line of thought takes various forms.

Suggests Associate Plan.

"It has been proposed, for instance, that a largely increased body of brokers and security sellers should be admitted to the exchange by creating a class of associate membership so as to make connections with the exchange available to a vastly enlarged group. It has been suggested that methods be worked out by which the floor members or exchange houses divide commissions with non-members."

The four members of the governing committee appointed to study the matter are E. Burd Grubb of Coggeshall & Hicks, formerly president of the New York Curb exchange; F. D. Everett of Hornblower & Weeks; Bertrand L. Taylor Jr. of Taylor & Delany, and Robert Vose White of Jackson & Curtis. The group was authorized to select an additional member of the exchange to work with them.

SEC Asks Change.

The Securities and Exchange commission has demanded the revise of the form of the New York Stock Exchange's questionnaire on financial condition of members, it was learned today. Through a questionnaire sent out at intervals the stcok exchange seeks to check the condition of member firms.

Demand of the SEC for a different form of inquiry blank was prompted by the failure of Richard Whitney & Co. this week, it was said. The SEC wishes a questionnaire to fit requirements of the various types of firms having stock exchange membership in place of the present uniform document. The New York SEC offices refused to comment on the action.

GOODYEAR CHIEF SEES TREND TO SAFE MOTORING

The country's growing consciousness of the need for greater motoring safety was stressed by P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, at a meeting of the company's central field organization at the Knickerbocker hotel yesterday. More than 400 sales representatives attended the meeting, which was the third in a series of the company's conferences throughout the country.

Litchfield said the Goodyear company would "do it share" in eliminating loss of life, injuries, and property damage attributable to motoring each year by building blowout proof tires and informing the public how they can make their automobiles safer.

LABOR PROPOSES WAGE CUT TO KEEP MILL OPEN

Elwood, Ind., March 12.—(AP)—Petitions to the parent Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, offering to accept a 12 per cent wage reduction "to keep the local tinplate plant in operation," were circulated here today by employés of the Elwood American Works.

Carnegie-Illinois has indicated it plans to abandon the Elwood plant because other mills are situated more advantageously to coal, ore, and shipping facilities. The Elwood plant, opened in 1892, was one of the first successful tinplate mills in the country.

Four Probes Try to Clear Whitney Maze

New York, March 12.—(AP)—In an attempt to unravel the financial maze through which the Richard Whitney & Co., stock brokerage firm became insolvent, four separate investigations will continue Monday with the prospect of further grand jury action.

Whitney is at liberty on two charges of grand larceny in bail of $10,000 and $25,000, as a result of investigations by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey and Attorney General John J. Bennett, and faces a quiz by United States Attorney Lamar Hardy and the New York Stock exchange. The securities and exchange commission, a federal bureau, also will look into Whitney's tangled affairs.

Two Charges of Theft.

Bennett said the Whitney firm crashed with liabilities of "more than $1,000,000" all of which allegedly was taken by the senior partner without knowledge of his co-partners. Specifically Whitney is charged with the theft of $103,000 from the estate of George R. Sheldon, his father-in-law, and the theft of $109,000 from the New York Yacht club, of which he was treasurer.

A corps of lawyers and accountants of the SEC, working in concert with the United States attorney, studied data of the defunct firm in an attempt to discover if federal laws were broken.

E. H. H. Simmons, who preceded Whitney as president of the stock exchange, will be called Monday by Assistant Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall, to tell of Whitney's use of securities belonging to the gratuity fund of the exchange. This fund was returned to the exchange after repeated demands by Simmons.

Exchange Orders Reform.

The exchange, through its president, Charles R. Gay, began a drastic reformation. A new rule adopted by the exchange requires all member firms to make available to customers on demand statements showing the firm's financial condition. This statement also would be available to the exchange.

There were widespread reports that this is only the beginning of the exchange's efforts to restore public confidence, which was shaken as never before by the action of Whitney who was regarded as one of the ultra-conservatives. The exchange did not seem as much worked up over the Bennett and Dewey activitis as it did over the announcement that the federal government will enter the investigation.

CHICAGO BANKS DROP BOND FEE TO AID BUSINESS

Chicago banks have eliminated the fees heretofore charged correspondent banks for the safekeeping of bonds, officials of the Chicago Clearing House association announced yesterday. The elimination was approved by a vote of the membership of the association at a meeting Friday. The action is retroactive to March 1.

Banks have charged at the rate of $1 a year per $1,000 bond to meet the expense of keeping the securities. In removing the charge, Chicago is following a practice in effect in New York and other leading cities. Under the new plan, a fee will be charged only when the deposit balance of the correspondent bank is determined insufficient to cover the expense of the safekeeping service.

The action may bring to Chicago securities which have been going to other cities. This, in turn, would mean an increase in business for bond houses, when correspondent banks dispose of their securities, and buy others.

STEEL OUTPUT SLATED TO RISE IN TWO AREAS

Steel ingot production will rise sharply this week in the Chicago and Pittsburgh districts, preliminary mill schedules indicated yesterday.

The Chicago rate will increase about 2½ points to 28.7 per cent of theoretical capacity, which will be the highest rate for this district since the second week of last November, when the operating rate was 35 per cent of capacity. This is the third successive week in which the production rate has been increased.

The Pittsburgh district will increase steel production 4½ points over last week's rate to approximately 29½ per cent of theoretical ingot capacity. Production is expected to fall, however, in the Shenango valley area, according to a report by Dow-Jones & Co.

Continental Roll and Steel.

Continental Roll and Steel Foundry company, East Chicago, had higher profits in 1937, but reported a fall in operations to 20 per cent of capacity at present, compared with 90 per cent in the first nine months of 1937.

Net profit for last year was $984,966, or $3.66 a common share, compared with 1936 adjusted profit of $740,575, or $2.52 a share. Indicated profit for the second half of 1937 totaled $424,490, against $367,327 in the second half of 1936, and $560,476 in the first half of 1937.

Jay T. Osler, president, told stockholders that the tax burden increased during the year. He said that the company paid or provided for direct taxes of $477,000, or $2.24 a common share, compared with $270,000, in 1936.

Describes Production Fall.

"Operations for the first nine months of 1937," Osler said, "averaged approximately 90 per cent of capacity, but a progressive decline in the last three months resulted in an average of 57 per cent for that period, reducing the average for the entire year to 80 per cent, compared with 65 per cent for the previous year. Operations for the first three months of 1938 will be at the rate of approximately 20 per cent of capacity."

Net profit for 1937 of $821,365, or $1.93 a common share, was reported by the W. W. Bliss company, maker of power presses and machinery. In 1936 profit was $543,260, or $1.11 a share.

BAN ON MEXICAN OIL WAGE BOOST IS DENIED FIRMS

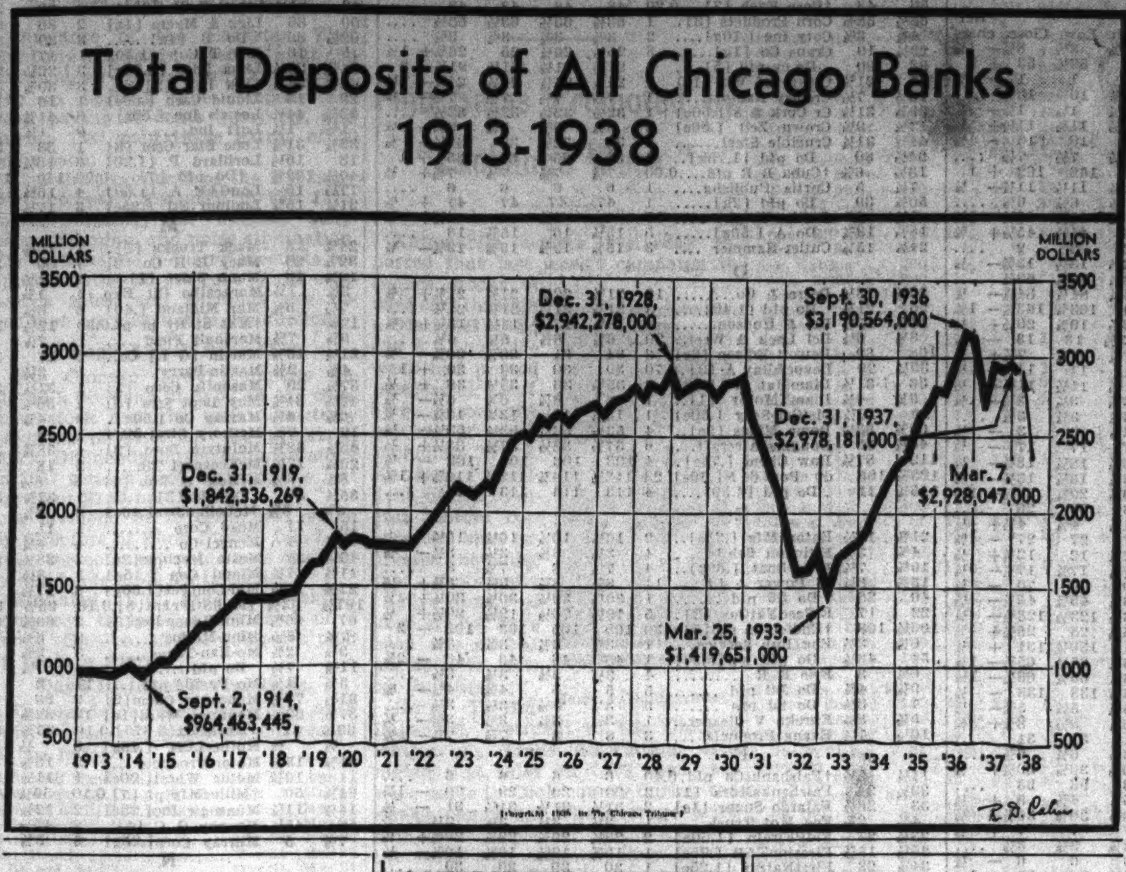
MEXICO CITY, March 12.—(AP)—District Judge Manuel Bartlett today refused to make permanent a 72-hour injunction granted foreign oil companies last Tuesday against an arbitral board decision raising wages and granting benefits of workers.

Representatives of the $400,000,000 industry will be notified formally of the action Monday. If they persist in their refusal to abide by the decision, the labor department is expected to enforce compliance.

The oil companies, branding the increases as prohibitive, lost an appeal to the supreme court. They contended the arbitral board order would result in $7,200,000 to $12,000,000 annual increases in 18,000 workers' wages.

Coal Commission Revokes Orders on Classification

Washington, D. C., March 12.—(AP)—The bituminous coal commission today revoked all orders classifying coal and determining weighed average costs in each production district. The commission declared the revocation "clears the way for taking initial steps toward establishing new minimum prices."



Studebaker's Profits Drop Sharply in '37

The Studebaker corporation, South Bend, Ind., automobile manufacturer, yesterday reported net profit of $811,874 in the year ended Dec. 31, 1937, a sharp decline from the 1936 net profit of $2,187,783. The 1937 earnings were equal to 37 cents a share on 2,199,371 shares of common stock, compared with $1.01 a share on the stock outstanding at the end of the preceding year.

Paul G. Hoffman, reports car dealers' stocks low.

In the report, which will be submitted to stockholders at their annual meeting April 26 in Wilmington, Del., H. S. Vance, chairman, and Paul G. Hoffman, president, said the decrease in earnings occurred despite a larger dollar volume of sales.

Dollar Volume Higher.

The 1937 volume was $70,683,261 compared with $68,928,724 in 1936, but fewer units were sold in 1937, the number of passenger and commercial cars being 91,475, compared with 91,999 in 1936.

The report, the second for a full year since the company emerged from receivership in 1935, attributed the decreased earnings to rising material and labor costs in the first nine months of the year and to a sharp drop in sales in the last three months of 1937. The company had an operating loss in the fourth quarter, but unused reserves enabled it to report a net profit for the period of $303,298.

Vance and Hoffman said current sales are at a low level, with dealers reversing the seasonal trend by buying fewer cars than they are selling to the public.

Dealers Reduce Stocks.

"As a result," the report stated, "dealers' stocks of cars and trucks totaled 8,576 on Feb. 28, compared with 11,234 on Oct. 31 and with 14,524 on Feb. 28, 1937."

Comparisons of sales in the last nine years were made as follows: 91,475 in 1937; 91,999 in 1936; 54,649 in 1935; 51,682 in 1934; 48,287 in 1933; 47,733 in 1932; 53,885 in 1931; 60,559 in 1930, and 97,529 in 1929.

In the first nine months of 1937, the statement said, unit sales were larger than in the corresponding 1936 period, but increasing costs resulted in smaller gross profits for the three quarters, as well as lower net profits. The net profit for the first nine months, however, was "within $200,000" of the corresponding 1936 period, the statement said.

"In the final quarter," the report added, "the sharp recession in business resulted in a decline of about 37 per cent in unit sales, compared with the final quarter of 1937."

More Federal Taxes Claimed.

The report disclosed that the United States treasury has notified the corporation that additional tax liabilities will be claimed against the company as follows: For 1935, normal income tax in the amount of $364,546 and excess profits tax of $132,555; and for the year 1936, normal income tax in the amount of $108,179, and surtax on undistributed profits in the amount of $593,213.

The claims are based on the treasury's contention that the cost to the corporation of the assets taken over by it on March 9, 1935, upon consummation of the reorganization, should be measured by the quoted market prices of the corporation's securities at that time, and that such cost so determined should be the basis for determining profits and depreciation.

The management contended the treasury's attitude was unjustified and announced intention to contest the additional assessments.

Urges Illinois Resident Be Put on Coal Board

Washington, D. C., March 12.—(AP)—Representative Fries [D., Ill.] urged President Roosevelt today to appoint a resident of Illinois a member of the National Bituminous Coal commission. Fries referred to reports that Chairman Charles F. Hosford Jr., Butler, Pa., again had submitted his resignation. In a letter to Roosevelt, Fries said residents of his state "feel our coal industry and coal consuming interests can be best served by having a representative on the bituminous coal commission."

GOVERNMENT INCOME RISES TO 4 BILLIONS; DEBT SETS NEW PEAK

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[U. P.]—The government's income from taxes, customs, and other miscellaneous sources crossed the $4,000,000,000 mark on March 10, as the federal debt touched a new all-time peak, the treasury daily statement disclosed today.

Receipts totaled $4,003,661,552 as compared with $2,914,868,877 for the corresponding period of the fiscal year 1937. In his January budget, the President estimated that receipts for this fiscal year would aggregate $6,320,513,000.

The steadily advancing public debt reached $37,809,278,238, approximately $206,000,000 above the peak estimated in the January budget. It will fall when the treasury redeems approximately $400,000,000 of short term bills maturing within the next week. Spending so far this fiscal year totals $5,163,660,456.

INDUSTRY GAINS SLIGHTLY; STEEL, FREIGHT HIGHER

New York, March 12.—(AP)—Industrial activity improved moderately this week, after allowance for seasonal factors. Measured by the Associated Press adjusted index, activity rose to 68.5 per cent of the 1929-'30 average from 68.2 last week and compared with 105.7 a year ago.

Better than seasonal gains were made by steel mill operations, electric power output and total freight car loadings. The improvement in freight shipments, however, resulted entirely from the movement of less than car lot merchandise, as heavy industrial items gained less than seasonally.

Automobile assemblies were up seasonally, and the index was unchanged at the year's low. Cotton manufacturing dipped and residential building continued downward.

	Last week.	Preceding wk.	Year ago.
Composite index	68.5	68.2	105.7
Automobile products	51.3	51.3	98.5
Steel mill activities	40.1	39.3	117.2

TEXAS RAILROAD PLANS $60,607,000 REFUNDING LOAN

Authority to issue $60,607,000 of series A first and refunding bonds, dated Jan. 1, 1938, and payable Jan. 1, 1987, with an interest rate of 4½ per cent, was asked yesterday by the Texas and New Orleans Railroad company in an application to the interstate commerce commission.

The railroad proposes to use $27,246,000 of the amount to pay part of an account owed to the Southern Pacific company, its parent organization. Use of $33,361,000 to refund outstanding issues also was proposed. These include obligations assumed when the Texas and New Orleans line acquired a number of other Texas and Louisiana companies in 1934.

The I. C. C. approved a $1,800,000 loan by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to trustees of the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad company. About 65 per cent of the funds will be used to purchase rails and other track materials.

CHICAGO CURB EXCHANGE TRADE ENDS TOMORROW

Trading on the Chicago Curb exchange will cease permanently tomorrow at 2 p. m., and the exchange will be dissolved.

On Feb. 28 the Securities and Exchange commission permitted the curb to withdraw its registration as a national securities exchange, effective Tuesday. Dissolution was voted by curb members because of its declining membership, the fall in volume of listings and transactions, and consequent losses on operations.

Trading since March 7 on the curb has been on a cash basis.

Los Angeles Flood Losses Estimated at $44,500,000

Los Angeles, Cal., March 12.—(AP)—The official report of the Insurance Underwriters of Southern California estimated today property loss from last week's flood in the Los Angeles metropolitan area alone amounted to more than $44,500,000.

Dollar Value Rises; Foreign Capital Flees

The value of the American dollar rose abruptly yesterday in the foreign exchange market as foreigners transferred capital into American funds to safeguard themselves against possible new exchange restrictions that would result from a European war.

British, Swiss, Belgian, and Dutch currencies all depreciated in relation to the dollar. The French franc, which has been under severe selling pressure for several days, made a moderate recovery, closing 0.0275 cent higher at 3.20 cents.

London Transactions Heavy.

The exchange market was unsettled through the trading session and the tension increased as news of the developments in Austria was received. Transactions in the London market were said to be the heaviest for Saturday in months. The turnover in French and American currency in London was estimated at more than 100 million dollars.

The pound sold as low as $4.985 in the London market, the lowest quotation since Nov. 13. In subsequent trading in New York the pound recovered part of its loss, closing at $4.99⅝, compared with Friday's closing figure of $5.00¾.

The decline in the pound sterling in relation to the dollar was said by exchange experts to be due in part to British efforts to stabilize the franc. The British stabilization fund was said to have intervened actively in the market in support of the French currency.

Swiss Francs Fall.

In the New York trading Swiss francs fell 0.13 cent to 23.07 cents. Heavy conversion of Swiss francs into both dollars and sterling was reported. The Belgian belga dropped 0.055 cent and the Dutch guilder fell 0.15 cent.

The German mark, which is under rigid control of German exchange authorities, also developed weakness in New York. It closed .12 cent lower at 40.25 cents. The Italian lira, also subject to strict control, was steady at 5.265 cents.

Saturday is normally a quiet day in the exchange market but business started off with a rush when the markets opened in London and Paris and did not slow down for the remainder of the day.

The gold market in London showed further evidence of the efforts of foreigners to safeguard their capital. The price of bar gold advanced 1½ pence to 139 shillings, 8 pence an ounce. Because of the change in the dollar-pound ratio, however, the price of gold was lower in terms of American funds. At the closing price for sterling gold was quoted at the equivalent of $34.81 an ounce, 16 cents below the preceding day's quotation.

TOBACCO, COTTON MARKET QUOTAS WINNING IN VOTE

Washington, D. C., March 12.—(AP)—Early returns tonight from three farmer referenda gave overwhelming majorities for marketing quotas on cotton and two types of tobacco.

Unofficial returns from 490 counties in seventeen states in the cotton referendum gave 739,825 votes for marketing quotas and 56,004 against. Only a two-thirds majority of the farmers voting is required to put the control system into operation.

The balloting on the tobacco quotas was somewhat closer, but more than the required two-thirds majority were affirmative votes.

Earlier reports of strong opposition to the cotton control system in Oklahoma and Texas were not borne out by the figures coming in from those states.

Rail Unions to Fight Pay Cut Program

Representatives of the nation's railroad brotherhoods said yesterday that the unions will resist the move by 142 roads to reduce wages. The union officials assailed the proposal as "destructive to a recovery in business."

George M. Harrison, chairman rail labor executives.

Plans to ask the workers to take a wage cut to help the roads out of financial difficulties resulting from sharply declining revenues were announced Friday by directors of the Association of American Railroads at a meeting in Washington, D. C. Association representatives will meet in Chicago March 18 to take further action.

Promises Vigorous Resistance.

The attitude of the unions was disclosed in Cincinnati yesterday by George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association. He said that the proposal would be "vigorously resisted."

A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said in Cleveland, O., that they would fight any effort to cut wages.

"The present base rates in the industry were set only last October," Whitney said. "It is ridiculous for the carriers to come in six months later and propose a reduction."

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Whitney said, will press demands for government control of the carriers if they pursue their anuonced course of action.

View on "Curing" Ills.

"The only other way, besides federal control, to cure their financial ills," Whitney added, "is to write off watered capital structure and slash interest rates on bonded indebtedness to 3 per cent."

Robertson said the railroads' pay cut proposal was "shocking to the railroad employés," and asserted "every possible effort will be made to oppose this unjustified demand."

The proposed pay reduction would affect approximately 1,000,000 workers. Last year these workers won pay increases totaling about $135,000,000 annually. Of this increase, about $100,000,000 annually was won by 750,000 members of the sixteen nonoperating unions on a basis of a wage boost of 40 cents a day per worker. This increase was granted last August after the workers threatened to strike.

Operating Unions Get Boost.

In October, 250,000 members of the five operating brotherhoods won an increase of 6.6 per cent, or about $35,000,000 a year. Whether the railroads proposed to ask a reduction equivalent to last year's increase or would suggest some other basis of paring the pay rate was not indicated. The workers took a voluntary 10 per cent cut in 1932, which was restored gradually in the next three years.

The Association of American Railroads, in announcing plans for the Chicago meeting, expressed disappointment over the recent freight rate increase granted by the interstate commerce commission, declaring it is entirely inadequate to meet the critical situation which the railroads face. The nominal amount of the increase in rates was 10 per cent, but exemptions reduced this to about 5 per cent, estimated by the railroads at $175,000,000 a year, only one-third of what the carriers had asked.

$50,000,000 WOOL LOAN PROGRAM GETS UNDER WAY

Washington, D. C., March 12.—(AP)—A $50,000,000 loan program is under way to stabilize the price of wool and finance operations of producers who withhold the product until markets improve, Secretary Wallace announced today.

The program, operating under commodity loan provisions of the new farm act, will be supervised by the commodity credit corporation. Loans will be made for 10 months at 4 per cent. Their final maturity date is May 31, 1939.

The secretary said the loans on the principal classes of wool would be between 15 and 22 cents a pound. He said the loans were expected to average 17.5 to 18 cents a pound.

PRICE SWINGS WILDER UNDER U. S. 'CONTROL'

Results Misleading to Live Stock Men.

The agricultural program of the federal administration, formulated to stabilize prices of farm products, has had the opposite effect on markets in the last five years of experimenting by the department of agriculture, a study showed yesterday. Instead of minimizing fluctuations, which were said to be ruinous to farmers and live stock feeders, revolutionary changes in agriculture during the last five years have contributed to some of the wildest price fluctuations in the history of the live stock markets.

During the Roosevelt administration most of the principal farm products have sold within a wider range of prices than in any of the three preceding administrations. Price changes in cattle were the most severe. A rise of $10.00 per hundred pounds in top grades of steers from the low level in 1936 to the high mark in 1937 was the largest upturn for one year on record.

Farmers Are Mislead.

This exceptional advance encouraged farmers to pay too much for animals in rebuilding their herds, with the result that many came back on the market and sold for less per hundred pounds than they cost as feeders. There was a $9.80 decline in top grades of steers from October, 1937, to last week, the sharpest break of all time for so short a period.

A futile federal attempt was made to equalize returns from hogs through destruction of crops and levying of processing taxes. The result was that top grades of hogs in the five years fluctuated within a wide spread of $11.25. Under the Hoover administration they sold within a range of $9.50. The high and low spots in hogs during the Coolidge administration were $8.00 apart. Under Harding the spread was only $5.10.

Price Spreads by Administrations.

The spread in top grades of steers during Roosevelt's administration has amounted to $13.55. The Hoover spread was $9.75; Coolidge, $8.75; and Harding, $5.15. Lard swung within a range of $13.47½ under Roosevelt, and $8.92½, $7.57½, and $5.75 under the three preceding presidents.

The fluctuations in corn were $1.18¼, 86¾ cents, 68⅛ cents, and 72 cents a bushel, for Roosevelt, Hoover, Coolidge, and Harding. Wheat in the same order was $1.06, $1.03½, $1.13, and $1.10¼, and oats 44¾ cents, 42¼ cents, 41⅛ cents, and 19 cents. The spread in lambs was $7.95, $13.35, $7.00, and $8.50 per 100 pounds.

NAT'L REPUBLIC TRUST NET WORTH LOWER IN YEAR

National Republic Investment Trust, Chicago company in liquidation, yesterday reported a net worth of $470,126, or $7.58 a share of preference stock on Dec. 31, 1937, after reduction of securities to market prices. This compared with net worth of $827,717, or $13.35 a share, at the end of 1936.

The company's annual report said that under court decree, its assets are to be liquidated by March 31 of this year. After liquidation and payment of claims, including liquidating expenses, the remainder will be distributed to stockholders.

During 1937 the company settled $210,000 claims against it for bank stock liability for $37,000. It has provided, by reserves on its books, for a potential liability of $20,000 on the stock of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. Assets of the Central Republic bank are being liquidated by the Central Republic Trust company.

PIVOTAL STOCKS RALLY MILDLY; OTHERS DECLINE

War Scare Exerts Little Effect on Market.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 12.—After ten consecutive days of shrinking values, prices of leading issues worked irregularly higher on the New York Stock Exchange today in spite of Hitler's seizure of Austria.

The entire list did not participate in the advances and minus signs predominated at the close, but prominent issues showed gains ranging from fractions to more than a point. The three major sections of the list recorded declines in the averages. A tabulation showed 145 issues with gains, 228 with losses, and 194 unchanged.

Volume was small even for a short session despite a flurry of selling that resulted in an irregularly lower opening.

War Scare Has Little Effect.

When no general selling movement developed as a result of the latest crisis in Europe stocks started to move forward but activity declined. Transfers for the two hours amounted to 299,850 shares, compared to 220,000 last Saturday, which was the smallest in six months.

In addition to the war scare the list had to contend with further selling for income tax purposes. Today was the last day for such sales in the regular manner. On Monday and Tuesday such transactions must be for cash.

Financial circles, cognizant of the gravity of the European political situation, appeared to observers to be biding their time until the German-Austrian situation and its possible repercussions became clearer.

Steel Shares Firmer.

Steel shares opened with a show of steadiness and continued on to higher levels, although closing slightly below their best marks of the day. United States Steel finished with a large fractional gain and Bethlehem was up more than a point.

Motor shares were firm. Rail shares also showed a tendency to check the week's recession. New York Central finished fractionally higher and Atchison gained a point.

Allied Chemical closed with a gain of a point in a thin market and du Pont climbed 1⅝ points. Copper shares made good recoveries from lower beginnings.

WHEAT CLIMBS ON WAR SCARE, BUT THEN REACTS

Demand from Nations in Europe Is Small.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$ .88⅝	$ .88⅝	$1.34½
Corn	.59⅛	.59	1.08½
Oats	.30⅛	.29¾	.46⅝
Rye	.69¾	.69	1.07⅛
Soy beans	.98⅛	.98	1.53½

Wheat futures advanced about 1 cent a bushel in the early trading yesterday due to fairly general buying induced by the warlike political developments in Europe. Although there was some increase in the outside trade a considerable part of the buying was regarded by brokers as having been by local professional operators and by short sellers. Profit taking later wiped out the bulge and closing trades were unchanged from Friday.

Other grains were affected by the action of wheat. Corn and oats closed small fractions of a cent a bushel higher. The aggregate trade was relatively small.

European Demand Small.

Export sales of 500,000 bushels of American dark hard winter wheat were reported yesterday, but the general European demand was not large. Greece purchased 250,000 bushels of Australian grain, but only scattered lots were taken by the United Kingdom.

Wheat futures in Liverpool closed 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents a bushel higher. The European political situation was regarded as the principal cause of the upturn in the English market.

The war scare in Europe during the last week came at an inopportune time for importing countries, as they are understood to have made no effort heretofore to build up a war emergency reserve of foodstuffs of any description. Harvesting of the new wheat crop in Europe will not become general until the latter part of July.

European Reserves Small.

According to available statistics reserves of European home grown grain, except in the Danubian countries, are relatively small and the amount of grain available for export from Jugo-Slavia, Hungary, Rumania, and Bulgaria has been greatly reduced.

If the United States is eliminated, statisticians estimate there is just about sufficient wheat available in Canada, Argentina, Australia, and other surplus producing countries to cover the requirements of importers for the remainder of the season. Moreover, it is believed in some quarters that the Danubian countries will make an effort to curtail exports until the political situation becomes more defined.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce estimates there are only 18,000,000 bushels of wheat available for export from Canada during the 21 weeks remaining of the 1937-'38 season.

Lard Climbs, Then Reacts.

Lard futures advanced sharply in the early trading yesterday on buying induced by strength in cottonseed oil, but reacted rapidly on selling by commission houses with eastern and foreign connections and on hedging pressure.

Closing of spreads between lard and cottonseed oil has furnished a considerable part of the trading in the last 10 days. Yesterday May lard was about 60 cents per 100 pounds over cottonseed oil, compared with about $1.50 recently.

CEA PROBES USE OF MARGINS BY GRAIN BROKERS

Auditors of the Commodity Exchange Administration have been checking the books of grain commission houses operating on the Chicago Board of Trade during the last week, it was reported yesterday. The investigation, it was understood, was to determine whether the margin funds deposited by customers were being segregated from the firms' funds, as provided by the Commodity Exchange act.

Under the law margin funds must be deposited by the broker or commission house receiving them in a separate fund. While this idea is generally approved by members of the exchange, they object to what they term a double liability.

FINDS BUSINESS VITAL FACTOR IN LIFE INSURANCE

Report of Big Company Shows Relationship.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The close relationship of life insurance to general business conditions is graphically set forth in the 80th annual report of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, Milwaukee, to its policyholders, signed by M. J. Cleary, president, and the members of the executive committee. Northwestern Mutual, with total assets of $1,178,428,636, is rated as one of the largest business enterprises in the United States.

Michael J. Cleary.

The report points out that life insurance as developed in this country is a combination of protection and thrift. The former is represented by 110 billion dollars of insurance payable at maturity under more than 130 million policies held by 64 million people. The latter is represented by the assets of some 315 companies totaling over 25 billion dollars accumulated for policyholders and their beneficiaries.

How Business Affects Insurance.

Showing how general business directly affects life insurance, the report says that the cost of this service is increased by upward changes in the death rates and a downward trend in interest rates on investments. During the period 1903-'22 the interest rate on invested life insurance funds was rising and the death rates generally were improving, the report said, with the result that the cost of life insurance in conservatively managed companies was diminishing.

"Since 1922, however, the interest yield on life insurance assets has steadily decreased and, probably due, in part at least, to the strains of life during the depression," the report said "there has been an increase in death rates. In consequence of these unfavorable trends and required asset adjustments, the cost of life insurance in America has increased during the recent period of economic disturbance when those insured were least able to bear it."

Affected by Rail Situation.

The railroads form one industry whose well being is closely linked with insurance companies, which now hold about 3 billion dollars par value of the outstanding bonded debt of the railroads, or 15 per cent of the total valuation of railways. Northwestern Life has about 10 per cent of its assets invested in rail bonds.

Cleary said that in Northwestern's report for 1936 it was pointed out that a material gain in the contingency reserve resluted from increases during the year in the market price of railroad bonds, but it was explained that this appreciation was not realized and it was not necessarily permanent.

That this increase was not permament, he added, was demonstrated during the market decline in 1937, which wiped out the 1936 appreciation, plus an additional amount. Largely because of this, he said, Northwestern's contingency reserve at the end of 1937 was $52,629,273, against $54,458,802 at the end of 1936.

Urges Importance of Rails.

Commenting on the railroad situation, Cleary said:

"It cannot too often be said that the railway system carries the life blood of the country and that efficient railroad properties are a necessity in the social and economic life of the nation."

Of the company's total assets, Cleary said that $10,871,090, or 0.923 per cent, is in cash; $586,575,888, or 49.776 per cent, in bonds; $306,126,854, or 25.978 per cent, in mortgage loans; $48,744,223, or 4.136 per cent, in real estate, and $176,831,022, or 15.006 per cent, in policy loans.

Cleary said it was interesting to note that of the $179,245,880 of United States, state, county, and municipal bonds held, only $60,000 is in default as compared with nearly $8,000,000 in 1933. Of the $66,607,827 of public utility bonds none is in default.

Sensitivity of Prices.

Changes in prices are closely watched as clews to business trends, but they do not behave alike in all lines of enterprise, and allowance must be made for this in any attempt to judge by price movements whether trade is headed up or down. It is a pretty safe rule, with exceptions, of course, that prices of raw materials—crude rubber, for example—vary more widely and more quickly reflect changes in the state of business than do the prices of finished manufactured goods, such as automobile tires.

Why is this? There are two main reasons: 1. When a manufacturer's sales begin to decline, he immediately reduces or stops raw material purchases. The effect of this is to create a downward tendency in the raw material price. 2. A manufacturer can offer less for a batch of raw material today than he did yesterday, and still less when the salesman calls tomorrow, but he cannot change the price of his finished product every day. The finished goods involve far more than the cost of the raw material—items for which the price tends to stability, such as labor and overhead costs. Obviously the manufacturer cannot change his wage scale every day, nor can the cost of the plant be changed every time the price of raw material moves up or down.

COTTON PRICES RECOVER AFTER SHARP DECLINE

Foreign Markets Set Off Break.

Cotton futures prices broke sharply in the early trading yesterday, largely the result of heavy foreign selling and weakness in foreign markets, but losses were almost recovered at the close.

American markets opened 0.15 to 0.21 cent lower, or about $1 a bale below the close Friday, carrying prices to the lowest levels since the middle of February. Professional buying and short covering checked the decline and a strong rally developed. Futures on the Chicago Board of Trade closed 0.01 cent higher to 0.07 cent a pound lower and other American markets were 0.01 cent higher to 0.05 cent lower.

Cotton markets closed sharply lower in Liverpool, Bombay, India, and Alexandria, Egypt. The break was attributed to the unsettled political situation in Europe.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 0.03 cent lower, with New Orleans 9.20 cents a pound, New York 9.00 cents, and Galveston and Houston at 8.80 cents. Futures prices in cents per pound follow:

MEATS AND LIVE STOCK ERRATIC FOR LAST WEEK

Live stock and meat markets fluctuated nervously last week, generally at the highest levels in several months and substantially above the winter's low. The three principal classes, steers, hogs and lambs, averaged $9.10, highest since the week ended Dec. 4, 1937. This price was $1.40 above the low time, the first week in February, a rise of 18 per cent.

The hog market became extremely unsettled after soaring to new highs for the year on the first session of the week. The following day witnessed a break of 20 cents in the top and average prices. Another decline occurred Wednesday, which was followed by a sharp rally that replaced most of the loss before the end of the week.

Members of the live stock trade say they cannot recall when the markets for hogs have been so unstable.

At the close of the week most beef steers, yearlings and hefers were quoted steady to 25 cents higher than at the preceding week's close. Beef cows showed an upturn of 10 to 15 cents. The close in lambs was up 25 to 30 cents.

HINT INCREASED RESISTANCE TO U. S. TINKERING

Washington, D. C., March 12.—(AP)—The chamber of commerce of the United States said today that, for the first time since the recession began, "a changing Washington outlook is affording business some measure of encouragement."

"Thus far the change has been more psychological than actual," the chamber said, "but the signs that a more conservative and constructive trend is under way and gaining momentum are becoming more apparent.

"Impartial observers begin to see in this trend the prospect of greater resistance to more reforms and experiments; greater public insistance upon an accounting and appraisal of the usefullness of the experiments now in operation, and a great willingness in congress to correct legislative deficiencies that have stood in the way of business progress."

Chicago Bank Stocks Sell Lower During Last Week

Chicago bank stocks closed mostly lower last week in light trading. First National closed 7 points lower at 193 bid, 197 asked. Continental Illinois slipped 2 points to 63½ bid, 65½ asked. Chicago Title & Trust eased a point to 127 bid, 129 asked. Northern Trust dropped 5 points and Terminal National was 1 point lower.

MORGAN FRIENDS PROVE COSTLIER THAN ENEMIES

Statement Is Confirmed Again by Whitney Case.

With the loss of J. P. Morgan & Co. in the Richard Whitney & Co. failure estimated close to a half million dollars, financial observers again find confirmation of the Wall street saying that Morgan friends have cost the firm more money than have its enemies.

The Morgan firm is rated AAA in matters of business and financial judgment. It has not, however, been immune from misjudgments that have proved exceedingly costly. As in the Whitney case these losses have resulted mainly when the house backed to the limit individuals in which it has had the utmost confidence, it is pointed out. Cases cited are those of O. P. and M. P. Van Sweringen, the Cleveland railroad financiers, and Charles E. Mitchell, former president of the National City Bank of New York.

Relies On Character.

As a general practice the Morgan firm has placed more reliance on character of the persons that it backed than on the collateral they had to pledge. The success of the firm in the last 50 years is cited as justification of that policy.

Richard Whitney enjoyed a close relationship with the house of Morgan for many years. He was a brother of George Whitney, a senior partner of the firm, and for years was regarded in Wall street as Morgan "representative" on the New York Stock exchange. His failure and the disclosure of his defalcations has been a particularly painful case of misplaced confidence for the partners of the Morgan firm. The financial loss with which the firm is faced is not large in comparison with others that the firm has absorbed. Its unsecured loans to Whitney's firm amounted to $474,000, investigation of the company's affairs disclosed last week.

Filed $48,346,000 Claim.

Claims of $48,346,000 were filed by Morgan & Co. against the estates of the Van Sweringen brothers last year after the death of O. P. Van Sweringen. The claims represented loans that the firm had advanced to the brothers in a period of years. The collateral that had been posted as security for the advances was sold at a public auction, bringing only a small fraction of the face value of the loans. The losses incurred by Morgan in financing the Van Sweringens are believed to be among the largest that the firm has ever experienced.

The loss that the Morgan firm took on its loans to Charles E. Mitchell has never been definitly determined. When Mitchell was forced out as president of the National City bank in 1933 he owed $6,000,000 to Morgan, secured by stock of the bank. The stock, like all bank shares, had depreciated sharply after Mitchell had obtained his loans. Morgan & Co. took over Mitchell's homes in New York, Tuxedo Park, and South Hampton in the final settlement.

BUTTER FUTURES SELL HIGHER ON FEDERAL REPORT

Butter futures turned upward in light trading yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, making gains of ⅛ to ⅝ cent a pound, which left quotations ⅝ to ¾ cent under those of the previous Saturday.

The strength was attributed to the government's report of larger February withdrawals of reserve butter than had been expected. The report, however, showed a reduction of only 10,281,000 pounds for February, against 22,056,000 pounds in February, 1937.

Egg futures drifted downward, closing ⅛ cent a dozen lower, and off ⅝ cent for the week. Cash prices were ¼ cent lower.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES SLIP IN SHRINKING TRADE

Chicago stock prices slipped further yesterday in extremely dull trading of only 9,000 shares. THE TRIBUNE average of 20 stocks closed at 9.08 against 9.17 on the preceding day, and 9.54 a week earlier.

Borg-Warner lost ¼, to close at 22¾. Chicago corporation preferred, the volume leader, finished unchanged at 30⅛. Commonwealth Edison eased ¼ to 23¼. Swift & Co. advanced ⅛ at 16⅝.

BACKSTAY WELT COMPANY VOTES TO OMIT DIVIDEND

Chicago Towel Pays $1.50 on Common.

Directors of the Backstay Welt company yesterday voted to omit the dividend on common stock normally due on April 1. The company has been paying 30 cents quarterly, and during 1937 paid three extras of 20 cents each.

The chief products of the Backstay Welt company are used in the automobile industry for weather stripping, trimming, and noise elimination. The automobile industry accounts for approximately 60 per cent of the company's sales, and earnings are dependent on automobile production.

Chicago Towel Pays $1.50.

The Chicago Towel company declared a dividend of $1.50 on the common stock and the usual quarterly payment of $1.75 on the preferred stock. Dividends on the common stock in 1937 totaled $7.50 a share, the last payment $2.50 on Dec. 20.

A dividend of 20 cents was voted by directors of Bond Stores, Inc. Last year, the company paid three quarterly dividends of 40 cents each.

Affiliated Fund, Inc., an investing company, declared a dividend of 8 cents. On Jan. 15 the company paid 15 cents a share.

DEALERS REPORT USED CAR STOCKS CUT BY CAMPAIGN

Find Sales Promoted by "Exchange Week."

Automobile dealers yesterday reported that last week's campaign to reduce stocks of used cars through a National Used Car Exchange week had proved successful. Leading automobile manufacturers, including W. S. Knudsen, president of the General Motors corporation, have expressed the belief that abnormally large stocks of used cars have been the chief obstacle to new car business.

Harry T. Hollingshead.

Harry T. Hollingshead, president of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, estimated that sales on 7,500 used cars were made in Cook county during the week's campaign. The average price paid was $275 per car, so the total for the week was approximately $2,062,000. However, final figures will not be available for several days.

Expects Lasting Effects.

Hollingshead said he expects the effects of the campaign to continue for a considerable time.

"The used car has gained notably in prestige through this campaign," he said. "Resistance to the sale of such automobiles has been broken down in the minds of the motorists. Their attitude now is that in buying later model cars than they drive at present they are getting the advantages of the improvements made by automobile stylists and engineers during the last four years.

"For that reason particularly, the automobile industry and its dealers feel that the cumulative efforts of National Used Car Exchange week will be experienced for a long time to come—in fact permanently."

Dealers Reduce Stocks.

Courtney Johnson, general sales manager of the Nash Motors division of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, said he has been advised that the company's dealers have reduced their used car stocks to the lowest point in several years.

In Cleveland sales of used cars through Thursday totaled 2,223, an increase of 32 percent over sales in preceding weeks. Pittsburgh reported that dealers through Wednesday had sold 1,468 units of the 2,000 quota set for the entire week.

Ford dealers in the first three days of the week sold 26,694 cars valued at $6,620,685. Before the campaign sales averaged about 3,400 cars daily.

INDUSTRY TURNS MILDLY UPWARD FROM LONG SLIDE

Major Indices Show Gain During Last Week.

Reversing its downward direction, industrial activity last week showed a moderate upturn, as measured by most major indices. Increases in car loadings and electric power production and a seasonal upturn in automobile output encouraged business men, although they saw no basis for a sustained recovery.

Meanwhile, the stock market, although it slipped lower, gave ground grudgingly in the face of such disturbing factors as the German invasion of Austria, the granting of what was characterized as a "disappointing" increase in railroad freight rates by the interstate commerce commission, and the failure of a brokerage house headed by the former president of the New York Stock exchange.

Whitney Case Lacks Effect.

The effect of the insolvency of Richard Whitney, who apparently invested too heavily in Distilled Liquors corporation because of an undue faith in the future of applejack, was negligible on the stock market's prices. Whitney was a member of the old guard, which relinquished control of the exchange to the "reform" group headed by Charles R. Gay when Gay succeeded Whitney as president of the exchange in 1935.

When the long awaited railroad rate decision was announced last week by the I. C. C. most carrier executives asserted that it was inadequate. It granted a 10 per cent increase instead of the 15 per cent requested, and was particularly disappointing to western roads because it exempted from the increase many agricultural products, bituminous coal and other goods.

Railways Seek Wage Cut.

Reacting from the rate decision and the continued low revenues this year, compared with last year, railroad executives gave notice of their intention to ask a cut in wages from employés. The matter will be taken up at a meeting in Chicago of the directors of Association of American Railroads.

The drive to clear overloaded stocks of used cars from dealers' show rooms by the National Used Car Exchange week was reported by manufacturers and dealers to have brought encouraging results.

Idle funds continued last week to accumulate in the banks. Excess reserves of all reporting member banks of the federal reserve system jumped to $1,470,000,000 on March 9, the highest level since the present reserve requirements went into effect last May.

Loans and Deposits Lower.

In Chicago banks' statements of conditions for the first quarter showed drops in loans and deposits from the figures at the end of 1937. Bank clearings, a representative index of commercial activity, declined for the seventeenth consecutive week.

No new industrial financing was reported during the week, and municipal offerings declined sharply from the preceding week and from the corresponding 1937 period.

Recovery in building, regarded as essential to recovery in the heavy industries, still appeared uncertain. For the first two months of this year construction contracts awarded totaled $315,000,000, or 27 per cent less than last year, and less than half the 1925-1929 average of $785,000,000. A breakdown in the total discloses, moreover, that public works and utilities have boosted construction over 1937, but that residential building is about 46 per cent lower.

Merchandising Less Active.

Wholesale and retail distribution continued downward last week, according to Dun & Bradstreet's report. Inventories were kept at low levels, with practically no long term purchase commitments.

Although domestic stock markets showed strong resistance in the face of the European crisis, stock prices fell in London, Paris, and Amsterdam, and most foreign currencies declined in terms of the dollar. The fall of the Chautemps cabinet in France was followed by a slump in the international value of French currency to the lowest level in history.

FURTHER PRICE DECLINES MADE BY COMMODITIES

Rubber Contracts Drop; Cocoa Gains.

Commodity futures, unable to sustain their flurrying rally of Friday which was apparently based on news of European crisis, yesterday returned to their recent downward course. Cash commodities, which had dropped steadily throughout the week, showed a further loss.

For the third consecutive day the Associated Press index of 35 weighted wholesale cash commodities was at its lowest level since November, 1934. It stood yesterday at 70.55, against 70.71 on Friday, and 71.24 on the preceding Saturday [1926 equals 100].

The Dow-Jones index of commodity futures declined yesterday to 52.75, off 0.12 for the day, and down 0.25 for the week [1924-'26 average equals 100].

Rubber Drops Sharply.

Rubber contracts dropped sharply, falling 0.15 to 0.26 cent a pound, and making losses for the week 0.34 to 0.68 cent. The March contract finished at 14.11 cents yesterday. Sugar futures also weakened, with the domestic contract closing unchanged to 0.03 cent lower, and world sugar off 0.00½ to 0.01½ cent. Raw sugar in the spot market was unchanged at 3.07 cents a pound, and refined was steady at 4.55 to 4.65 cents.

Lead futures dipped 0.04 to 0.05 cent a pound, making losses of about 0.15 cent for the week. Copper contracts were irregular, finishing 0.03 cent higher to 0.07 cent lower. The March price was 8.63 cents a pound at the close. Domestic and export copper was steady.

Coffee Contracts Irregular.

Coffee contracts were irregular and closed practically unchanged for the week. Rio futures finished off 0.02 cent for the day, and Santos was 0.02 cent higher to 0.01 cent lower.

Contracts for hides were unchanged to 0.03 cent higher for the day, but down 0.16 to 0.77 for the week. The June closing was 9.42 cents a pound.

Cocoa futures moved against the trend yesterday, advancing 0.10 to 0.11 cent a pound, bringing gains for the week to 0.17 to 0.28 cent.

ITALIAN, CZECH, POLISH BONDS FALL SHARPLY

New York, March 12.—(AP)—The foreign division of the bond market was upset today by Germany's seizure of control of Austria. German government dollar obligations took the developments calmly, but those of Italy, Czechoslovakia, and Poland suffered heavy losess.

Czechoslovakian 8s of 1951 and 1952 were pushed down 4, each issue closing at 92. Italian 7s gave up 4½ at 75¼. A similar loss occurred in Rome 5½s. Polish 6s, 1940, were down 1⅞ at 60.

Sporadic rallying tendencies in rails after a week of heavy decline left a few secondary issues a bit higher at the close, but the Associated Press average of 20 carriers dropped 0.3 of a point to a new five year low at 57.1.

Railroad Investments.

How can I tell whether a certain railroad security is a good investment? Judging from letters received by this column since the series of articles on railroads started, many investors would like to have this question answered. No blanket rule can be given for judging railroad securities, or any other kind, but Investors' Guide proposes to discuss some of the factors which should be considered.

The earnings record of the individual carrier usually is the most important factor that the investor should consider, and ability of the road to earn under depression conditions should be investigated. From monthly reports issued by the roads, it is possible to determine the trend of earnings without much delay. Because interest charges go on whether business is good or bad, the railroad with a small debt is in a more favorable position during a depression period.

There are, however, other factors to be considered in appraising a railroad. Diversification of trafic is desirable, but it happens that three of the most prosperous railroads in the United States, the Norfolk and Western, the Chesapeake and Ohio, and the Pennsylvania, are overwhelmingly dependent on products of mines. Roads having less than 1,000 miles of track are generally regarded as too dependent upon a single part of the country.

Another factor is trafic density. Obviously, a road is in a more favorable position if it hauls more freight and passengers over a given section of track than if it hauls very little. An even distribution of trafic throughout the year also is desirable because this makes it unnecessary for the road to keep a large amount of equipment for use only part of the year.

Appraisal of an individual security is in itself a difficult problem. The bondholder is interested in the amount the road has available for interest payments. Generally, a bond is in the speculative class if the amount available for fixed charges is less than 150 per cent of such requirements in any recent year. Bonds secured by a first mortgage on a large and vital portion of a road's track are usually the best protected. Less well issues of prosperous roads, however, are often sound.

The preferred stock holder is interested in having bond interest and preferred dividend requirements both covered as many times as possible and the common stock holder naturally wants something left over after all expenses and preferred dividends have been paid.

THERE IS NO OTHER

VALUE LIKE THIS ANYWHERE!

DON'T let anybody tell you that any other newspaper insurance policy offers as much protection for the money as Chicago Tribune Accident Insurance. The Tribune has spent more than ONE MILLION DOLLARS of its own money to provide better insurance for its readers. No other newspaper has done this.

The best proof of the value of Tribune Insurance is the amount it has paid in cash benefits—more than FOUR MILLION, SEVEN HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS. This is so much more money than ever has been paid on insurance issued through any other newspaper that others cannot even remotely compare with it.

If you want newspaper insurance, be sure to get the best for the least money. This $7,500-$11,250 Insurance Policy is available in the following manner: To people who live in Chicago or suburbs and subscribe for Home Delivery of the Daily Tribune, the policy is issued for the small sum of 25c (preliminary term fee) and 10c a month thereafter. Every eligible member of a Home Delivery Subscriber's family is entitled to a policy. Where Home Delivery service is not available, the policy is issued for $1.25 a year. Policies are issued by the Federal Life Insurance Co., Chicago. No medical examination is necessary.

1. IF YOU HAVE A YEARLY POLICY: To renew it for another year, send $1.25 to "Tribune Insurance Dept.," Federal Life Insurance Co., 168 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

2. IF YOU HAVE A MONTHLY POLICY: Keep up your insurance by prompt payment each month to your Official Tribune Newspaper Carrier. If subscription is stopped Insurance will expire!

3. IF YOU WANT A POLICY: Write or telephone for full particulars telling how to get this Insurance for yourself and every eligible member of your family.

PARTY LEADERSHIP AT STAKE IN TOWNS

MEDIEVAL PLAY HAS REVIVAL AT CORPUS CHRISTI

Church Will Attract Pilgrimage Today.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Passersby at South Park way and 49th street this afternoon may speculate why the Catholic church of Corpus Christi, located there, is attracting such throngs of people. And if the same thing takes place today as last Sunday afternoon even a casual glance will disclose the fact that persons rich and poor, colored and white, Catholic and Protestant, will make up the crowd.

The Rev. David Fochtma.

The answer is that the Franciscan fathers in charge of Corpus Christi parish are doing something so old that it is almost thought of as brand new. They have reintroduced the finest traditions of the medieval mystery drama in Lenten devotions of the stations of the cross. Moreover, the parts in the pantomime drama are taken by colored players who have been finely trained in the medieval art by the Rev. David Fochtma, O. F. M., who is known to all as Father David.

Well Versed in Drama.

Although Father David is but a youthful curate at Corpus Christi, he is widely recognized for scholarship in the medieval religious drama and noted for his leadership among Franciscans toward revival of the ancient art which weds the dramatist to the sacred chancel. The third devotional presentation of the stations, which virtually make up a fourteen scene Passion Play, will be given today at 3 o'clock. Father David also is skilled as a director of amateur plays for the secular stage.

The dramatic devotions are given each Sunday during Lent, for which city-wide pilgrimages have been organized by a notable sponsoring committee headed by Potter Palmer and on Friday nights for residents of the general area of the church.

In addition to the Lenten value of the Passion Play the pilgrimages offer homecoming opportunities to former parishioners now scattered throughout the metropolitan area. The pilgrimage sponsors headed by Mr. Palmer include the Rev. Martin Carrabine, S. J., moderator of Cisca, Catholic student group; the Rev. F. G. Dinneen, S. J., director of Loyola Community theater and founder of the National Catholic Theater conference; the Rev. Arnold Garvey, S. J., noted social worker, and Sister Mary Leola, directress of dramatics, Mundelein college.

In Sponsor Group.

Among laymen sponsors in addition to Mr. Palmer are Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court; Daniel Cotton Rich, curator of paintings at the Chicago Art institute; Dr. Maurice Gneissen, director of Goodman theater; Dr. David Itkin, dramatics director of Loyola university; George Fleming Jr., president of Cisca, and Dorothy Golden of Rosary college, Cisca chairman on better race relations.

The Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, Episcopal bishop of the diocese of Chicago, will speak at the monthly meeting of the Chicago Lutheran Ministerial association at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Lawson Y. M. C. A., Chicago avenue and Dearborn street. Bishop Stewart will speak about the conference of religious delegates which he attended last year at Edinburgh, Scotland.

Deaconess Helen M. Fuller, head resident of Chase house, the Episcopal settlement house, 211 South Ashland avenue, will leave this week for an extended vacation in the Transvaal region of the Union of South Africa. She will visit relatives in Pietermietersburg and plans to resume duties in Chicago the last week in June.

The Rev. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary and of the Chicago Church federation, will speak at the Methodist Chicago preachers' meeting in the Chicago temple, 77 West Washington street, tomorrow at 10:45 o'clock. Dr. Palmer's subject will be "An Ideal for a Church."

Sheridan Park Neighbors Name List of Officers

The Sheridan Park Neighborhood club elected new officers and directors at a recent meeting. They are Sydney H. Sturdy, president; A. B. Peterson, vice president; Miss Anna F. Morris, secretary; Miss Anna A. Bauer, Edward Bentel, and Louis Neis, three year directors; A. E. Bredemeier and Ralph Newton, one year directors. F. J. Setchell was reelected treasurer. There is a membership of more than 2,000 in the club, which is devoted to furthering civic interests in the Sheridan Park neighborhood.

Sorority to Give Dress Parade

The welcome to the Springtime will be a symphony in style for members of Mu Alpha Sigma sorority this week. Notes on fashions will be taken by the members during the annual dress parade of the sorority Friday evening in the Oak Park Arms hotel, Oak Park. Miss Helen Scheffel, 1225 South Clinton street, Berwyn, will model this crisp black net dinner dress with accents of powder blue.

HINSDALE ASKS TO BE ORGANIZED AS A TOWNSHIP

Will Ask County Board to Take Steps.

The movement toward forming a separate Hinsdale township recently passed the discussion stage when the village board of trustees voted unanimously to have the village attorney prepare a petition to the Du Page county board asking that the part of the village in Du Page county be given a distinct organization.

The action followed a report by Trustee F. H. McElhone, chairman of the finance committee, which indicated that such a separation would eliminate unnecessary officials and provide local administration of relief, local administration of township affairs, direct county representation of Hinsdale, and a substantial saving to taxpayers.

Answers Objections.

Mr. McElhone said the chief objection raised, other than legal, was the contention that relief in Westmont and Clarendon Hills would suffer, but that it appeared their status would be unchanged as the 30 cent tax levy would still hold for their township and a fuller use of the sales tax could be made.

Attorney General Kerner has ruled that Hinsdale cannot take advantage of the provision in the law due to the fact that the village is situated in two counties.

Gave Adverse Ruling.

State's Attorney Russell Keeney has ruled that under the attorney general's interpretation it would be impossible to organize such part of Hinsdale as lies in Du Page county as a township, and leave the part in Cook county in Lyons township.

In his report, Mr. McElhone said the next attorney general might rule differently, but doubtless the county board would be guided by the state's attorney's advice, and a test case before the Supreme court would be the only recourse.

17 DEMOCRATS, 3 REPUBLICANS BATTLE IN SIXTH

Leads in Interest in Congress Race.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Democratic battles for congressional nominations in the Fourth, Sixth, and Eighth and Republican struggles in the Fourth, Fifth, and Seventh, loomed last week as political leaders on the west side perfected their organizations for the April 12 primary.

Chief interest centered in the Sixth, where the Democrats are making a grand scramble for the spot left vacant when Congressman Thomas J. O'Brien withdrew recently to run for sherif. Sixteen men, most of them with Irish names, are pitted against A. F. Maciejewski, the regular party selection.

Several of these candidates denied last week that they had entered the primary merely to split the large Irish vote so Maciejewski could win. "Each of us filed in the belief that he would be the only Irishman running against the machine's man," is the way one put it.

FOURTH DISTRICT

Three independents of Polish ancestry are pitted against Harry P. Beam for the Democratic nomination in this small but populous district. Stanislaus E. Basinski, 4915 Ashland avenue, who was an unsuccessful Republican candidate for the congressman-at-large nomination in 1930, is one of the three. The others are John Zukorski, 2913 Bonfield street, and Kazmar Moczarski, 4501 Sawyer avenue.

Mr. Beam has held his present post since 1930, when he defeated the Republican, Frank George Zelezinski. He was born in Peoria in 1892 and has lived in Chicago since he was 7 years old. He was graduated from St. Ignatius college and Loyola university, and was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1916. He served in the navy during the world war. He was advisor to the late Paddy Carr, is an orator of ability and has on occasion presided over congress. Mr. Beam was assistant corporation counsel under Mayor Dever.

Born in Poland.

Basinski was born in Poland, 46 years ago, was an orphan at 14 when he came to Chicago, worked his way through Seward elementary and Tilden High schools, and was graduated from Northwestern university law school in 1911. He served in France

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

THE standards of house basements have been raised. "Home, Sweet Home" can be sung even in the cellar of the Henry Thiele home, 5403 Kamerling avenue. The old idea of that necessary part of the house, the basement, is gone, because what was once a pile of ashes, a coal bin, and a storage room for mid-Victorian bric-a-brac and screen doors has been transformed into a downstairs sitting room. The modern basement is a thing of beauty and a twofold joy for the Thiele family, who won $1,000 as first prize in the Chicago Coal Merchants' association contest, because they chased away the basement blues. Joseph B. Biety, president of the association, said the award was made on the basis of basement livability, the extent of usefulness for the whole family, and the assimilation of new and modern ideas on basement arrangements.

Henry Thiele.

The Austin Academy of Fine Arts, 631 North Central avenue, held a general student recital last night. MISS FLORENCE ROSEN, secretary to Joseph R. Dorfman, president of the West Side Real Estate board, will be married Saturday to Albert O. Hoffman, attorney, associated with John J. Dowdle and Walter W. Duft. Miss Rosen for the last five years has been manager of a west side real estate company's front office. She has assisted Mr. Dorfman with his work for the American Legion, the Sons of the American Legion, the Chicago Real Estate board and the West Side Real Estate board.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Williams of River Forest, accompanied by their two daughters, Dallas and Verral, are vacationing in Sarasota, Fla. Dallas and Verrall are enrolled in the Prew school.

LARRY WOS, 7 years old, a student at Ericsson Elementary school, 2930 West Harrison street, is blind, but he can read books written for children in the eighth grade. Because of his handicap and the distance of his home from the school he missed about one-half of his first school year. However, he mastered Braille so quickly that he is far advanced in school ability and he can work difficult arithmetic problems on the number slate.

Miss Erika Thimey, a teacher of modern dancing in Oak Park, will present her pupils in a dance program at 8:15 o'clock Saturday evening. Miss Vivien Watkins is her assistant. Miss Thimey trained hundreds of girls for the presentation of Handel's "Theodora" on the steps of the Field museum in 1935 and produced the Buckingham fountain pageant in 1936. Mona Redman and Doris Trafford will play the piano at the recital Saturday night, and percussion instruments will be played by Emily Knudson.

H. J. Dunn, a field scout executive of the Detroit area council on April 1 will take up his duties as assistant scout executive of the Oak Park area council. Mr. Dunn has been in scouting for eighteen years. The Detroit council writes that the Oak Park council will be getting a "conscientious, loyal, and hard working assistant in whom Detroit has a big investment but is willing to pass on for the good of the movement."

AT the New England conclave of Kappa Sigma fraternity, held recently in Boston, R. Douglas Davis, 808 South Scoville avenue, Oak Park, was initiated into the fraternity in a model service. Mr. Davis is a freshman at Brown university on a Benjamin Ide Wheeler scholarship.

A modern miss borrowed the coy and captivating manners of the nineteenth century feminine world for her role in "Pride and Prejudice," which was presented last evening at the Frances Shimer Junior college Mount Carroll. She is Miss Ruth Montgomery, La Grange, a member of the Green Curtain Dramatic club at the school. Miss Montgomery, a sophomore, appeared in "Ladies in Waiting" earlier in the school year.

COMMITTEEMAN POST TO DECIDE SLATE CONTROL

G. O. P. Faces Split on County Board.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

In the west suburban townships of Cook county control of party politics is held by township organizations headed by the township committeemen. The struggle for that control is on in both Republican and Democratic parties and will increase, with the approach of the April 12 primaries, when township committeemen will be elected.

Attention has been called by national political writers to the importance of the voter making a careful selection of his choice for ward or township committeeman. It has been shown that the control of the political party slate making, and in Cook county the nomination of forty Circuit and Superior court judges, comes directly from the county central committee.

County Board Is Issue.

The township committee fights are for the control of party politics in the Cook county country town areas. The Republican fights are centered around the split between the country town group headed by William H. Weber of Blue Island, which holds the five Republican county board memberships, and the George F. Nixon faction, which is endeavoring to seat five new Republicans on the county board.

Twenty-four of the thirty township committeemen have been indorsed by the Republican county committee. Nixon has not announced all the indorsements of candidates backing his group.

The Democratic party split is another effect of the Nash-Kelly-Horner-Courtney-Jarecki split. The Nash-Kelly township committeemen, indorsed by the Democratic county committee, include twenty-two of the thirty incumbents. The Horner-Courtney township party leaders, headed by Homer Byrd of Wheeling, although they represent a minority of the incumbents, have a strong group of candidates to oppose the organization.

Candidates Are Listed.

The candidates who have filed for township committeemen positions are listed below according to township and party.

LYONS: Republican — Frank J. Kriz, Western Springs, incumbent, has no opposition. Democrat—Leo F. Kennedy, Summit, incumbent, has county committee indorsement and is opposed by Ira P. Lambert of Summit, the Byrd faction candidate.

CICERO: Republican—Jerry Dolezal, Cicero, incumbent, has regular party indorsement. Democrat—Arthur A. Nedwed, Cicero, incumbent, is an independent candidate opposed by Anton J. Krupicka, Cicero, the Nash-Kelly candidate.

BERWYN: Republican — Frank Sidlo, Berwyn, incumbent, has regular party indorsement and is opposed by three other Berwyn aspirants, Ed by Edward O. Holly, also of Berwyn. Democrat—Charles F. Tourek, Berwyn, has Nash-Kelly indorsement.

OAK PARK: Republican — L. A. Westcott, Oak Park, is the Republican incumbent with no opposition. Democrat—William P. Churchill, Oak Park, incumbent, has county committee indorsement, opposed by Joseph B. Ford, Oak Park, the Byrd faction candidate.

PROVISO: Republican — Bruce B. Benson, Maywood, is the county committee selection, opposed by Edmund G. Brust, Melrose Park, the Nixon candidate. Democrat—Joseph Lelivelt, Maywood, incumbent, has county committee support and is opposed by John J. Ryan, Maywood, a Byrd candidate.

RIVERSIDE: Republican—William F. Stoddard, Riverside, county committee candidate, is opposing A. W. Komarek, Riverside, the incumbent. Democrat — Frank F. Lopata, Riverside, incumbent, has Nash-Kelly support and is opposed by Chauncey H. Keeber, the Byrd candidate, and Otto Buresch, independent, both of Riverside.

RIVER FOREST: Republican—Arthur J. Bidwill, River Forest, incumbent and candidate for Republican state senatorial nomination from the Seventh district, has regular party support and is opposed by Dr. Ray S. Barker, also of River Forest. Democrat—Roy D. O'Brien, River Forest, incumbent, has county committee indorsement and is opposed by Louis F. Mahoney, representing the Homer Byrd faction.

17 DEMOCRATS, 3 REPUBLICANS BATTLE IN 6TH

Holds Lead Interest in Congress Race.

with the army. Basinski polled 35,600 Cook county votes in the 1930 primary. Beam received 69,931 in the 1936 election.

Dominic M. Janec Jr., 2424 West 51st street, picked by the regular Republicans to lead their congressional ticket in the Fourth, is 28 years old and one of the youngest congressional aspirants in the field. He was born in Chicago of Slovakian parents and attended public and parochial srhools here. He is a sheet metal engineer.

Janec's only opponent is A. J. Gorman, 4154 Rockwell street, a contact clerk for the Commonwealth Edison company. He was born in Chicago 38 years ago and was in the army during the world war. He ran for state senator in the Fourth two years ago but was defeated for the nomination by 147 votes.

FIFTH DISTRICT

Adolph J. Sabath, native born Bohemian who is rounding out his sixteenth consecutive term in congress, is running for the nomination again, this time against Harry G. Green, 1526 South Sawyer avenue, a writer.

Max Price, 1336 South Union avenue, garage owner who lost to Sabath by more than three to one in the 1936 election, is again the regular Republican primary choice. Price was born in Chicago in 1906 and has lived in the 5th district all his life. The only other claimant for the Republican nomination is Martin Dykema, 1535 West 14th place.

SIXTH DISTRICT

The situation here became only more confusing last week, with the failure of predicted further withdrawals to materialize. There still are seventeen Democrats and three Republicans in the race.

The advantage of the regular Democratic indorsement belongs to A. F. Maciejewski, a Cicero coal dealer and township treasurer, whose name will appear first in the Democratic column on the primary ballot.

Maciejewski was born in Texas forty-five years ago but has lived in Cook county since he was 1 year old, fourteen of these years in Chicago. He and his wife reside at 5028 West 31st place, Cicero. He was assistant county agent from 1926 to 1928 and has been the Cicero town treasurer since 1932.

Raymond B. Dwyer, another Democratic aspirant in the district, was born in Chicago in 1887, was a furniture salesman and executive for several years, and is now employed by the Edison General Electric Appliance company. He bases his campaign chiefly on the backing of 2,000 fellow employés.

Real Estate Man.

James J. Curtis, another of the candidates, is a real estate man living at 121 South Mayfield avenue. He is a director of the Austin Kiwanis club, a member of Cornwall post of the American Legion, and is active in civic affairs.

Donald D. McFeely, 845 Chicago avenue, Oak Park, is an ardent supporter of the Roosevelt administration. He was born in Oak Park in 1906, attended high school there, and also attended the University of Illinois and Northwestern university. He formerly was a mortgage broker, later a home builder, and is now an auditor.

Patrick J. Concannon, 2527 Madison street, a contractor, was born in Ireland forty years ago and left that country after being imprisoned for his activities in behalf of the Irish republic. He came to Chicago through Canada twelve years ago.

Attorney George E. Fitzgerald, 4723 Adams street, is fourteenth on the Democratic list. He was born in his district thirty-eight years ago and attended public schools here and Campion college and Loyola university. He was in the army during the war, is married, and has two children.

Undertaker in Race.

Joseph Edward Kavanagh, 209 North Leamington avenue, an undertaker, was born in Forest Park in 1910. He attended St. Mel's High school, Loyola university, and De Paul university. He is president of the Embalmers, Funeral Directors, and Apprentices' union.

Attorney William J. Terrell, 3155 West 5th avenue, No. 16 of the Democratic candidates, was born in Chicago thirty-nine years ago. He attended the University of Illinois, was graduated from the Loyola university law school, and has practiced law in Chicago since 1921. He was in the army during the world war.

Richey V. Graham of River Forest has the strategic position at the bottom of the Democratic list. Mr. Graham, a native of Cook county, is a son-in-law of the late Mayor Cermak. He served in the 86th division during the war. He was formerly superintendent of the Bridewell and president of the county board. He was elected state representative in 1928 and state senator in 1934 and 1936. In 1933 he was elected president pro tempore of the senate. He recently moved from his senatorial district, the 19th, to the 7th.

Born in Chicago.

Robert Isham Randolph of Riverside, former head of the Chicago Association of Commerce, heads the Republican ballot as the county organization choice. He was born in Chicago in 1883 and attended Cornell university. He began his career as an assistant sanitary district engineer in 1904 and has since served on various harbor and navigation improvement commissions. He served with the army in Mexico and in France. He was director of operations for A Century of Progress.

One of Randolph's opponents is Maurice O'Connor, 542 North Pine avenue, who describes himself as "a Republican business man with no previous political ambitions and no boss controled political machine affiliations." The other is Raymond F. Shannon, 502 Washington boulevard, Oak Park.

SEVENTH DISTRICT

Leonard W. Schuetz, German born Democrat who has represented the 7th in congress since 1930, is the regular organization choice for the nomination again. He is 51 years old and has lived in Chicago most of his life. He has been a building contractor since 1922.

Another seeker of the Democratic nomination is Attorney William Jerome Caponigri, 3111 North Nottingham avenue. He was born in Chicago in 1906, was graduated from Crane Technical High school and obtained his law degree from De Paul university in 1929. He was assistant state's attorney in 1932 and since 1933 has practiced law privately.

The other Democratic candidates in the 7th are John C. Marcinkiewicz Jr., 3534 Diversey avenue, a cigar dealer, and George D. Zielinski, 2727 North Monticello avenue.

James C. Moreland, long a Republican figure, who lost the 1936 election Schuetz, is again party choice for the nomination. Moreland was born in Kentucky in 1886 and came to Chicago 30 years ago. He ran for congress in 1930 and the next year was elected alderman of the 41st ward, serving for two terms. He lives with his wife and three children at 5909 North Mason avenue.

One of Moreland's two opponents is Harry G. Weimer, 4302 Wrightwood avenue, community newspaper publisher. Mr. Weimer was born in Chicago, attended public school here and attended the naval academy in Annapolis in 1908. He is married and has four children.

EIGHTH DISTRICT

Leo Kocialkowski, regular Democrat who has been in congress since 1932, was again picked by his party's county leaders to head the list of seven Democrats. Kocialkowski was born on the northwest side in 1882 and obtained his formal education in elementary and business schools. For 16 years he was in charge of expert tax appraisals and delinquent tax matters in the county treasurer's office. He lives at 1421 North Ashland avenue.

The nomination also is sought by Dr. John J. Liss, a dentist with offices at 1263 North Paulina street. Dr. Liss was born in Chicago of Polish parents 44 years ago, and was educated in parochial schools and the Loyola university dental college. He has practiced dentistry since 1917, and is identified wtih numerous civic movements in his negihborhood.

A third aspirant is Peter Lavorata, 1817 North Winchester avenue, who was defeated for the Democratic nomination in 1934. Lavorata supported Gov. Horner in 1936, but he and many of his followers have broken away and formed the Illinois Democratic organization, which is Lavorata's chief support.

Another of the Democrats in the race is Stanley Guziec, 731 North Throop street, 27 years old.

Kunz Tries Comeback.

A comeback attempt is being made by Stanley H. Kunz, 1916 Potomac avenue, who served five terms in congress and part of a sixth. The original 1930 election returns showed that Kunz was defeated for reelection by Peter C. Granata. Kunz won a recount and in April, 1932, the house ousted Granata and seated Kunz. The former congressman supported Gov. Horner in 1936.

Robert McCutcheon, 1276 Washington boulevard, and Leopold Lagona, 1942 Division street, are the other Democrats in the primary race.

The lone Republican in the Eighth is Mrs. Rena E. Pikiel, 1658 Chicago avenue, wife of Attorney Alex J. Pikiel. The county Republican group has declared itself in her favor.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

This is the only district in the Chicago area where neither party has a primary contest. Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, the Republican incumbent since 1934, will be opposed in the November election by William J. Bossingham of Joliet, a young attorney who is a newcomer in the congressional field. In the 1936 election Reed polled 99,027 votes against 77,938 for the Democrat, John R. Barber.

Breakfast-Style Show Aids

DEMOCRATS LAY DOWN WEAPONS IN 2 DISTRICTS

Tension Eases in Race for Assembly.

There are two districts in Chicago where the warring factions of the local Democratic party have shown signs of agreement. The agreement may be tacit, but they have at least decided not to oppose each other's candidates in the state senatorial primaries in the 19th and 11th senatorial districts.

In the same two districts the Republican groups have struck a slightly inharmonious note. The campaigns will close on election day, April 12.

In the 19th district the Nash-Kelly organization has indorsed Attorney Abe L. Marovitz for nomination as state senator to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Senator Richey V. Graham, who is running for congress in the 6th congressional district.

The same political group has indorsed Representative John O. Hruby for reëlection and approved the candidacy for a second Democratic house seat of John J. Gorman, a precinct captain of Martin J. O'Brien, 29th ward committeeman, and Horner, county manager.

To Replace McSweeney.

Gorman was listed to replace Representative John R. McSweeney, who was dropped by the party at the end of his seventh term.

It is understood the Horner-Courtney faction has sanctioned the nomination of Marovitz, a former assistant state's attorney, who represented the gamblers last fall in State's Attorney Courtney's gambling test cases. This sanction was given, according to reports, as a compromise to aid in nominating Gorman.

Another compromise which may have had a reflection in the Marovitz agreement was the support by both parties of Senator John M. Lee, running for reëlection in the 11th district. The 11th is the home of State's Attorney Courtney and Lee is reputed to be friendly with the prosecutor. However, the Nash-Kelly group has no opposition to Lee. He is labor's spokesman in the upper house.

In this district, however, the campaign for nomination to the representative seats is not harmonious. Representative Michael E. Hannigan is running for reëlection with count committee indorsement. Thomas P O'Donovan is his running mate. Representative George A. Fitzgerald, a Courtney man, also is a candidate for reëlection. He was denied support by the regular organization.

Both Hannigan and Fitzgerald received fair reports from the Legislative Voters league. They are deputy balifs of the Municipal court, under A. J. Horan, a Horner-Courtney west side leader. Senator Lee is Horan's chief deputy.

G. O. P. Indorsement.

In the 11th the Republican county committee has indorsed Representative Calvin T. Weeks for reëlection. Although the Republican senatorial committee has not announced its decision in the number of Republicans to be nominated, it is understood that two will be named.

Swanson previously served seven terms at Springfield and always had favorable indorsement from the Legislative Voters league. The league recently reported that Weeks was "unfit" during his last session at Springfield.

On the Republican side in the 19th district the regular organization has indorsed Attorney James G. Soper of Cicero as candidate for senator and Representative Solomon P. Roderick of Chicago for reëlection. Louis E. Rotheiser is opposing Soper and Attorney Arnold L. Lund of Riverside is Roderick's strongest opponent.

It has been reported that the country town areas of the district, which include Cicero, Riverside and Berwyn, may back Lund instead of Roderick, while the city side of the district may change and support Rotheiser instead of Soper.

Rotheiser has been active in 24th ward politics for twenty years and is campaigning as a champion of the small home owner.

Frank Sherman, temporary chairman of the council, says that Mexican and Venezuelan youth will hold a peace conference on the same date.

At weekly meetings of the council the members are giving a series of educational symposiums covering such subjects as boycotts, the league of nations, collective security, and isolationism.

AMERICAN HEROES
Dramatic Incidents in Lives of Brave

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

VETERANS of the Revolution called it foolhardy and impossible, but Washington knew his men and officers.

From Sandybeach they had marched that day to the marsh commanding the only land approach to the British fortress atop Stony Point, on the Hudson river. A garrison of 600 men, cannon, and warships in the river, protected the fort.

The Americans had their orders. Any one making a noise would be killed.

No bullets or powder for them. Their commander knew that only by surprise could the Americans take the English stronghold. It was death by the bayonet.

It was the night of July 15, 1779, that they moved forward in two columns. Crossing the marsh on a sandy spit, involuntary noises aroused the garrison and the advance posts lower down the hill.

Cannon answered the charge of the Americans as they stormed up the hill. Flashes of the guns' discharge lighted the gloom.

Timed to a fraction of a minute, the columns met at the garrison, having swept over the abatis and lower breastworks. This sudden fierce assault proved too much for the amazed British who soon found themselves in the center of a savage ring of men slashing and lunging with naked bayonets.

Then the exultant Americans loosed their cry of victory, and the British warships withdrew as the guns of the fort turned on them. Only a few men were lost, while 63 of the garrison were killed and the remainder captured.

One of the first men in the fort was the commander of this daring expedition, who had lead the charge. Felled by a bullet, he thought himself near death and had his soldiers carry him into the fort. But the bullet only stunned him.

This man was Anthony Wayne. It was an exploit such as this, typical of his army career, which earned him the admiring title of "Mad Anthony," and the respect and affection of Gen. Washington and the new nation.

CLASSMATES AID YORK STUDENTS WITH POOR SIGHT

Copy Texts and Lessons in Large Type.

A classroom in which pupils with poor sight are aided by their classmates is an experiment showing satisfactory results this year at York Community High school.

The sight-saving room has been given a location in the building where the best lighting facilities are afforded. Yellow chalk is used for blackboard work and lessons written on the blackboard are presented in a bolder hand than is ordinarily required. Also in the equipment are three typewriters providing letters much larger than those on the standard machines. Walter Knudson, assistant athletic coach, is the class instructor.

Give Time Without Pay.

Members of the sight-saving class attend their regular classes as well as the lectures and discussions, but fellow pupils give their time in aiding in the preparation of written assignments. Some of the assistants, who give their time without financial compensation, do the work of tutors. Those with good scholarship, pleasing personalities, and patience are selected for the work.

Tutors are Miss Elaine Voss, Miss Leona Giese, Miss Emeline Hicks, Miss Dorothy Stevens, Miss Lucille Thulis, Miss Margaret Koch, Miss Mabel Obenland, Miss Helen Miller, Miss Florence Rautenbusch, Miss Ruth Schulze, and Miss Una Muir.

Other readers giving of their time are Miss Virginia Kronig and Jean Hartmann, juniors; Miss Irma Nelson, Miss Dorothy Lyle, and Philadel Reimer, sophomores. Freshmen being trained for the work are Miss Irene Garraughty, Miss Elaine Smith, Marion Brandon, and Miss Lillian Liden. Gregg Haney is coaching students in science.

Text Books Typed.

Members of the girls' typing class, taught by Mrs. Geraldine Schmidt, have not only typed tests and papers for the sight-saving class, but have prepared algebra and English text books on the typewriters with the magnified letters.

Room Draperies Should Barely Clear the Floor

The correct length for most living room draperies is floor length. That is, they should just clear the floor. If the room is done in formal fashion they may sweep out upon the floor in fan style, but this is not practical in the average home.

Glass curtains, when hung under draperies, should extend to the window sill, not below it. When used without draperies they may extend to within an inch of the floor, or they may stop at the lower edge of the window frame. They should never be made to stop at the baseboard.

The white, sticky film often found on rubberized shower curtains is caused by steam and water. To remove it wash the curtain in warm water and mild soap, rub with a soft brush, and then rinse thoroughly in clean warm water.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, March 14.

If the soil permits spading, this work may be undertaken in shrub beds at this time. Most shrubs are shallow rooting and will enjoy an application of commercial plant food. A complete plant food is best to use. It is advisable to start a few seeds of moonvines to have a good growth for planting out late in May. The heavenly blue morning glory is a fine vine and does best when started early.

Tuesday, March 15.

When the hotbed is ready be sure to rake a fine seedbed before sowing. Do not cover seed too deep, whether in the garden, window box, or pot. Study the proper way to handle the spade, for when spading is well done the surface of the soil is a real seedbed and as even as a floor. Break up the rough clods, if there are any, but if the ground is in proper condition there should be no lumps or clods, for they will break up readily. If hard clods or lumps are left collect them by raking and bury at one end of the garden to get them out of the way for sowing. Never spade when the ground is too wet.

Wednesday, March 16.

Do not keep canna roots that are rooting in too dense shade or the growths will soon become spindly or weakened. Give full sun at all times. Dusty miller, with its whitish leaves and low form, makes a fine edging plant for red geraniums or for any border. Sow the seed now to have good plants for planting when the weather warms. Graft apples and pears.

Thursday, March 17.

Tradition states that sweet peas should be sown on St. Patrick's day, but if the weather is not suitable do not sow. Wait for a better time. Sweet peas, however, should be sown early to take advantage of cooler growing conditions. Make a trench, sow the seed, and when the plants have started well fill in slightly and keep filling as growth develops. Try some of the newer varieties and sow each variety by itself so the different colors may be kept apart. Plant shrubs as soon as the nursery can ship them. See that the soil is in good condition, that the plants are well rooted, and the tops pruned to place the head or top in balance.

Friday, March 18.

Whenever the lawn can be walked on without injury it may be top-dressed with good soil in which a complete plant food has been mixed. Grass should be given every opportunity to grow in a luxuriant manner and most lawns lack food. Roll the lawn [but not while it is wet enough for the roller to collect loose soil] to flatten the slight elevations and compact the soil about the grass roots. Take full care of the lawn in the beginning and a good stand of grass is assured. Some grass seed can be sown on bare spots and if done early the seed will start in time to withstand the hot weather later on. Make a new lawn as early as possible to give the young grass a chance to start and become established.

Saturday, March 19.

Don't neglect to prepare and mail all orders for early plant and seed materials that will be needed. Do not use lime in soils unless it is necessary or it may do more harm than good. It is best to analyze the soil, for it may need only plant food and not lime. Keep seedlings transplanted or they soon will grow tall and weak. Give all the light possible. Transplant rooted cuttings. Sow vinca roses now for good plants. It makes a fine display. Propagate chrysanthemums from cuttings of the new growths. Watch for aphids and red spiders on house plants. Never permit house plants to suffer from a lack of water, but never overwater. Transplant house plants that need it. Do not overpot.

Shading Effects Seen on Carpets Due to Wearing

Shading effects which appear in plain or solid color rugs and carpets during the early periods of use result from the unequal trafic. Where the use is extremely heavy on certain parts of the carpet, the wool pile tends to become more tightly compressed than on parts less freely used. While the wool is elastic, the smoothness and even color of the new carpet cannot be retained indefinitly under constant and unequal wear. Brushing up of the pile will tend to overcome this condition but cannot prevent it indefinitly.

M'KINLEY HIGH PRINCIPAL ENDS SCHOOL CAREER

Leaves Vastly Improved Facilities for Pupil.

Mrs. Caroline Reilly studied to be a school teacher in 1892 because she didn't want to be a milliner or a sales girl. Those were the three careers, in addition to housework, open then to women. Last Friday Mrs. Reilly retired from her position as principal of McKinley High school, 2040 West Madison street, closing a career that has proved her choice was wise.

Mrs. Caroline Reilly.

After being graduated from high school in Peru, Ill., Mrs. Reilly attended Cook County Normal school. Since then she has studied at the University of Chicago and Columbia university. Her first teaching position was in the Kershaw school. In 1914-15 she taught at Lane Technical High school. She was principal of the Chalmers school and of the Agassiz school before coming to McKinley in 1926.

Aid Beyond Classroom.

Mrs. Reilly raised the standards of McKinley through the period when her work had to be social as well as scholastic. During the depression the students who came from the impoverished neighborhoods needed shoes and carfare as well as algebra. The school had to coöperate constantly with the relief stations. Mrs. Reilly has faced acute problems of poverty and loss of morale in the school and has worked to build up the initiative in thousands of underprivileged boys and girls who were sent to school to learn about economics and Latin.

As an executive Mrs. Reilly was compelled to meet a succession of adjustments—additional shifts, the installation of portables and their subsequent removal. She helped establish the Cregier and Jackson branches and the annexation of the Spalding branch for crippled students. Then she saw the closing of the Jackson branch and the opening of Wells and Manley High schools which all meant repeated redistricting and redistributing students.

Develops Student Interest.

Mrs. Reilly organized the McKinicy orchestra and band during her first year as principal and developed the student newspaper, "The Orange and Black." She asked for a branch of the public library to be installed at the school.

Other accomplishments was the work she did to renovate the school, improve the assembly hall, procure paintings for the walls and to coordinate all departments in the school. She enlarged student experiences by arranging a program of tours.

Yesterday members of the McKinley faculty held a testimonial dinner for Mrs. Reilly at the Palmer house. In the letter of appreciation presented to her the faculty members stated: "Building little by little, improving, repairing and encouraging, Mrs. Reilly has made McKinley High school an example of her belief in the fundamental fineness of American youth."

NOW 95; BEGAN EARNING MONEY WHEN SHE WAS 8

Mary Bergh Bakes Own Birthday Cake.

Some women who lived in the age when it was fashionable to faint, didn't. Whether the era is described by lovely ladies in ivory towers and rescuing knights in armour or whether it is described in terms of today, there have been and are self-sufficient women. Miss Mary Bergh proves it. Last Thursday she was 95 years old. Since she was eight she has earned her own living and she still is financially independent.

Miss Mary Bergh.

Last Thursday on her birthday she baked a cake for her guests. She combed her white hair into a knot at the back of her head and pushed it down with three brown hair pins. She tidied up the house which she shares with her sister, Mrs. Carrie Seaberg, 4719 West Erie street.

Looked to the Future.

When Mary Bergh was 8 years old and tended the flocks of geese and brought the cows home for neighboring farmers back in Loberod, Sweden, she looked to the future. It was an unopened book with a preface of plans. At 95 she looks at the past.

Mary watched the neighbors' flocks because they could pay her a wage and save the cost of fences. For four winters she went to school and learned to read and write.

At home she helped with the spinning and weaving and helped bake bread. They made 100 pounds of flour into rogbrot that would last a year and hung it up in the storeroom to dry.

Worked for Neighbors.

When she was 12, Mary started to work out in neighboring farm house kitchens. She had learned to bake the flour in tasty hard bread, knew how to cure meat and cook it.

When she was 22 and the snow was heavy on the hills, her kitchen work was a routine of keeping the fires bright in the kitchen stove. When the pine trees showed green against a monotony of white, then Mary Bergh let her day dreams wander to strong Pete Piersen, the carpenter, whose handsome face was rough and red from the wind.

The thaw came and spring settled on the hills and let the wild cherry trees blossom. Then golden plovers and wagtails built their nests and Mary knew she was in love. Before that spring was gone and before the church bells could sound the gayety of a wedding day, Pete Piersen died.

The kitchen work that Mary did for twenty-two more years was in other farmers' wives' kitchens.

Came to America.

In 1887 Mary Bergh came to America to find new work to do. She would forget the golden plovers that chirped at her from the birch branches at home. For twenty-three years she worked as a housekeeper in an Evanston home. She wears a tarnished medal that the family gave her when it was shiny new and when the word "loyalty" was easy to read.

Twice she went back to Sweden and looked at the birch and the aspen trees and saw the wild cherries come into blossom. Then she returned to America to work again.

When she was 85 Miss Bergh stopped taking steady housekeeping positions. But in the five years that followed she worked at odd jobs when she was called. At 95 her hair is as white as the heavy snow on the Swedish hills and she has time now to sit in the wicker rocking chair in her room and have her day dreams.

MADISON STREET PARKING LIMIT SOUGHT BY CLUB

An ordinance limiting parking on Madison street from Canal street to Pulaski road is sought by the West Side Trafic and Transportation association. The drive for new parking regulations was opened at a recent meeting when William M. Druley, the association president, cited that double parking along Madison street proves an impediment to the trafic flow and is a cause of accidents.

It is the aim of members of the association to have parking prohibited from 7 to 9 o'clock on weekdays on the south side of the street and from 4 to 6 o'clock daily on the north side of the street.

At the recent board of directors meeting of the Midtown Kiwanis club a resolution favoring the trafic improvement was unanimously adopted. The West Towns Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants Community council and the West Side Federation of club also voted in favor of such an ordinance.

New officers were chosen by the Trafic and Transportation association at last week's meeting. In addition to Mr. Durley the slate includes James J. Curtis, vice president; William H. Clayton, secretary; Joseph A. Kallas, treasurer, and Frank E. Svoboda, chairman of the board. Members of the board of directors are Frank R. Campbell, Dr. M. J. Sullivan, Harvey S. Amercon, William H. McManis, Charles A. Belke, Julian T. Fitzgerald, W. R. Kunkel, and Arthur P. Murphy.

District vice presidents of the eight geographical divisions that make up the west side were also elected. They are William Newman, Dr. Samuel M. Rakow, Nick Forte, William H. Maas, S. E. Cleveland, Philip E. Scanlan, John E. Kennedy, and John G. Bonlin.

SEES CHANCE FOR LISTENER LEAGUE TO SERVE RADIO

Membership Should Be Kept Representative.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The story printed in this column a few weeks ago calling attention to the Radio Listeners' Foundation, with headquarters in Detroit, resulted in 25,000 persons in the Chicago area joining. The organization, which is nonprofit and charges no admittance fee, is solely a relaying center and clearing house for listeners' suggestions, comment, and criticism.

Richard E. Jones, president of the league which has headquarters at 453 East Jefferson avenue, has this to say:

Please believe me we have been swamped by letters and cards from your readers desiring to join.

Perhaps you will be interested in knowing how we are proceeding to expand our group. Present plans are to enlarge through national organizations in sympathy with our objectives, such as womens' clubs, Parent-Teacher associations, Allied Youth groups, universities, schools, church groups, and musical organizations.

To be successful we realize that all classes must be represented in our organization, and to date we can show a very good cross section of the listening public. Our goal is two million members, which, most observers feel, is not too ambitious.

Ed. note: This organization can do a lot of good, and command the most serious attention of broadcasters, sponsors, advertising agencies, and performers if it becomes thoroughly representative of the whole listening audience. While broadcasters are concerned over what clubwomen, parents, and civic and educational groups have to say about radio, they are a lot more interested in hearing what the vast unorganized army of listeners thinks. Thus the membership of the listeners' foundation should be thoroughly representative for every age, social, economic, and geographic listening group.

"Offensive Exhibitionism."

Here is a letter typical of many we receive. It voices a legitimate complaint at the loud-voiced, insistent type of advertising. We reprint it in full:

Permit me to call your attention to one more of present day radio's sins.

Radio, because it is a guest invited into the home, should be judged by the same standards as the actors presenting the program would be if they physically entered the door instead of by way of the loud speaker. Sponsors wouldn't think of sending their salesmen around kicking on doors and yet they do so via the radio.

Just imagine a salesman coming to the front door, kicking it open with a bang, and then, with a variety of noise makers to accompany him, start shouting at the top of his voice about whatever he had to sell, and doing it in a rapid fire voice resembling the barker at a carnival trying to rope in the suckers. He'd get attention all right. Before he got very far some one would hush him up and throw him out. Yet sponsors enter the home via the loud speaker in this rowdy manner and expect to get an audience with the prospective customer. It isn't salesmanship, good psychology, or even good showmanship. A tolerant inspection still classes it as offensive exhibitionism.

If sponsors and their agencies would give the same care and attention to the manner in which they enter the home via the radio as they do the way their sales representatives enter a client's premises in person, they would obtain far better acceptance of their product. At present they shout and yell like the vegetable peddler in the back yard, which only makes most listeners wish they would go away and stay away.

Radio seems to employ every trick and device to improve sales and public acceptance except psychology. Radio hasn't discovered it yet and agencies seldom use it. I wish they would. C. H. B.

Ed. note: This letter reminds us of a point brought out in the promotional copy of a new robotlike radio.

"Every one is glad to give respectful attention," it states, "to short and dignified selling messages over the air after listening to a worth while program. But most of us object strenuously to the long drawn out high pressure announcements. In this new radio, without moving from your chair, you can instantly eliminate this type of announcement, or make it inaudible, while waiting for the next program."

A simple press on a button lowers the volume instantly. Another push brings it back up.

Squawk About Contests.

Many inquiries reach this desk regarding the conduct of radio contests. This one is typical:

I would like to register my squawk. What is the secret of winning radio contests. Had never given it much thought until recently when I came upon a case where my patient is everlastingly buying cans and packages of this, that, and the other thing, sending wrappers in to radio contests. Seems to me a waste of time and money—but I have to humor her. Although some are remarkably unique and original they never merit a prize. What is the secret? Does one have to be a professional contest worker? Or is it necessary to be either related to or a friend of the judges. Another story I've heard—you have to be Irish. [I'd qualify there.] Please give me the lowdown. . . . Another thing, it would be interesting if when they gave the names of the winners they would read the prize winning slogan.

Miss —— —— [Registered Nurse].

Ed. note: What most listeners forget is that many radio contests bring in more than a million entries. They fail to remember that their likelihood of winning is almost infinitesimal. We believe that most contests are conducted honestly. We have interviewed numerous winners of radio contests and with one exception they were people in average circumstances who were simply flabbergasted that they won. Why should a sponsor want to be anything but honest in a contest? The purpose is to further good will and wider acceptance of his products. Why would he take any chance by cheating or cutting corners.

Winning slogans are seldom read on the air because often these may be duplicated—or nearly so—by innumerable contestants. Thus, the sponsors avoid a lot of controversial correspondence by keeping this information to themselves.

KYSER'S KLASS GOES TO CHICAGO THEATER TODAY

Kay Kyser's Musical Klass, the popular program which has been featured on W-G-N and the Mutual network for the last several weeks, will be presented from the stage of the Chicago theater beginning next Friday. The theater program will be identical to the broadcast, with the members of the Klass being selected from the audience and competing for cash prizes.

With the orchestra doing a week of entertaining at the theater Kay and his boys face one of the busiest schedules ever laid out for a dance orchestra. The show schedule at the Chicago theater calls for five performances each day, then the band boys will rush off to the Blackhawk restaurant, where they are appearing nightly and broadcasting over W-G-N-Mutual. The commercial "Klass" program on W-G-N-Mutual on Tuesday evening also will be presented as scheduled. All in all, the Kyser orchestra will do at least thirty-five stage performances, about ten sustaining broadcasts, and one commercial broadcast during the week.

OPERA AUDITIONS FINALS TO BE STARTED TODAY

Competing for contracts with the Metropolitan Opera company, six accomplished artists will be heard during Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air programs today and March 20, at 4 p. m. over WENR-NBC, when the finals of the auditions are broadcast.

Among those who successfully have passed preliminary tests and who will be heard today are Kathleen Kirsting, soprano, of Wichita, Kas.; Leonard Warren, baritone, of New York City, and Phil Duey, NBC baritone of Macy, Ind. The March 20 broadcast will present John Carter, tenor, of Brooklyn; Margaret Codd, lyric coloratura, of Cleveland, and Felix Knight, NBC tenor, of Macon, Ga.

STEELMAKERS NOW ON MUTUAL COAST TO COAST

That unusual program, The Musical Steelmakers, featuring only employés of the Wheeling Steel corporation, is now heard from coast to coast over W-G-N and Mutual at 4 p. m. Sundays. The first nationwide program was heard last Sunday.

Talent is recruited from the 25,000 employés of Wheeling Steel. The Singing Millmen, male quartet; Sarah Rehm, 19 year old soprano, who works in the bookkeeping department; the Old Timer, and the Musical Steelmakers' band of sixteen pieces are some of the regular features.

N.A.A.U. Basketball Meet on Mutual from Denver

The Mutual system will present two broadcasts from the scene of the National A. A. U. basketball tournament in Denver, Colo., next Friday and Saturday nights. The show will be presented between 10:15 p. m. and 11:30 each night. Joe Meyers and Bill Welch, well known sports commentators, will describe the play.

HOFMANN, ITURBI SOLOISTS TODAY ON AIR CONCERTS

Gladys Swarthout to Be Magic Key Guest.

The appearance of Josef Hofmann as piano soloist and interviews by Deems Taylor with members of the woodwind section will be the features of the Columbia network's broadcast of the Philharmonic Symphong orchestra concert directed by John Barbirolli at 2 p. m. today on WBBM-CBS.

Hofmann, who has been winning renewed acclaim in the fiftieth anniversary year of his debut, is to play the Chopin Concerto No. 1 in E minor. Preceding this Barbirolli will open the broadcast directing Purcell's Dances from "The Fairy Queen," which despite the title and its classification as an opera was set by the seventeenth century composer to an anonymous adaptation of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Following the intermission Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," "Shepherd Fennel's Dance" by Balfour Gardiner, and the Theme and Variations from the Suite No. 3 in G, opus 55, of Tschaikowsky will be given.

George Gershwins "Rhapsody in Blue" and two movements of Haydn's D Major Concerto written for and played on the harpsichord will be among the contrasting highlights of José Iturbi's program with the Ford Symphony orchestra and chorus at 8 p. m. over WBBM today. Iturbi, the eminent Spanish conductor and pianist, who has often directed series of these broadcasts, is to be the guest soloist in Detroit, with Sir Ernest MacMillan conducting.

Iturbi also is to play the "Larghetto" and "Rondo all' Ongherese," by Haydn.

Sir Ernest MacMillan will direct the orchestra in Rossini's overture to "The Barber of Seville," Gantvoort's "Golden Crown" with both chorus and orchestra, Percy Grainger's "Molly on the Shore," the "Artist Life" waltz by Strauss, and in closing, Cruger's hymn, "Now Thank We All Our God."

Gladys Swarthout, mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan opera, who also has won outstanding success in radio, motion pictures, and on the concert stage, will be featured on the Magic Key of RCA program at 1 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

The Magic Key also will present Hortense Monath, young American concert pianist, playing with the Pasquier Trio, the brothers Jean, Pierre, and Etienne, well known chamber music ensemble.

SPORTS REVIEW WITH BOB ELSON BACK ON W-G-N

The W-G-N Sports Review, presenting sports news and views of the day with Bob Elson as commentator, will return to W-G-N at 6:30 tomorrow and will be heard daily, Monday through Saturday, at the same hour.

Elson will not be heard for the first few weeks. He is on his way to California to spend a few weeks in the training camps of the Chicago White Sox and the Chicago Cubs, and during his absence the review will be presented by Jim Fleming.

News of the training camps, the final dope on the closing games of the National Hockey league, the six day bike race results, and the latest information on the American Bowling congress will be aired this week.

Quin Ryan Will Present Host of Sports Notables

Phil Collins, famous boxing referee; "Red" Ormsby, American league baseball umpire; Conrad Jennings, athletic director of Marquette university; Tom Walsh, golf professional at Westgate Valley and secretary of the P. G. A., and Arch Ward, TRIBUNE sports editor, will be the guests on Quin Ryan's Sports Celebrity Parade this week. The Celebrity Parade is featured nightly except Saturday, with the reading of Tomorrow's TRIBUNE at 8:45 p. m. and on Saturday nights at 7 p. m.

Edmund Lowe Guest of George Jessel Today

Edmund Lowe, film star, makes his first appearance on W-G-N and the Mutual "Thirty Minutes in Hollywood" program from coast to coast at 5 p. m. today. Ringmaster George Jessel; his wife, Norma Talmadge; 7 year old singer Josephine Starr, and Tommy Tucker's band round out the festivities.

Sing and Swing!

Jack Fulton Jr., tenor, who, with the Andrews Sisters, will do the vocalizing on the new WBBM-CBS show tentatively titled "Sing and Swing," which starts at 10 p. m. Monday, March 21.

GREASED LIGHTNING!

Outdoing grown-ups! Every day youngsters burn up more bodily energy in proportion to their weight than grown-ups do. Re-charge their systems each morning with Cream of Wheat. It's filled with carbohydrate energy for play and growth. It helps keep body tissues from being torn down during the super-active morning hours.

Children love it! "More — more — more" is the breakfast chant of eager Cream of Wheaters. This cereal is so smooth, so creamy, so wonderfully tempting. 3½ million bowls are eaten daily! Your doctor will undoubtedly tell you about its muscle-building protein . . . the contribution Cream of Wheat makes toward steady weight gains . . . and the way digestion starts almost instantly!

Mind the pennies! Cream of Wheat helps you economize. It costs less than ½ cent a serving. Cooking up to 6 times its original volume, each large package yields over 50 handsome helpings. Cream of Wheat is a blend from the best hard wheats, sun-ripened, heat-treated and purified. Packaged under a triple seal.

Terry and the Pirates
Milton Caniff
Unaware of the Dragon Lady's arrangement with Klang to betray them, Terry and Connie have gone deep into the abandoned mine....
This air shaft is our way of escaping Klang, Connie—let's go back for Burma and the Dragon Lady before he attacks!
But at the main building on the surface
You were signaling to Klang's men—now they're comin'! You've sold us out!
Ho! It is the civil conflict!
The Dlagon Lady seem to have the difficulty delivering the golden one as planned!
Double-crossin' tramp!
The Dragon Lady has carried out her part of agreement! —Now, if Klang will produce men and supplies she will depart!
But all is not as bargained for! Young Melican an' Chinese not at hand!
It is the girl you want! What do the others matter?
Klang is business man—contract not filled—so Dlagon Lady stay till full measure is paid!
What you do?
I'm just cold! You can't sue me for puttin' on that dame's cape, can you?
So! The Dragon Lady keeps her bargains! They went for wood! —Soon they will return thinking all is well... then Klang can capture them!
Connie glad come now to top-side! Ol' mine dark an' dank! Soon warm in house!
Yeah Bo! Then we'll take the gals an' beat it back to that air shaft!
Better save th' torch!
Funny! Is more lights in house than usually!
That's right! —An'... Hey, Connie—do you notice somethin'?
That one window—it's red! I may be crazy—but I'll bet that's some sort of warning!

A report states that dead Chinamen were found at these points--look--they form a straight line--that must be th' smugglers' course!
They probably learned we were patrolling that section an' dumped "cargo", fearing capture!

We got a tip that the patrol planes are in Texas--it's safe to fly our Arizona route again----C'mon, Cotton!
Ah won't fly no mo' aliens--ah might get mixed up in mo' killin's!
Do as you're told---anyway, it isn't aliens---it's narcotics this trip!

WONDER BREAD helps build VITALITY!

HOLLYWOOD KNOWS! VITALITY—NOT A PRETTY FACE—IS THE REAL SECRET OF POPULARITY!

Says ANN DVORAK

FEATURED IN HAL ROACH M-G-M PICTURE, "MERRILY WE LIVE" IN ACTUAL COMPARISON WITH OTHER BREADS—

89 out of every 100 women have chosen Wonder Bread

North, South, East, West . . . in grocery stores in all parts of the country . . . women by the hundreds of thousands have made the famous 1-2-3 comparison of breads. They have compared virtually all popular brands by the very method experts themselves use to compare bread quality.

Now look at the actual record! To date, 381,499 women have made this test . . . and 89 out of every 100 have chosen Wonder Bread over all others.

These women declared Wonder Bread best after discovering its tempting, delicious flavor! Its firm, delicate texture! Its appetizing, "wheaty" fragrance!

Has any bread you know ever won such overwhelming preference? Never, we believe, have women been so outspoken in their enthusiasm for any bread!

Now when you buy Wonder Bread, you can be sure that you are getting the one bread declared BEST in this fair, impartial bread comparison by American housewives. Get a loaf of slo-baked Wonder Bread tomorrow!

CONTINENTAL BAKING CO., INC.

HOW WONDER BREAD BUILDS UP ENERGY

If you want to have the radiant charm . . . the sparkling vitality that, screen stars agree, makes women truly attractive . . . you must have energy—vital energy!

This, you can only get from the food you eat. Wonder Bread, food authorities agree, is a splendid source of energy. It is made of choice ingredients that supply in abundant measure the food-energy you need.

And Wonder Bread is slo-baked to make it more quickly, more completely digestible . . . to give you vital energy more quickly and easily!

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Migrating Birds Return

March 12, 1938.

A FEW migrating birds not afraid of March weather arrived at the farm last week to turn everybody's thoughts to spring. One can be pretty sure that blackbirds, robins and bluebirds will make their appearance during the early part of March if they get any kind of encouragement from the weatherman. True to form and average migration schedules a few of these birds have checked in as harbingers of the new season that slowly is pushing winter out of the picture.

It isn't much of an effort for the robin to reach Chicagoland farms during the first week of March. In fact, it sometimes is difficult to determine whether the male robin that one hears singing during early March is a bird that has just come up from southern Illinois or one that has stayed around all winter. He undertakes no long distance flight in the fall, such as many other songsters do. Purple martins may fly to Brazil in winter in order to get plenty of insects, but the robins are content to spend their winters in the United States.

Winter in Florida.

The gulf coast region, particularly Florida, is the scene of the robins' biggest winter party. Thousands congregate down there when winter prevails in the north country. Many times while fishing for bass in palm fringed streams we have seen from twenty to several hundred northern robins flying in and out of the heavy vegetation along the rivers.

How the robins arrange their summer and winter schedules is of especial interest to the students of migration. It is thought that the birds which nest in southern Missouri, for example, go to Florida or the Gulf coast for the winter. The robins which fly north to Canada to nest may come south to Missouri to occupy the abandoned summer homes of the southern birds.

The bluebird is another early migrant that doesn't mind the cool March weather, often moving into Chicagoland at this season of the year. Of all the migrants that come up from the south to tell us about the new season the bluebird brings us the brightest, cheeriest spring note, since the color of its plumage rivals the blue of spring skies.

Bluebirds Stay in U. S.

This species has no long flight to make to reach Chicagoland, as it does not go far south in the autumn. Like the robin, the bluebird is content to stay in the United States, and may winter no farther southward than southern Illinois.

Even the cardinals must have experienced a little spring fever this last week, judging from the whistling we heard one morning. The male bird, a beautiful splash of color against the leafless branches of a tree, was whistling and calling as if he didn't mind the dirty remnants of snow banks that still were visible.

When we were hiking through the farm woods the other morning we saw a good example of the way Nature provides her own refrigerator for wild fruit. In the area north of the big pond we noticed a number of decayed wild crab apples under the trees. After a few minutes of digging into the dead grass and leaves we found a green one—perfectly preserved after a long winter. Covered since last autumn by several layers of oak and hickory leaves, this fruit was frozen when frosts came. A few days of warm weather didn't reach this and other buried apples and they were not spoiled by alternate freezing and thawing.

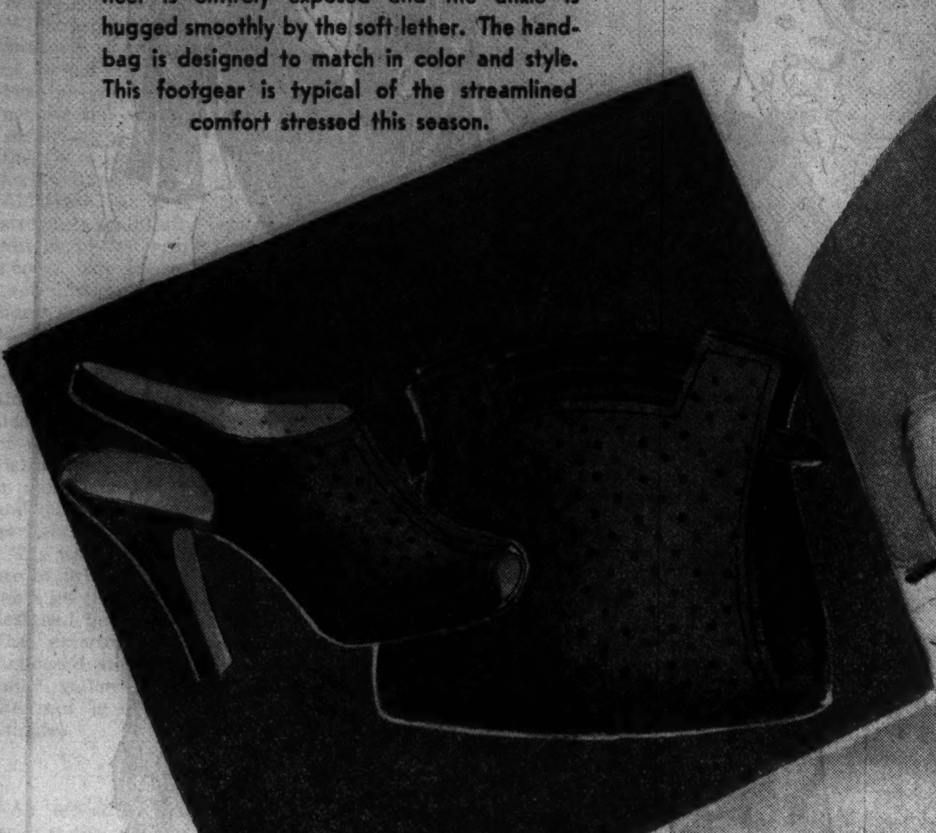
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Part 6 Women's Features

MARCH 13, 1938.

Below: Stressing supercomfort, featherweight suede, and a brand new silhouette, this air-cooled, perforated street shoe comes in blue and three other colors. The toe aperture is reduced to a pleasing smallness. The heel is entirely exposed and the ankle is hugged smoothly by the soft lether. The handbag is designed to match in color and style. This footgear is typical of the streamlined comfort stressed this season.



At right: This pump is the summer classic for all sorts of clothes. Notice the graceful heel and streamline and the smart details in trim. Accessory hint: There is a good looking bag to match.

Below: From another new showing of spring footgear, a satin kidskin street pump with bag to match. Available in a number of colors, one of the most intriguing of which is beige, smarter and lovelier than ever before and the perfect accent for brown costumes.

Above: Definitly the smartest low-heeled shoe yet designed. It comes in suede in a delectable shade called Parisand, a vibrant copper tone, and in other colors, too. There is hosiery exactly matched in one, two, and three thread mesh; also bags, belts, gloves, and even costume jewelry to keep the shoes fashion company.

At Your Feet, Milady, the Most Decorative and Colorful Shoes Designed in Many a Spring

By RHEA SEEGER

AT YOUR feet, ready for spring, the most colorful, most decorative footwear in years! Everything from the classic opera pumps with or without bows to the suave new wrapped affairs in two and three color contrasting bands of jersey. In between, colored kidskins, combines of suede and patent, and the smartest streamlined patent lethers. Nothing is overdone in any model; not too much whimsy nor a sign of overdecoration; all beautifully designed footgear, ready for any wardrobe.

New colors are matched exactly to belts, bags, hosiery, gloves, and even costume jewelry. Good looking models are available in either suede, patent, or calfskin; suedes as soft and thin as heavy satin, the calfskin supple as a wool fabric, and patent lether amazingly flexible, so that the old-time hazard of cracked or ridged patent is gone forever.

High heels are back, also moderate heights and some new, rather dizzy altitude street shoes with walking heels that are high. Afternoon slippers have all the grace and charm to go with your most cherished plaited print dress. High-heeled sandals to wear with dress parade clothes are created in gleaming colored patent lether or in sleek black. Effective colored suedes to accent a dark toned ensemble, vibrantly toned dancing sandals or prints in trick cottons, silks, and linen with fetching little bags to match, are other news. And the latest footnotes of the season, the wrap-around numbers of jersey! Nothing has escaped the fingers of expert shoemakers!

New spring footgear has been expressly designed for special occasions and for individual costumes. Afternoon dresses are subtly complemented with very graceful models that couldn't ever be used for street or country tweeds, suits, or travel outfits. Daytime models for crisp prints and all the smartest dark colored dresses of a good spring wardrobe boast exquisite details, some designs achieved with small and large perforations, or shallow scallops of suede, contrasting patent lether and calfskin. Patent lether lacings almost as narrow as a thread, or pipings of this shiny stuff, are applied in decorative outline pieces.

And the open toe models have been brought under control. Smaller cut-outs this spring, clever cross and double cross work over instep and at the heel, mark the best buys. Without a doubt patent lether steals every showing. Next come the clever fabrics, then the soft, supersupple suedes, and, occupying a large slice of the spotlight, the deservedly popular combines of two lethers, dull and shiny, for the perfect duet.

Decorative motifs are very popular. They've been managed with great smoothness this spring; nothing sissy or too pretty about a single shoe. Appliques of lether, fabric, or contrasting color are artistic and reasonably planned. Daytime footgear with such decorations is pleasantly welcome after too many puritan-plain affairs.

Embroidered footgear achieves effective copies of all the peasant embroidered clothes. Coarse linen in natural or white, and a few colors, furnishes the background for raised embroidery in vivid hues.

From two outstanding showings of new footgear we've sketched the high spots of the early spring fashions, shoes for daytime wear and semi-dress parade occasions.

Above: Another new and breezy idea, slipper, bag, and scarf, all fashioned of widely striped, sturdy material in stunning contrast colors. Ideal costume accents for any dark brown, deep blue, or black outfit. If you're accessory wise you'll select harmonizing hosiery at the time you pick out your footgear. The shoe in this ensemble exposes both heel and toe and has a high front.

I have received a number of letters requesting a recipe for Hollandaise sauce. One lady wrote in that she wanted a "fool-proof" recipe for Hollandaise sauce. In these letters the ladies of the kitchen complain about the sauce separating. Well! I can't blame them for that because I have seen it happen scores of times in the best of restaurants. A fine, smooth, thick Hollandaise could be picked up by the waiter in the kitchen and by the time it arrived before the guest it had separated for no reason at all.

There are ever so many foods that call for Hollandaise sauce. Asparagus, fresh or canned, and broccoli. Never before have I seen such fine, heavy and green broccoli in the markets. Cauliflower, when boiled in half milk and water and served with Hollandaise, is always popular. Boiled fish such as halibut, cod and any number of other fishes have more zest and flavor with Hollandaise on the side. What makes eggs Benedict?—Hollandaise, of course. I know it to be a fact that thousands and thousands of housewives would much prefer to serve Hollandaise instead of butter sauce for the above named foods, and the only reason they do not attempt Hollandaise is because they fear it won't come out right.

Principle Same Regardless of the Number of Eggs.

It doesn't matter one bit whether you are going to make Hollandaise with forty or four eggs. The principle is identically the same. To make this "fool-proof" Hollandaise you must be mindful of gentle heat. If you can strike that happy medium of heat, your sauce is sure to be a success. The recipe which I am going to give you has never failed me and I have done it a hundred times or more.

Melt one-half cup of butter over boiling water in the top part of a double boiler. Now remember, this is the only time I am going to mention the word "boiling." Your butter at this point should be hot, but not too hot. Do you follow me? Meanwhile beat four egg yolks until thick, smooth and lemon colored. I prefer brown eggs and I don't know why. Pour beaten egg yolks into the melted butter all at once, and with a wooden spoon start stirring slowly, evenly, but don't stop stirring. Look out for the water in the lower part of the boiler, do not let it touch the upper part and do not at any time let it come to a boil. The hot steam from the water is going to cook your Hollandaise, just please remember that. Lift the top part from the lower part, if you think the heat is too great, but don't stop stirring.

With the necessary amount of heat you will soon begin to notice the sauce thicken, which means the butter and egg yolks are slowly cooking together. Right now add the seasonings, one-fourth teaspoon salt and a very light pinch of cayenne pepper. One tablespoon of lemon juice is added when the sauce becomes fairly thick, perhaps just thick enough to pour. Keep the sauce warm, not hot. You see there is nothing really difficult in making Hollandaise sauce. Treat this prima donna of sauces kindly and it's bound to come out right.

Canned Crabmeat Popular Even in Fishing Sections.

A few weeks ago I had something nice to say about canned crabmeat. It is a popular food, even in sections of the country where fresh crabmeat is obtainable. Crabmeat Newburg makes a hit with almost every one. It was one of the best sellers in Rector's, and even today it is just as popular in the swank hotels and restaurants. There are several ways to prepare it. I would like to give you my version of it, by preparing the sauce very much like Hollandaise, except you do not need the double boiler.

First thing we do is to open a small can of crabmeat, or to be exact; the equivalent of one pound. The crabmeat should be carefully picked over to remove the little bones. Melt three tablespoons of butter in a sauce pan. Add the crabmeat and mix it well and gently. I want it to absorb the butter and to heat thoroughly. Season with one-half teaspoon salt and a light pinch of cayenne pepper. Add three tablespoons of dry sherry and mix again. Now here comes the trick, so follow closely. Bank the crabmeat to one side of the sauce pan so as to make a space to prepare the Newburg sauce.

Did you ever know how this dish got its name? Years ago one of Delmonico's favored patrons and a real epicure was a man by the name of Wenburg. Delmonico's wanted to name this dish after him. Mr. Wenburg was delighted but requested that they spell the first syllable of his name backwards, hence the dish became known as Newburg.

Let Half Pint of Cream Heat Over Low Flame.

Now, on with the recipe. Pour into the open space in the sauce pan one-half pint of cream. Let it heat, not boil, over a low flame. Beat well three egg yolks as you would do for the Hollandaise sauce and pour the eggs slowly into the heated cream, stirring all the time with a wooden spoon. Be very careful that there is not too much heat. Occasionally remove the sauce pan from the low heat but do not stop stirring. If the eggs should cook too fast, because of a little too much heat, you will very likely wind up with scrambled eggs. Low heat will do the trick and your sauce will thicken and become smooth. Combine crabmeat and sauce and there you have crabmeat Newburg prepared in one pan. I have made this crabmeat Newburg in a chafing dish just for a bit of showmanship, an old custom of mine.

On my recent visit to Hollywood I came across a delightful combination for a salad. It contained crabmeat or lobster meat and avocado. The meat of the avocado pear was scooped out with a spoon and an equal amount of crabmeat was placed in a bowl. Russian dressing was added to it and then thoroughly mixed. It is served on a light bed of lettuce or as a cocktail. I have already given the Russian dressing recipe, perhaps I had better repeat it.

To one-half cup of mayonnaise add the following, finely chopped. One teaspoon of chives, one teaspoon of stuffed olives, one teaspoon of green peppers and one teaspoon of sweet vinegar pickles or India relish. Mix thoroughly.

Dressy Knitted Frock Has Charm Juveniles Prefer

By Jean Macdonald.

With the bright warm summer days approaching, every little girl must have several changes of dresses in her wardrobe, and one seldom can have too many. When the afternoon nap is over, and the four or five year old girl is dressed for dinner, there is no more charming outfit than the simple hand knitted dress illustrated today. It is cool and comfortable, durable and easy to launder, to say nothing of the simplicity of the knitting.

The garter stitch band at the bottom is followed by an openwork mesh design of simple stitches until the yoke is reached, when the garter stitch is resumed. There are no sleeves in this cunning dress, but ribbons are joined to the crocheted edge around the knitting midway between the yoke and shoulder. The dress fastens with two buttons in the back.

With the attractive fine cotton materials available at reasonable prices there is no reason why several of these dresses could not be made at small cost. Imported nubby Irish linen is another attractive summer material and crêpe and chiffon zephyr also are successful for this knitted model.

If you wish instructions for knitting the child's dress, for the 4 and 5 year old, illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Meringue Type of Sweetmeat Requires Care

By Mary Meade

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Before the days of baking powder and soda, egg whites were used to leven cookies and pastries. Macaroons and meringues, sometimes called "kisses," were among our earliest sweet cookies. Most of them are levened solely by air which is beaten into the egg whites used to make them.

In making angel food cake we take care not to overbeat egg whites, for we know that to beat beyond the stage of glossy peaks means to reduce the volume and produce a dry, coarse cake. The same care must be exercised in making the meringue type of cookie. Egg whites should be beaten until they form peaks, but no longer. The frothy mass should be shiny and smooth. Better success is had if egg whites are at room temperature before they are beaten.

There are many varieties of meringue sweets. Some are made with granulated sugar, others with confectioners' sugar, and the proportion of sugar to eggs may vary considerably. But if the egg whites are beaten properly, and if the oven temperature isn't too high, any good recipe will bring satisfactory results.

MARGUERITES

1¾ cups sugar
½ cup water
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped nuts
1 tablespoon butter
⅛ teaspoon salt
Soda crackers

Cook sugar and water to soft ball stage, 238 degrees, and pour gradually over the egg whites which have been beaten until stiff but not dry. Add vanilla, nuts, salt, and butter. Drop by spoonsful on the crackers and bake at 350 degrees until light brown in color. Chopped fruit may be substituted for the nuts, or finely chopped maraschino cherries may be added along with the nuts for variation.

CHOCOLATE KISSES.

2 egg whites
1 square chocolate
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1/16 teaspoon salt

Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually. Add vanilla and melted chocolate. Drop on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a slow oven [300 degrees] about 45 minutes, or until the kisses are firm and dry.

PUFF KISSES

5 egg whites
2⅓ cups sugar
¾ teaspoon vanilla
1/16 teaspoon salt

Beat egg whites and salt together until the egg is stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually, beating until it is dissolved. Fill small, greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in a slow oven for 30 minutes.

CONDENSED MILK KISSES

1 1-3 cups [1 can] sweetened condensed milk
3 cups coconut
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon salt

Combine ingredients and drop by spoonsful on a buttered baking sheet. Bake at 375 degrees until lightly browned. Add ½ cup peanut butter before dropping cookies, to make peanut butter-coconut kisses.

NUT KISSES

[2 dozen]

2 egg whites
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla
1/16 teaspoon salt
¾ cup chopped nuts

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Add sugar, a little at a time. Fold in vanilla, salt, and nuts. Drop by teaspoonsful on ungreased paper and let stand until the surface is slightly dried. This will take several hours or overnight. Bake in a slow oven [250 degrees] until firm and slightly brown. Remove from paper with a spatula. If there is difficulty in removing them from the paper, dampen the underside of the paper and let stand several minutes. Store in a closely covered can.

Lingerie Styles Help Beautify Figure-Scape

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

PARIS.—Within the next few days the Paris openings will be announced and all the styles for spring and summer let out of the bag. It's high time that the foundations of your spring wardrobe were laid, because without good foundation garments you ain't gonna get nowhere near chic.

Lingerie styles are ready in Paris, and the new daytime undergarments are designed to keep out of the way of outside clothes, being cut very streamline and trim without folds or other impediments to sleek outlines of the figure. At the same time, the new thing in lingerie does a little body building on its own, helping in a modest way to accent any pretty curves a woman may have around her figure-scape, and to flatten out bumps and bulges. The latest daytime chemises and culotte-brassiere combines are built for bosom emphasis for the slim, to back up the bosomy dress styles.

• • •

Hip to armpit curves in the well built foundation garment are flattened and lengthened, and the back cut of these things maneuvers to flatten out posterior elevations in a nice way.

There really isn't any excuse for wearing shapeless or badly fitting lingerie any more, when so many fitted, well cut garments are around the emporiums of the civilized world. Your first duty to the new clothes you'll be getting this spring is to choose foundation garments that fit you and keep you in shape.

Of course, the corset is the first essential to any kind of well groomed look, and there are many types of excellent garments around. One thing that no woman can afford is to wear those spineless tubular girdles which have no flattening power over the stomach or at the back. They will ruin a Venus. Be sure to pick a corset that has a flattening portion over the stomach and the back—something which isn't elastic, please. You'll look about 90 per cent nicer in the matter of curved lines.

For both corset and lingerie, line is the first and greatest achievement. After being sure to have good lines in your foundation garments, you have the choice of enchanting materials and trimmings. I notice in the new French lingerie that lace is back in a big way as trimming, and that very soft and frilly effects are gotten with it. There are embroideries, hemstitching, tucks, and bandings all over the place as well.

Lingerie colors remain in the soft pastel ranges, with a new clear, water color freshness. There are day chemises and slips in vivid colors for them as likes them. Printed silk crêpe and printed chiffons are plenteous for chemises, culottes, slips, and nightgowns in charming flower patterns that are big and small. Flat, supple materials like triple voile, crêpe de chine, georgette, chiffon, satin and satin brocade stay on as the best and smartest lingerie materials.

• • •

Nightgown fashions are varied. There are still lots of those nightgown-evening gown models I've been writing about for years now. The real nightgowns have a style all their own. The newest have bosom emphasis and some sort of sleeve effects. Gowns with very low necklines and sheer peasant sleeves to the wrists are new and charming.

One Annek nightgown is of the new crop of bedtime beautifiers. This gown has the smart bosom emphasis done with tiny ruffles of pink valenciennes lace. It is made of pink triple voile and has small cape sleeves. Pieces give it a fitted line under the arms.

One of the new daytime chemises has an uplift bosom line and a flat panel front and back to aid your silhouette. It is made of pink flat crêpe and has a very low back décolletté. The bosom line is fitted by tiny tucks and replaces a separate brassiere.

Another model is a one piece that has the same bosom emphasis and fitted side and front and back lines. This step-in is made of ivory satin with a brassiere top of ecru lace, and hems of the lace finish the culotte.

A spring housecoat is made of turquoise blue cloky, very tailored and buttoned down the front. A wide sash of rose and violet plaid taffeta and a dicky of the plaid make attractive details.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

Two easy-on-the-budget pattern offerings for your spring wardrobe are the models illustrated today. They're flattering to mature figures and yet are smart enough for slender persons, too. One model is quite tailored, while the other is informally dressy.

Style No. 2693, sketched at the left, is a tailored, trim, coatlike dress that is ideal under a sporty topcoat on crisp spring days. It fits the silhouette beautifully by virtue of clever seaming and strategically placed groups of buttons. The broad shoulder effect is aided and abetted by the puffed sleeves. In the pocket, which takes possession of one of the neat points in the bodice, is a kerchief to match the ascot which trims the plain V neckline. If you like, have a built-up Chinese neckline, as shown in the small sketch at the lower left. Pastel or other light shades in woolen, plain, and printed crêpes and crisp cottons all make up well.

The dressier frock also has a V neckline, which recommends it especially to women with fulsome figures. Contrasting fabric lends a nice finish. The sleeves may be long or short. If the latter, they are allowed to flow full and comfortably. The waistline is pointed up into the bodice, and the nicely paneled skirt clings to the hipline while providing ample width at the hem.

Style No. 2693 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2009 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

No one who ever has visited in the Virginias can fail to appreciate the delicate charm and beauty of this quilt design, which depicts in so picturesque a manner the lovely, fragrant flower which is prominent in all Virginia gardens. The pattern is not difficult to applique, since the flowers are simple four petal affairs. Pink, green, and white are the preferred color combination, but any variation may be used successfully. The coverlet made from these blocks is composed entirely of applique squares set together with four inch bands between the blocks and surrounded by a nine inch border and a half inch green bias binding. Finished, the coverlet measures 90 by 109 inches and is suitable for use as a spread.

True Colonial House Ideal for Suburbs

By Louise Bargelt.

The inspiration for the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold H. Exo at 367 Ravine drive, Highland Park, Ill., comes from the gay and gallant days before our Revolution when colonial Williamsburg as capital of Virginia and one of America's largest centers of British culture and architectural beauty, was host to lively throngs of rogues and scholars, statesmen and adventurers. It is a faithful and authentic reproduction of Williamsburg architecture. The architect, William Alderman, A. I. A., 19 E. Pearson street, has skilfully related the traditions of 200 years ago to modern needs. The house is so authentic a reproduction of colonial Williamsburg design and treatment that it might be set down today on the Duke of Gloucester street, and yet in plan and equipment and construction it is suited to the rigors of northern winters and the demands of twentieth century living. Essentially a home of 1938, it possesses in spirit and detail the fine dignity and quiet of its classical colonial inheritance.

The walks which lead to the home are of brick, the steps of stone, and the slim iron railings have specially designed brass finials on the newels. The exterior walls are of beaded clapboard siding painted a rich colonial yellow with white trim and the roof is of natural color cedar shingles.

• • •

An arresting feature of the exterior is the massive Tidewater brick chimney in Flemish bond, with its upper portion standing free. This is an historic treatment to insure against the possibility of fire entering the attic spaces. The entrance lights, knocker, brass knob, and the 6 by 12 inch solid brass rim lock are all in the traditions of Williamsburg.

Within there is the same simplicity and elegance that the exterior shows, a generous use of fine woods, and a charm of color, faithfully copied from long ago. There is a central hall, a "Williamsburg" feature dating back from those days before air conditioning when a "passage generally existed through the middle of the house for an air draught in summer." The rooms on the first floor have high ceilings, 9 feet four inches, and the plan of the layout is open. The preponderance of wood trim fits naturally with the scale and proportions of the rooms.

In the hall and on the stairway the walls are painted an oyster white. The trim is pine, painted with that intriguing shade of muted mustard and gray green which is found in the Governor's palace at Williamsburg. The floors are of planked yellow pine.

In the living room walls are a pale yellow green or muted chartreuse, with chintz curtains at the windows in deep shades of purple and brown. The woodwork is of natural aged yellow pine and the fireplace is a replica of the one in the Market Square Tavern.

• • •

The dining room has walls of oyster white with a phantom tint of blue to blend with the painted lead blue woodwork. This lead blue shade is the same that is seen in the Apollo room of the Raleigh Tavern. A deep mulberry tone predominates in the chintz curtains at the windows, and this shade is repeated in the oriental rug. There are pewter sconces on the walls and the dining room set is of colonial maple. The dining room leads out to a hospitable open veranda with slim pillars.

Again in the library an old, rich colonial color has been captured for the woodwork. It is the Georgian mulberry shade. The walls are oyster white and lined with books.

More in the modern manner is the small powder room on the first floor, with ivory white walls and fixtures and gay cherry trim, and a black marbleized linoleum with turquoise blue border. Nor does the kitchen follow the traditions of the days when our country was young! It is ultra-modern in layout, equipment and decoration, with pale yellow walls and cases and cabinets painted blue. The counter tops are of linoleum except for one counter, which is of maple, and five feet long.

The master bedroom on the second floor is of unusual beauty with its walls of colonial blue and its woodwork painted in a harmonizing shade of blue. Here you see a large wood burning fireplace with brick herth and painted blue trim. On each side of this fireplace are pewter sconces with mirror backs. And for true luxurious comfort this bedroom has 26 lineal feet of continuous closet space!

The bath on the second floor has rich yellow walls and tub recess of blue tile. The linoleum on the floor is marbleized black and white, and the woodwork is a soft gray.

There are two other bedrooms on the second floor, with provision for a future maid's room, a vestibule, an extra bath, and an additional garage. The heat is forced warm air, gas fired, and the house is completely insulated with mineral fill type of bat insulation.

This new home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold H. Exo, 367 Ravine Drive, Highland Park, with its massive Tidewater chimney and exterior walls of beaded clapboard siding painted a rich colonial yellow, is a beautiful and authentic replica of Williamsburg architecture of two centuries ago. The architect is William N. Alderman, A. I. A., 19 East Pearson street, Chicago.

If your youngsters have failed to fulfill your fond hopes of a musical career and you have a small violin discarded in an attic or other musical instruments of any kind, won't you dust them off and pass them along to some other boy or girl? We have numerous appeals for instruments of all types and will be happy to place them for you. Here's a typical letter:

"Dear Miss Brown: In these times of many dire necessities it seems selfish to expect the more luxurious things in life, but we have a 10 year old daughter who loves music and wants to study the violin. We could give her lessons, but cannot afford to buy an instrument. If any reader has one in a junior size we would appreciate it very much and would be glad to call for it. M. S."

A worker in a south side district makes an appeal for Mrs. B., mother of two boys. After years of cruelty her husband finally deserted her and she is making a valiant effort to bring up the children properly and happily. Their entire income is $10 per week, which the mother earns. It provides necessities, but little more, and Mrs. B. would like very much to have a decent home for the boys. Most of her furniture is more than thirty years old and is quite beyond repair. She needs virtually everything, but especially a small of table and chairs, a bed, and a studio couch. Can you help her with surplus articles in your home?

Books Review Club Activity of Mrs. Bowen

By Betty Browning.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen returned Monday to the Woman's City club for the second time in three years to hear her friend and former associate, Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy, review the recently published "Speeches, Addresses and Letters of Louise de Koven Bowen."

Dipping into the two volumes, Mrs. Langworthy revealed Mrs. Bowen in turn as a daughter of pioneers, growing up in early Chicago—her mother was the third child born at Fort Dearborn—and as a pioneer herself in developing Chicago's civic consciousness.

"If you forget Mrs. Bowen's name, you'll still know Chicago and what has occurred through half a century of its history," was Mrs. Langworthy's summary of the papers, most of which had accumulated for years in a box into which Mrs. Bowen tossed them after finishing with them. Last summer Miss Mary E. Humphrey, state public welfare commissioner and another old friend of Mrs. Bowen, won her consent to assemble them in book form.

"Kicking and Screaming Through Fifty Years," Mrs. Langworthy disclosed, is the author's own title for the volumes.

• • •

"I know something about that kicking and screaming at first hand," Mrs. Langworthy remarked. "To quote from one of Mrs. Bowen's stories, we were like a team that was hitched to a wagon she got hold of for the use of the Juvenile Detention home. There were one big horse [an ex-fire horse] and one small horse—you all know which was which—but we both pulled together."

Mrs. Langworthy, a recent president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, was vice president of the Woman's City club during several of the ten years that Mrs. Bowen served as president. Mrs. Bowen now is honorary president.

"They make me feel like a person with a Bible in one hand and a bunch of firecrackers in the other, ready to go off at any moment," Mrs. Bowen herself commented on the volumes at the close of Mrs. Langworthy's review. "But it serves me right for coming." A small figure, she stood very erect for all her 79 years, speaking with the old humor and vigor that Mrs. Langworthy had described as making her "a wolf in sheep's clothing" to those who opposed the reforms she sought.

The table of contents of the two volumes reflects the two great interests of Mrs. Bowen, the welfare of children and of underprivileged women and girls. Whether she was working at Hull house, side by side with Jane Addams, or serving as official delegate to the Pan-American Congress of Women, heading the women's committee of the Council of National Defense during the world war, directing the woman's world fair, or playing a leading rôle in the United Charities, it always was these interests that came first.

Particularly through the Juvenile Protective association, which she headed for years, did Mrs. Bowen labor to better the conditions governing the lives of thousands of Chicago children. Federal child labor legislation, adequate housing, minimum wage laws, juvenile court and detention home, boys' court, woman's court, and court of domestic relations were among the measures that she was urging more than twenty-five years ago.

Supervised recreation to combat juvenile delinquency is but one of the many solutions, suggested years ago by Mrs. Bowen, that have a contemporary ring. She pointed out again and again that school plants could be made available for recreation centers after school hours.

Modern also was the directness of her attack on less desirable alternatives for recreation. In describing them she used no 19th century substitutes for unpleasant words. Characteristically effective was one speech in which she listed a number of abuses—repeating after each, "Nobody cared." Mrs. Bowen could join in the laughter, too, when one of these speeches was published under the title, "The Road to Destruction Made Easy in Chicago by Louise de Koven Bowen."

• • •

These volumes have their moments of charm and of poetry. There is a letter to the children of the Hawthorne school in Glencoe, replying to one they had written about her then recently published autobiography, in which she gives more of her own delightful reminiscences, and adds several others that her grandmother had told her about Chicago in Indian times. Another such letter is one to her granddaughter, Helen Blair.

Closing the volumes are two tributes to Jane Addams, one of them a speech Mrs. Bowen made on Memorial day in 1936 at the Bowen Country club, which Mrs. Bowen had given twenty-five years earlier in memory of her husband, as a recreation spot for Hull house children.

She said in part: "We are very glad to have so many of our neighbors here today to join with us in this memorial service. I always have thought that when you lost those you loved it was a great pity never to talk about them. . . . In the spring we naturally think of those who have gone, for there is in the spring the promise of resurrection. The earth throws off its mantle of snow. The little green things begin to grow and cover the soil. Then, suddenly, the veil is lifted and every twig and branch bursts into brilliant bloom. The songs of the birds, the rustle of the leaves, the shouts of the children, recall to us happy memories of other days, and I hope you all feel as I devoutly do, that those who have gone are with us now, although unseen, and that when our lives are ended and our work is done we shall meet them face to face and see 'those angel faces smile which we have loved long since and lost a while.'"

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle.

The oily skinned woman doesn't predominate, but she has her beauty problems, too. Many of them are solved by the use of a mask that clarifies, stimulates and refines coarse skin inclined to blackheads.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

There is no denying the fact that dry skin problems constitute the greater number of the wails that reach a beauty editor's ears. But sometimes we need a sharp reminder that there ARE such things as oily skins and that, in their own fashion, they're as much of a beauty difficulty as skins totally lacking in the precious oil that means youth and softness.

Why some have oily and some dry skin, with very few whose complexions can comfortably be described as normal, we can't be very certain. Eating habits have a good bit to do with it, we suspect, and of course climate is an important factor.

It's vitally necessary to keep oily skin immaculately clean to lessen the peril of blackheads and pimples. And to control the overflow of oil one must follow the rules of hygiene and, in addition, resort to some external aids.

The dull skin, inclined to oiliness and blackheads, usually reacts very well to a good mask that is cleansing and stimulating. One such mask, which has been particularly effective, does what it should do but is not harsh. The use of abrasives isn't a good idea.

This mask is in cream form, although not as greasy as cream usually is. It's white, with a completely pleasant odor and is to be used after cleansing. It is spread on the skin in a smooth layer and left on for half an hour or longer. It's easily removed with a washcloth and warm water. If it is used before going out, the oily skinned woman should follow treatment with a light foundation.

This cream, or pore mask, is remarkable in restoring clarity and that indefinable quality of radiance to the skin inclined to be coarse pored and oily. It is not to be used by the dry skinned. Some women find that the skin is kept in good condition if the mask is used once a week. Others use it two or three times as a home treatment.

Because it tones the skin so effectively it lessens the danger of blackheads. It controls the oil flow most efficiently, but gently, too.

It's a Help to Me, Says—

Mrs. M. J. Ede, 804 East Lincoln avenue, Belvidere: I save every scrap of soap and put these scraps into two sugar bags, one for use in kitchen for my dishes and one in the bath. This is quite a saving as every particle of soap oozed out of the bags, and a help, too, where one has to use hard water.

George T., Chicago: I have found a way to keep the family stepladder from sinking down in the soft ground of early spring when storm windows must come down and even the wife takes to the outdoors and to the stepladder for small jobs. I nail rubber shoes to each of the rear ladder legs and this also keeps the ladder from "traveling" when the ground is hard.

Mrs. Clara Smith, Chicago: My son made me some table tops of light wood that are just the size of my card tables. When I entertain at cards I set these portable tops with dishes in the kitchen and then carry them into the card room. They are step savers.

* *

Dorothy May, Springfield: I find I can keep my bathtub free from "rims" or stains by a paste made by mixing peroxide and cream of tarter. I apply this and let it remain about fifteen minutes—and then remove.

* *

T. B. Henderson, New York City: To rid flower vases of unsightly stains I made a solution of tea leaves and vinegar.

Maisie T. B., Michigan City, Ind.: I keep my brooms in tougher shape and make them last longer by dipping them into boiling hot soap suds at least once a week.

Mother of Four Gives Results of Child Study

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

Letters from mothers don't appear nearly so often in this column as I mean them to. I have one before me today that bears printing just as it stands.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: Several times I have started to write you for advice on one thing and another, but somehow I have usually cleared up the matter. Now I am writing, not for advice, but just some comments on the 'toddlers' about which so many mothers write you.

"It probably would not be much encouragement to tell these mothers that the little ones who are 'into everything' are at their easiest age, and that when they are older they are harder to manage. I have four, from 2½ to 13, and if I had to take care of a strange child would prefer one of the little ones.

"When my oldest girl was small I was a strict mother, and following my mother's advice, slapped her hands for everything. It didn't help, but I didn't want her spoiled. With the others I was more lenient, but they were not spoiled. Only one thing is necessary in this respect: they must be made to understand from the time they are babies that you mean what you say.

"Spankings for the little ones, as you have often pointed out, are worse than useless and, as most mothers find, accomplish nothing beyond the immediate result. Explaining and telling little stories are usually more effective.

"And now, one point on which I must violently disagree with you, Mrs. Bevans. When you tell a harassed mother that baby, in trailing her all over the house, and crying for her attention is 'a sociable little creature,' you probably mean only that he should not be shut out of the life of the house. But some mothers have this all day long, and you would pity a tired, overworked mother with one or two babies climbing all over her every time she sat down, getting under the ironing board, or the stove, and most of the time in danger of injury.

"Wouldn't it be better to tell these mothers to put the baby in a play pen, or the toddler on a porch or in a room by himself, or even a fenced-in corner of the kitchen, but make him stay by himself an hour or two, morning and afternoon? Enough time would be left for 'mothering,' and he would be more apt to have mother's undivided attention. Just as the tiny baby is left alone to kick and play for a short time each day, the older baby needs to learn to play alone.

"'Don't touch.' Rare the mother who has not said that. [I did with my first child.] The others I allowed to touch everything, under supervision, even straight pins. 'Put this pin in the box for mother,' and much of the mystery is gone.

"It also helps to pick the little one up, and carry him about the room, allowing him to see, at the proper height, the 'pretties,' lamps, pictures, and so forth. A few minutes at a certain time each day is a treat to be looked forward to.

"Thanks for your column. I never miss it."

I've expressed myself similarly in so many of these points that I hardly need to comment, except about one thing.

The point on which this mother "violently disagrees" with me is one on which she has misunderstood me. Being no stranger to the housewife-mother game, I know what it's all about. Of course no child should be constantly climbing on his mother and entertained by her. Of course every child should learn to be alone and play alone in a safe spot.

Campus Modes by a Co-Ed

In grandmother's time the spring cure for that "low" feeling and the seasonal doldrums was a nauseating dose of sulphur and molasses. The modern method of bolstering the ego and inflating the spirits is a new hat or, better yet, a spirited frock. Not long ago the spring fever, which isn't as romantic as the poets would have us think, asasiled me, so I took time out from my studies to design this demure dress. What I needed were swing, dash and plenty of swish, so I picked out a crisp taffeta, dark blue with pink blossoms all over it. I bought a "garden bouquet" hat to go with it, and some blue gloves with pink trimming. What this combination did for my morale goes without saying. I recommend the tonic to you, too.

The dress has a scalloped or square neckline, as you choose. The puffed sleeves are short. Below the tightly fitted bodice is a snug waistline which may be left with scalloped lines or have a tight self-fabric portion that is laced. The skirt, paneled for swishy fulness, is as short as fashion deems wise.

I'm mad about this dress and think you will be, too. If you don't care particularly for taffeta, although it's tops for spring, select some pastel shade or a print in crêpe.

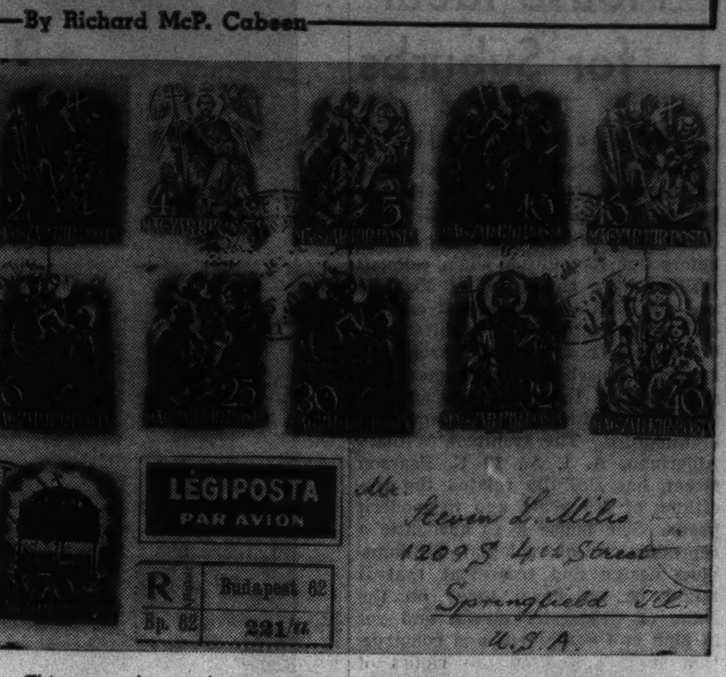
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen



This cover bears the set of stamps issued to commemorate the 900th anniversary of the death of St. Stephen, first king of Hungary. The issue is described in an adjoining column. The cover was loaned by Steven L. Milis of Springfield.

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The Columbian exposition and its accompanying series of stamps celebrated the 400th anniversary of the discovery of this continent by Columbus. That is about as far back as history reaches in the western hemisphere. Our stamps issued to celebrate the colonization of various regions indicate that there is little worth mentioning in the period before 1600.

At times the authority for bigger and better stamps has found it expedient to commemorate events which took place within the last twenty years. Contrast this with the issue which has recently been placed on sale in Hungary to commemorate the 900th anniversary of the death of St. Stephen, first king of that nation.

The Hungarian monarchy was founded by Arpad, a Magyar chieftain, who entered the region which is now Hungary by crossing the Carpathian mountains from the east. The numerous principalities of the Slavonic tribes were won over by gifts or subjected by force of arms and Arpad settled on the Island of Tsepel in the Danube river as the seat of the Hungarian government.

In 907 A. D. Arpad died and was succeeded by his son, Zoltan, who in turn bequeathed his power to his son, Geza. Geza died in 997 A. D., and his place was filled by his son, Stephen, who had been raised as a Christian. After becoming duke of Hungary, Stephen married Gisela, a Bavarian princess.

After suppressing an insurrection in 988 A. D. Stephen established the monarchy and asked the church of Rome to confirm his act. Pope Sylvester II. gave his approval to Astrik, Stephen's messenger, and sent him a consecrated crown, which forms the upper part of the Sacra Corona, so famous in Hungarian history. The lower part of the crown was a gift from the emperor of Byzantium nearly a century later. Stephen died in 1038 and was canonized in 1083.

The designs of the various stamps show events connected with the reign of Stephen. The 1f and 10f values show the Abbot Astrik receiving the crown from Pope Sylvester II. The 2f and 16f show Stephen as the builder of churches, the 4f and 20f show Stephen enthroned, the 5f and 25f depict St. Gellert teaching St. Emeric in the presence of Stephen, his father, the 6f and 30f show St. Stephen offering the crown to the Virgin Mary, the 32f and 50f bear a portrait of Stephen wearing the consecrated crown, the 40f gives a likeness of the Virgin Mary, patroness of Hungary, and the 70f shows a view of the Sacra Corona, or holy crown.

It will be noticed that the crown on the 32f stamp differs from that on the 70f, for the latter has the base which was added. It will be noticed, also, that the cross at the top of the crown is erect in all but the 70f design, and, according to tradition, this was accidentally bent when the crown was secreted from Ghengis Khan and his Tartar hordes.

The crown is kept in a sealed casket and vigilantly guarded. No one is ever allowed to see it, regardless of his importance, except when a coronation ceremony is to take place. The last time it was taken from its resting place was in 1916 for the coronation of Emperor Charles I. of Austria, as king of Hungary.

Stamp Notes.

A new issue of the Emco Monthly Journal, house organ of the Marks Stamp Company, Ltd., Toronto 2, Canada, has been released containing an illustrated description of the 2c United States stamp, Scott's No. 635, and special offerings, Mid-British Africa, used British colonials, German airpost stamps and new arrivals. A sample copy will be sent to interested collectors upon receipt of properly prepaid requests.

A national exhibition of postage stamps will be held in the town hall in Aarau, Switzerland, from Sept. 17 to 28, 1938. This will be organized by the Philatelic Society of Aarau and will be sponsored by the Union of Swiss Philatelic Clubs. The last Swiss exhibition was the successful show held in Zurich in 1934. The federal department of posts and telegraphs has agreed to issue a special miniature sheet containing a block of stamps to be on sale only during the exhibition. This will be priced at Frs. 1.50, and orders may be placed with the committee of organization. Entries for exhibition must be registered before May 31, 1938.

According to recent reports, the new Zeppelin will be ready for trial flights late in April and will make its first trans-Atlantic crossing in May.

A new printing of the 15 cent brown, map type, United States air mail stamp has been made. It is understood that this is to take care of the postage on minimum letters to the Canal Zone. It is possible that the color may enable specialists to distinguish the new printing from the supplies printed in former years.

William J. Schimpf, 150 East 18th street, Brooklyn, N. Y., has issued a priced check list of miniature sheets which will be sent to interested collectors upon request.

The eighth edition of the United States Specialized Catalog of First Day Covers, edited by Leo August, 128 Market street, Newark, N. J., is ready for distribution. Covers are listed in groups, as air mail, commemorative, regular, coils, etc., and many special cancelations are illustrated. The price is 25 cents.

Cachets and Covers.

David Bushnell chapter, No. 48, will sponsor a cachet commemorating the establishment of the United States navy department on April 30, 1938, with cancelations from three ships. Send 6¾ size envelopes, self-addressed and stamped and ready to go, with 1 cent forwarding charge for each cover to Albert G. Dudley, P. O. box 136, West Haven, Conn., before April 15, 1938.

Second Assistant Postmaster General Harllee Branch has announced that the postoffice department will celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the inauguration of regular air mail service by observing the first National Air Mail week from May 15 to May 21, 1938. An official cachet will be authorized at Kitty Hawk, N. C., the birthplace of aviation, to honor the Wright brothers. Every other postoffice in the United States, of which there are more than 45,000, will be authorized to arrange for its own cachet. Thousands of privately licensed pilots will be given the opportunity of becoming air mail pilots for a day to fly the mail from interior offices to air mail stop points.

On March 21, 1938, an unusual cachet will be sponsored from St. Benedict, La., to honor St. Benedict, founder of the Benedictine order, whose feast day is celebrated on that date. The cachet will duplicate the St. Benedict stamp of Italy's [Scott's No. A100] in color. Early covers will receive a folder outlining the life of this priest, if left unsealed. Send covers stamped and addressed, and fully prepaid, to Ernest O. Saltmarsh, St. Bernard college, St. Bernard, Ala. Commemoratives appreciated.

Flowered Silk Important in Paris Daytime Frock

No. 5232—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la, are splashed all over most of the smart afternoon frocks seen in the French capital these days. Even the most tailored of silk numbers are taking to floral motifs, and one of the prettiest yet is the model we have adapted for this pattern, No. 5232. The original is a frightfully expensive and exclusive dress which one of Paris' most charming women wore at a tea recently. Her frock was of silk with a black background, and all over the material were red rhododendrons and some obscure but fascinating flowers in pencil blue. Sprinkled here and there were sprigs of bright green leaves.

The lines of the frock are particularly youthful. The paneling is sheer magic, achieving a broad line for the shoulder, a diminutive waistline and slim hips, and wide flare for the skirt. The puffed sleeves are short and the contrasting collar is brief but trim. A short slide fastener allows the wearer just enough room to get her head through the neckline.

Chic Crocheted Jacket Is Fastened with Tailored Ties

By Ellen Bruce.

Jackets and spring are synonymous, and they may be long and molded, short and boxy, or of the bolero type. Navy blue, wheat, black, and soft rose are the favorite colors.

The crocheted jacket illustrated today is one of the unusual types which use ties instead of buttons for fastening. The long shoulder is another new note which is due for popularity because it is extremely comfortable, and flatters every type of figure. The jacket is not difficult to crochet once a sample of the stitch has been made and the worker has become familiar with the pattern. The new fine tweed wools, crêpe of the chalk finish variety, dull surfaced linen and mercerized crochet cotton are suitable. The heavier yarns do not prove as effective as do the finer materials. This is the kind of a jacket which may be worn with a wool fabric skirt or one of knife plaited crêpe.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the jacket with the long shoulder, illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Etiquet Editor Cites Various Dining Topics

Should members of the bride-to-be's family ever give a bridal shower? This point and many others are discussed in the booklet, "The Bridal Shower," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

It can't be that people suddenly are eating more frequently than they used to do, or even eating more, but they do seem to be a little more conscious of how they are eating, judging by the increase in questions on table manners. It's a good sign.

For instance, Miss C. B. wants to know the accepted way of manipulating a wedge of lemon when it is served with fish, and when the individual dining wants to season her fish with a few drops of the tangy juice.

• • •

It's simple, really. Just grasp the wedge of lemon firmly between the thumb and fingers and apply sufficient pressure to release as much juice as you desire. If there seems to be any danger of a drop of the lemon juice trying to be a rugged individualist and go flying off in the opposite direction, thereby spotting your neighbor's dress or bleaching her eyebrow, better take the precaution of shielding with the left hand while you control the lemon wedge with the other. Cooks and hostesses might well note that when they serve fish accompanied with lemon, unless the lemon is just a decorative garnish, a long wedge is by far much easier to handle than a thin slice cut crosswise.

• • •

Another question based on the dining room scene, from Mrs. D. K. She asks the correct order of removing the soiled dishes from the table before serving the dessert course for a simple family dinner.

When the main course of the dinner has been completed, the serving dishes, such as platters and vegetable dishes, are removed first. Then each individual cover is cleared from the left of the individual, including unused silver. Only the water glass is allowed to remain. Salt and pepper shakers are the last to go. And, before the dessert is served, the water glasses should be refilled if necessary, and any crums on the table brushed off.

Mrs. T. B. inquires: "Is the same silverware used to eat both a fruit cocktail and a fish cocktail?"

No, Mrs. B. A spoon is the correct implement for a fruit cocktail, and a tiny cocktail fork for oyster, shrimp or crabmeat cocktail.

Contract According to Culbertson

Letter Throws Light on Question of Point-Scoring

By Ely Culbertson.
[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

The following letter recently received by me throws considerable light on a question that interests all bridge players who habitually indulge in both rubber bridge and match-point play:

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: What is the difference between total-point and match-point play is the question most often asked of the teacher, and it is usually difficult to explain. A sample hand actually showing the difference is worth fifteen minutes of explaining.

"Here is an example from the recent match between the teams of twelve representing [though not officially, of course] the cities of New York and Philadelphia:

NORTH
♠ Q 10 6 5
♥ A K 8 4 3
♦ 6

WEST
♠ K 8 7
♥ J 6 2
♦ 10 5 2
♣ J 10 9 3

EAST
♠ 9 2
♥ 10 7 5
♦ A K 9 3
♣ K Q 4 2

SOUTH
♥ Q 9
♦ Q J 8 7 4
♣ 7 6

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

"A contract of four spades by South was reached at every one of the six tables. The opening lead in every case was the jack of clubs. The trick was taken by the ace and the spade finessed. It lost and the hand now loses one spade, one club, and one diamond, making the contract. This was the absolutely safe way to make game, and was played by Schenken, Von Zedtwitz, and Sam Fry of New York, and by Goren, Crawford, and Bucks of Philadelphia, card for card in exactly the same manner. Total points was the object of the game and every player played primarily for the safety of the contract.

"If the hand had occurred at match-point play, I am sure that more than half the declarers would have taken the first trick with the ace of clubs, and then played three rounds of hearts, discarding the losing club from the South hand. The hand now nets five odd, a top or tie for top with match-point scoring, the effort justified by the law of averages, since safety of the contract is not of sole importance, a fine score on the board being of primary interest. Played in this manner, the hand is defeated if West holds only two hearts instead of three, and at total-point scoring they dare not take that chance.

"The next shows to what extremes match-point play will go. At a large club championship, match-point scoring, the following appeared:

NORTH
♠ A Q J 10
♥ J
♦ K 9 8 4
♣ A J 6 4

♠ 4
♥ K Q 10 9 7 6 4
♦ 10 2
♣ 10 3 2

EAST
♠ K 9 7 5 3 2
♥ 3 2
♦ J
♣ Q 8 7 5

SOUTH
♠ 8 6
♥ A 8 5
♦ A Q 7 6 5 3
♣ K 9

West, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

"Six diamonds was the contract at practically all tables. West opened the singleton spade. The contract is now ice cold for six odd, 920 plus points, yet so many declarers decided to try for an extra trick through the spade finesse, with resulting defeat through a spade return and ruff, that 'down one,' a minus score on the board, was an average score. In this case, total points did not count, the safety of the contract seemed to have no appeal, the primary object being a top score by making seven. An unwaranted risk did not produce a bad score on the board.

"Yours very truly,
"C. P. R., Bryn Mawr, Pa."

• • •

My correspondent's remarks about the first hand he quoted are well taken. Playing a contract of four spades in a total-point game, declarer's sole object should be to insure his contract. Thus, to attempt to discard on dummy's heart suit before getting out the adverse trumps would be arrant folly. If the same hand, however, were played at match-points it would undoubtedly be tempting to try for the overtrick, by discarding a club before trying out the spade finesse.

The second hand is not as happy an example, in my opinion. Even at match-point play I cannot agree that risking a slam contract makes sense, particularly when declarer can avoid the risk without abandoning all chances for the precious extra trick.

In my correspondent's second hand it will be noted that the spade finesse at the first trick is not the only hope for thirteen tricks. If it were there would be much to be said for the finesse, since declarer might well decide that his contract of six diamonds probably would be duplicated at many other tables around the room. The bidding has not been stated and, hence, I can only guess as to whether or not East and West entered the auction. If East ever bid his spades [which he probably did not do] the finesse would, of course, become a horrible risk. If East did not bid it is possible that West bid his long heart suit. Even in that case I would not care for the spade finesse, since such a heart bid on West's part, with all the important honors in the other three suits in declarer's sight, would suggest a long heart suit. This in turn would make me fear a singleton spade.

Apropos of my remark to the effect that I would not necessarily abandon hope for an extra trick merely by refusing the spade finesse, I must point out that normal play, after going up with the spade ace at the first trick, would have had a beautiful result. At the second trick declarer would lead to the heart ace and then ruff a heart. He would reënter his hand with the diamond ace and ruff his last heart with the diamond king, the trump break already having been revealed so that declarer could count on drawing the one outstanding trump, after the last heart ruff, with the diamond queen. Four more trump leads, upon which dummy should discard the Q-J-10 of spades and the four of clubs, would make East wish he had never been born. Coming down to three cards, declarer would hold the spade eight and king-nine of clubs. West would be a broken reed—his holding would not matter. Dummy would have left the A-J-6 of clubs. East would be called upon to discard from the following four cards: the spade king and the Q-8-7 of clubs. If he let go the spade king, declarer's spade eight would be perfectly good; if he let go a club, declarer would merely lay down the club king, then lead to the ace, since, of course, he could not afford to finesse at this point. The club queen would drop and the club jack would produce the sought after thirteenth trick.

Another letter:

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: We have in our bridge club a member with a complex for calling one, two, or three no trump. In addition he always contrives to play the hand himself. The result is that his partner is simply an automatic machine for holding the cards and bidding, but never playing. We have tried outbidding the 'complex' with suit calls and going down a few hundred every call. The 'complex' paid up cheerfully, but his partner had to pay also, so we had to abandon that plan. We have now to confess that we are beaten and as a last resort place the problem before you. If you can provide us with a solution then you will have earned the gratitude of every player in the club. The one solution we do not care to put in force is ostracism of the offending member because with the exception of his infernal bridge complex he is one of the most popular men in our club.

"County Clare, Ireland."

Well, now, this is a tough one! Also, I am afraid that it is slightly outside my usual province. Since the other players do not wish to ostracize this "bid hog," I have only one other suggestion to make, namely, that they should "steal his thunder" by getting there first! It is probably not so much the complex's desire to play every hand at no trump as it is to become declarer. Hence, if his partner opens the bidding each time with a no trump and thereafter outbids any suit into which he takes out, I venture to say that his cure will be rapid and complete. Of course there will be some terrible tragedies before that happy day arrives!

West opens the heart king. How must declarer play to insure his contract?

ANSWER—Declarer can insure his contract by failing to win the opening lead, or by winning and immediately returning his remaining heart. If he fails to make either of these plays he is doomed. If he wins the opening lead and plays the spade queen, East wins and returns his singleton diamond. Then, when East takes his second spade trick, he returns a heart and gets a diamond ruff. With either of the plays recommended, communication between East and West is destroyed.

In the very cold weather you go along unaware that you have a pair of feet with great trouble-making potentialities. But come a suggestion of spring in the air and "potentiality" isn't the word for what your feet bring—in the way of troubles.

There's this joyful note in the 1938 spring calendar. The foot ailments have been reduced appreciably by the popular lower-heeled shoe worn by smartest women. One such recently disclosed that for the first time in years she knows what it means to face a spring without terror, all on account of the better shoes she's wearing. Another thing about women is that they are showing real intelligence about shoe fittings. They ask for a correct fitting, and back the shoes go if they don't carry out that promise. Also, a number of women who formerly wouldn't have been found dead in corrective shoes are being found pretty alive in them, and they are the first to admit the liveliness of feet comfortably shod. One amusing revelation comes to mind. A friend who suffered agonies adopted a pair of shoes orthopedically correct, and not competitive with Cinderella's little numbers, as you may guess.

They really weren't bad to look at, even though not so small appearing as shoes worn formerly. She phoned an acquaintance one day to report that her heels were at 42d street and her toes at 43d, but she had just done four miles on foot. In all seriousness, before this happened the woman had been threatened with a wheelchair existence because of those same feet. So being able to do four miles was the equivalent of the most successful sort of rejuvenation operation. In cold fact, the shoes she was in, at the moment of reporting their city block length, were size seven, which these days is considered genteel enough for any one built on five feet six or seven proportions. But it is in the intelligent acceptance of foot comfort over too genteel size and shape of shoe in which we see a fine advance. Then it is easy for woman's pride to accept the orthopedic type of shoe when necessary because so many smartly attired women today are wearing the wider-toed, lower-heeled shoe anyway.

But, goodness knows, no woman who ever has had foot trouble need be told about shoes causing troubles. If she hasn't the sense on her own to put herself and feet into more comfortable "brogues" no chatter of mine ever will urge her on. My object is merely to call attention to the fact that, today, your feet would have to be pretty bad to be noticed for their common sense shoes and, in this event, they'd look just the same in any kind of shoe. So why suffer? It isn't the size that matters a bit today, but what you can do in your shoes, how you can get places in them and how impress people with the easy, young lilt to the feet in motion.

There's this to remember in connection with spring shoeing, that if you do act and choose sensibly, you'll be better able to show those tootsies of yours proudly when beach exposure time comes around. Whether you believe in toe nail tinting or not, it does make women more conscious of their feet.

• • •

However, there's another angle of foot comfort to be touched on. It's in the matter of foot cleanliness. Of course, self-respecting women take a bath every day, so when you say cleanliness, it irritates. But most of us bathe in as quick time as possible, which isn't quite enough. Feet enclosed in shoes throughout the day become bathed in perspiration. Soil sifts in through shoe openings. This combination can become not only physically unpleasant but downright embarrassing. Feet must be scrubbed thoroughly once a day at least, and by scrubbing is meant SCRUBBING. Besides this, they should be washed when they're tired, hot or swollen. After shopping, housecleaning or standing around in shop or office, there's nothing more refreshing than a warm, sudsy foot bath and a change to clean hose. It is startling to learn that there still are many women who feel they can get a second wear and more out of an already worn pair of stockings. It doesn't sound reasonable, when a pair just taken off can be rinsed out in the wash basin in less time than it takes to tell it.

After the daily bath, the feet require special drying between the toes, a duty often overlooked. The cuticle of the nail should be pressed back with a towel and the surface between the nails cleaned with an orange wood stick. Light rubbing with an emery board or pumice stone will help keep callouses down. Several times recently there have been reported to me first hand success stories about eliminating callous trouble, at the heel as well as on the soles of the feet, by massaging cold cream into the skin nightly. Ordinarily you don't keep it on overnight, but if there is exaggerated trouble you'll find the cream left on under protective bed socks will minimize ills appreciably.

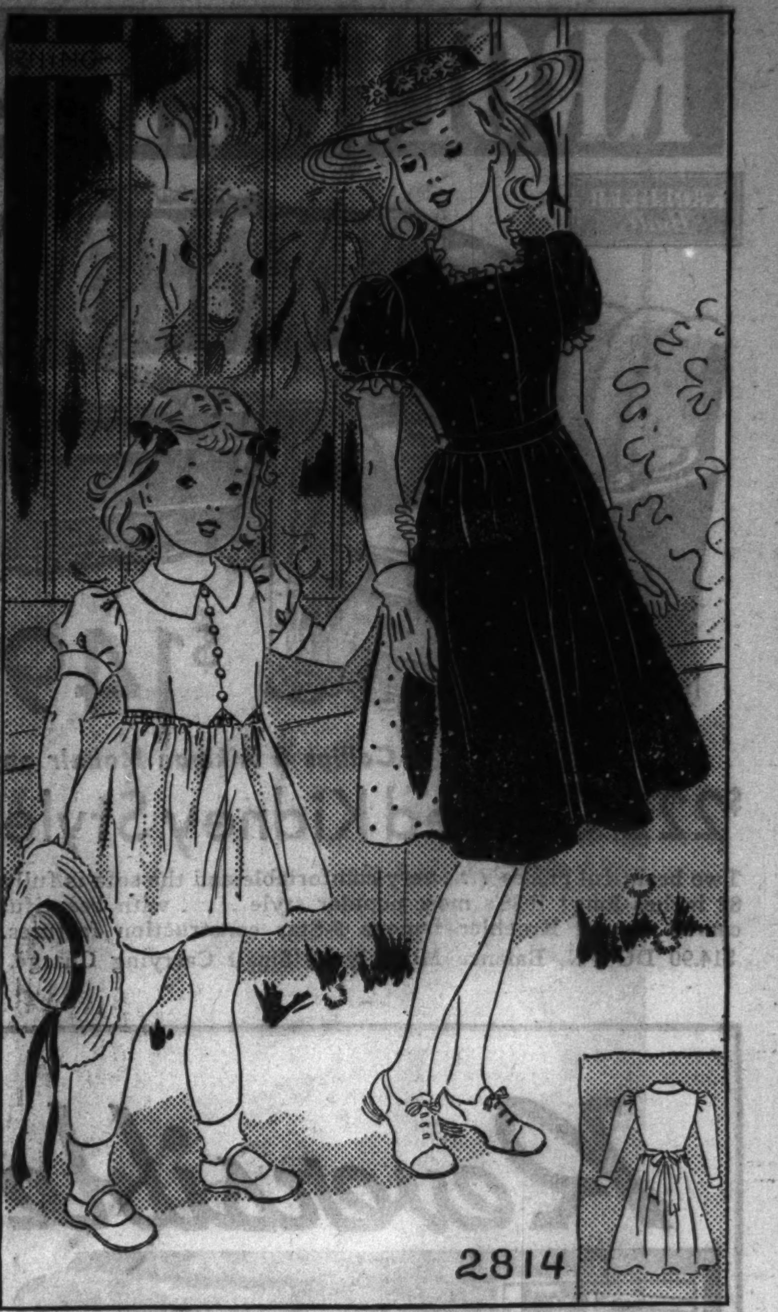
Clotilde Children's Fashions



Spring fashion is sponsoring demure lines for adults, so why not for youngsters? Easter is only a little more than a month away, and daughter is certain to want a new frock for Sunday school that day. We think she will adore the model illustrated today and it will serve well for parties all spring and next fall, too. The neckline is square, the sleeves puffed, the bodice snug and trimmed with buttons, the waistline trim, and the skirt shirred to within an inch of its life. Taffeta and silks with "body" are ideal choices, and some of the pretty cottons make up well, too. We recommend a finish of ruffling or lace for the neckline and sleeves.

If daughter is still in the little girl stage, you might make the neckline high and round and trim it with a simple collar. Cuffs to match may be used on the puffed sleeves.

Below: Al Shean appears as an old monk in "Father Malachy's Miracle," a New York hit which will start a Chicago engagement in the Harris theater tomorrow night. He is now a serious actor, but his past has been comic—especially in the song, "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean."
[Ben Pinchot Photo.]

Above: Little girls must grow up—and that's just what Shirley Temple's doing. We ask you to note the new coiffure, replacing the riotous curls of yesterday. Here we have Shirley and Gloria Stuart as they appear in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." (Roosevelt.)

Right: Here is "Little Caesar" as he appears in a comedy racketeer role. In "A Slight Case of Murder," now at the Oriental, Edward G. Robinson portrays a beer baron of prohibition days who essays to travel the straight and narrow.

Above: Dick Purcell looks rather bored with it all, doesn't he? And Jean Dale has the appearance of a little woman who knows she's not wanted, but means to stick around just—the—same. Scene's from "Missing Witness." (State-Lake.)

Right: An Alice Brady far removed from the flittery, jittery heroines she so often portrays meets your eye this morning. It's Alice as Mrs. O'Leary in "In Old Chicago." And as Mrs. O'Leary she gives a splendid characterization!

"Malachy" Asks Playgoers to Believe in Miracles

By Charles Collins

Like Shakespeare's "Julius Cæsar" in Fascist uniforms and American overcoats, recently revealed on the Chicago stage, the new play of the current week is a marked departure from the standard conduct of the drama. It bears the title of "Father Malachy's Miracle," and it deals with certain miraculous happenings, under religious auspices, in modern Edinburgh, where mystic footnotes to reality have never been in fashion. The levitation of a dance hall with all its frivolous and possibly sinful occupants to a barren island twenty miles away (and back again!) by the power of prayer is hardly in accord with the traditions of Scottish life and character.

This is a folk-play in type, although it is written with the modern touch. Its supernaturalism and its close study of religious character do not prevent it from following the trend of comedy. It is a fantasy, with touches of irony, in a modern environment, just as "Julius Cæsar" is a poetic tragedy in ready-made clothes of the humdrum present. The effect of quaintness and of genial eccentricity in humor appears to have been the author's intention, if impressions from the printed text can be depended on for an estimate of the play before it has communicated its mood across the footlights. At any rate, it offers an element of strangeness and new experience to theatergoers.

"Father Malachy's Miracle" recently ended a run of several months in New York, and comes to Chicago tomorrow night, at the Harris theater, with its original cast. The title rôle is acted by a stage veteran who never dreamed that in his forty-eighth year on the American stage he would score the greatest success of his career as an old Dominican monk who is capable of whisking dance halls hither and thither through the air by the power of his faith in the Lord. His theatrical past has been devoted to much more frivolous and worldly exploits—such as singing the ditty about "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" which had a national vogue fifteen years ago.

Yes, this is the same Mr. Shean who was Mr. Gallagher's comic and lyric partner in the song that had a longer life than "The Music Goes Round and Around" as a staple of playgoing diversion. He formed a vaudeville partnership with the lively and egregious Gallagher in 1920, and shortly thereafter they began to rattle off the more or less nonsensical lines of this biographical ballad, the fame of which finally lifted them to the exalted rank of stars in the "Ziegfeld Follies," edition of 1923. Their popularity at this period caused the Fox Film company to engage them for the rôles of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson in a movie, but this production was frustrated by Gallagher's illness, which caused his death in 1929.

Shean's Period in Chicago Musical Comedy.

Shean's infancy and early childhood were spent in Germany, where his father, Herman Schoenberg, wandered from village to village giving exhibitions of "magic" in the yards of rural taverns. The family came to the United States when Al was 10 years old, and after some years as an apprentice in tailor shops in New York he started his career as an entertainer in the Gotham City quartet. Minor vaudeville engagements followed; then he bcame a member of the Manhattan Comedy Four, which was a standard act on the major vaudeville circuits for ten years.

In the season of 1904-'05 he contributed to Chicago's theatrical lore as leading comedian in "The Isle of Bong-Bong," a musical comedy which had a long run in the La Salle theater, of

Katharine Dayton Selects Dated Model for Second Play

STAR OF SHOW AT THE RIALTO

Hinda Wausau brings her "Hindu Belles" entertainment to the Rialto theater. She appeared in the "Casa Manana" production at the Texas Centennial exposition, and also at Chicago's Century of Progress.

Effort Based on Romance in Mythical Land

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—It was to be expected that Katharine Dayton would try a second play, following the success of "First Lady," which she wrote with George Kaufman. Not because she naturally would be swayed by a personal ambition to capitalize that success, but because the swarm of advisers attracted by "First Lady" would pester her until she did.

Reasonable, too, that in her hurry to please her advisers Miss Dayton should select a dated model for her second effort. This is a mythical kingdom romance on the "Prisoner of Zenda"—"Beverley of Graustark" theme, with a dictator substituted for a king to give it timeliness.

The result is a musical comedy story called "Save Me the Waltz," which Max Gordon last week produced expensively at the Martin Beck theater. It is a good musical comedy story, but it is not a good comedy. And so, Katharine Dayton is probably a little depressed and reluctant to consider the writing of a third play.

Peasants Forbidden to Drink Chocolate.

In Jadlovia Jon Brasch, dictator, has taken over the government, sent the royal family to the country, put the army in dull gray uniforms, forbidden the peasants to drink chocolate because it is fattening, and forbidden composers to write anything but martial music because the waltz, for example, is trivial and emotionally debilitating.

Jon needs a loan to carry out his three-year-plan. He can get it from his neighbor on the right if he can arrange a marriage between the Princess Claudine of Jadlovia and Prince George of Holstein-Gastnau. Jon visits the palace, to which the former royal family of Jadlovia has been retired, to issue his order to Princess Claudine, and there finds her to be a young woman of beauty, charm, and force of character.

Does the dictator fall desperately in love with the princess? He does. Is he completely shorn of his faked imperiousness, not to mention his bark, his bite, his demagogy, and his sanity? He is. And do the dictator and the princess marry, while the royal family is being restored to the throne? They do.

Miss Dayton Adds Touches of Satire.

Miss Dayton, having worked to some advantage with a master satirist on her first play, adds a touch or two of satire of her own to this one. Her king, for example, is a homely agriculturalist at heart, more interested in milch cows than thrones. Her queen is a royal lady who has invented a new beauty treatment that keeps her young in the hearts of her adoring people, and returns her to the throne the first chance she has of appearing before the people on the balcony of the palace dressed in black velvet, with a touch of white in her veil and a trace of tears in her voice. Her dictator is a stout fella, who, impatiently in love, stomps in from the balcony, declaring savagely: "The moon is late!"

Her lines include the inquiry: "Do tell us about America; is it near Hollywood?" and "Do you know a fellow named Sears-Roebuck? He wrote a book."

It is a nice cast and a nice production. But that is the best to be said for it. John Emory is the dictator, and Talullah Bankhead eyed him approvingly, as a wife should, opening night.

Jane Wyatt is back from the coast to play the princess. Mady Christians is quite royal as the queen, Leo Carroll amusing as the king. Laura Hope eyes, is an expanding figure.

Hears Lightly Amusing Opera.

There was an interesting first night at the opera this week. Gian-Carlo Menotti's one act piece, "Amelia Goes to the Ball," was given a first production at the Metropolitan. It had been heard once before last April, when the Curtis Institute of Music of Philadelphia, Menotti's sponsor, brought it over for a big town hearing at the New Amsterdam.

Young Menotti is 26. He was 22 when he wrote "Amelia," and those who speak with authority about such things believe that he will one day make his mark as a composer. He was born and reared in Milan, came to America ten years ago, and has studied at the Curtis institute since then.

"Amelia Goes to the Ball," for which he wrote the book as well as the score, is lightly amusing and follows an unconventional pattern quite in the modern fashion. Amelia is a flirtatious matron greatly excited because she is going to the first ball of the season. Just as she is dressed and ready, however, her husband appears and announces that he has discovered she has a lover.

Amelia at first denies, then admits the lover. But she will not tell his name. Not, at least, until her husband promises faithfully that he will take her to the ball. Husband promises, learns that the lover is the mustached fellow on the second floor, and forgets all about the ball. He must exterminate the lover first.

Amelia is so beside herself with anger that she finally knocks husband unconscious with a vase and goes to the ball with the dashing chief of police who is sent to investigate the assault. The music critics have spoken pleasantly of "Amelia Goes to the Ball," crediting it with a too elaborate but skilfully written score, an amusing libretto, put into English by George Mead, and several natural and appealing melodies of better than average quality.

I happen to be one who does not get great pleasure from opera in English. I had rather not understand the text and imagine it to be important than to understand perfectly and discover it to be trivial and usually silly. This book, however, is much better than most of them.

Muriel Dickson, who came to America with the D'Oyly Carte singers a year ago, and was elected to the Metropolitan company provisionally last spring and advanced to full membership this fall, sings Amelia. John Brownlee and Mario Chamlee were husband and lover, respectively. Three thousand persons in the first audience were polite to the opera and the singers, and quite enthusiastic about Mr. Menotti.

By way of contrast the Richard Strauss "Elektra" followed, with the Hungarian, Rose Pauly, doing her dramatic best, which is quite wonderful, in the title rôle. Mme. Pauly, I'd say, won handily in her match with Strauss, three falls out of five.

Elsa Maxwell Backs So-So Musical Show.

Elsa Maxwell, a rotund and amiable lady who stages original parties for Park avenue and the Junior league, has become the producer of a commercial musical revue entitled [for no conceivable reason] "Who's Who," producer, in this instance, being short for keeper of the bankroll. It really is another of Leonard Stillman's "New Faces" entertainments, dolled up with richer clothes and better scenery than usual. As entertainment it is no better than so-so, but there is a lot of it.

Imogene Coca is in it, and she, though her appearances are infrequent, is one of the town's better travesty artists. The others are known and unknown, including an interpretative dancer who favors the grotesque, Lotte Goslar by name; Rage Raglund, a recruit from burlesque, and a variety of dancers.

The Federal theater, colored division, has scored a second hit in "Harlem." William Du Bois has written a vivid and exciting melodrama based on the adventure of Christophe, the ex-slave who, with the help of a battery of yellow fever germs, drove the French out of Haiti in the rebellion of 1802. The WPA forces have staged it with a numerous cast, who play it to the hilt, my scouts report [I have not been able to get that far north yet] and the first night audience was enthusiastic. Rex Ingram, a leader among colored actors, is the Christophe.

Play from Novel.

Comic Veteran Acts Monk in Miracle Play

which the praisers of times past often speak with deep affection. [Henry Kitchell Webster has used its atmosphere in his book of short stories, "The Painted Scene," and also in several novels, calling it "The Globe."]

Several years as vaudeville partner of Charles S. Warren, in an act called "Quo Vadis Upside Down," followed; then Shean became leading comedian at the Gaiety theater, San Francisco, where musical comedies were the standard fare. The demand for his services by producers who wanted a droll little fellow with an original sense of humor in their lyric productions became keen, and he figured prominently in "The Candy Shop," which had a summer run in Chicago; "Princess Pat," "Flo Flo," and "As You Were" with Irene Bordoni. The dramatic stage also claimed him as replacement for Sam Bernard in "Friendly Enemies," a German dialect comedy.

Movie Roles Led Up to "Father Malachy."

After "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" had come to the end of its prolonged vogue, and Gallagher himself had passed into his physical decline, Shean appeared in vaudeville with various other partners, in a revival of the operetta, "The Prince of Pilsen," and in "Music in the Air," a production of six years ago. His performance in this frolic brought him a contract for the movie version, and since then he has appeared in a number of films, including "Traveling Saleslady," "Page Miss Glory," "Symphony of Living," "Hitch-hike to Heaven," "San Francisco," "The Prisoner of Zenda," and "52d Street."

"Father Malachy's Miracle" brings a young producer as well as a veteran mime. It was staged by Delos Chappell, who found his way to Broadway by way of Central City, Colo., where he started the summer drama festival performances which have attracted much attention during the past five or six years. He was a lawyer in Denver when he caught stage fever in the old Central City Opera house and, having ample means, he decided to take his western energy and ideals in drama into commercial competition in New York.

Denver Lawyer Becomes B'way Producer.

His first production was "Come of Age," a play by Clemence Dane, with incidental music by Richard Addinsell. This work, staged in January, 1934, with Judith Anderson in the leading rôle, was admired by the critics and neglected by the public. Then Chappell tried his luck with a piece called "Cross Ruff," and lost again.

Last year he staged "Daughters of Atreus," a new treatment of the Agamemnon myth in ancient Greek mythology and drama. Its run was short, but Burns Mantle selected it for his book of "Ten Best Plays," and George Jean Nathan frequently refers to it as one of the finest of recent dramas. Last fall Chappell proved that yout' must be served, even when it brings ideals to Broadway, with "Father Malachy's Miracle."

This play is based upon a novel of the same title by Bruce Marshall, a Scotsman, published in 1931. The dramatization was made by Brian Doherty, a lawyer in Toronto who has been active in the Hart House theater, which has a high rating among Canadian little theater organizations.

"Great Barrington" Is Satire on American Pedigrees.

"The Great Barrington," a curious play which is one half a blunt satire upon early American settlers, and one half a ghost story, was staged under WPA auspices at the Blackstone theater at the last week-end. Circumstances have thus far prevented publication of comment.

The scene is a Dutch-American house on the Hudson river, now the pride of its snobbish and wealthy possessors, descendants of Barrington the First, who had acquired it in 1630. These stuffy modern aristocrats spend their time talking about the greatness of the Barringtons and Van Doorns, and the blessings of long pedigree. They are exceedingly dull, partly by the author's intention, partly because of his lack of skill in satire.

In alternating scenes, their false ideal of their forefathers is contrasted with the alleged reality. The ghosts of the ancient Barringtons and Van Schoors and their retainers appear, revealing some of the crude iniquities of their lives. The original Barrington was a swaggering seducer, boaster and triple murderer; the original Van Schoor was a betrayer of his bond-maidens. The last deed of the ghostly Barrington is to hide the bodies of two of his victims in a secret closet, transfixed by a sword. The last deed of the modern Barringtons is to find this evidence of ancient sin—the skeletons neatly articulated as if for museum exhibition.

"The Great Barrington" was acted briefly in New York last season. It is typical of hundreds of plays that are recorded as Broadway failures. John Connor, a vigorous actor, represents Barrington I. with melodramatic swagger. Fanny Ellen May is excellent as the seduced servant girl who becomes a Barrington ancestor. Linda Barret contributes an animated characterization of a French matron, eager for frontier adulteries.

Actor Unafraid

Stage superstitions mean nothing to Maurice Evans. The English actor challenged a famous hoodoo in his engagement in "King Richard II." in Philadelphia recently by putting on a pair of gloves said to have been owned and worn by William Shakespeare, despite a warning that to do so was to court death.

Taken from a silk lined casket where they are kept in the University of Pennsylvania library, the bard's alleged gauntlets rested only for a moment on the actor's hands. He is one of the few men to have worn the gloves since Shakespeare used them on the stage about 1590, according to tradition.

C. Seymour Thompson, the university librarian, told him: "Any one who wears the gloves will die within a year. Perhaps that bothers you?"

"Not at all," Evans replied. "I do feel, however," he added, "that this is a sacrilege."

The gauntlets, of silver gray lether, mellowed with age, are ornamented with large cuffs, finished in gold brocade. They were "tragedy gloves," worn in compliance with a custom of the period when no self-respecting actor appeared on the stage with his hands uncovered.

They were given by Shakespeare in his will to his sister, Joan Hart, and descended to her great-grandson, William Shakespeare Hart. They came into possession of David Garrick in 1769, and passed eventually to Fannie Kemble, noted Shakespearean actress of the last century, who was a close friend of Horace Howard Furness, editor of the Variorum edition of the poet's works.

Music Reporter Sees Link Between Robber and Pianist

To Him, They're Just Persons Who Do Things

By Edward Barry.

To a reporter, a robber and a pianist are very much alike. They are simply persons who do things, people who figure in the news. The fact that the first steals things and the second plays recitals should not be regarded as the mark of any essential difference between the two but as a minor—almost a trivial—detail.

Hidden in this truth is the answer to a charge frequently leveled at music critics by their enemies. Any one who has the privilege of writing about music in the public prints, these enemies contend, is shamefully neglecting his opportunities for good when he fails to further the cause of the hard working artists—especially the young and poor artists—whose performances he so constantly attends.

Now this statement betrays in any one who makes it a complete misconception as to what journalism is all about. The truth is that a good story is good because it gives the reader all the relevant facts, not because it helps some worthy cause or deserving person. It may, in fact, do serious harm to this worthy cause or deserving person and remain an excellent story nevertheless.

Story Bad If It Suppresses Facts.

Conversely, a bad story is bad because it suppresses or distorts relevant facts. Any good which it may happen to do does not affect its basic quality in the least.

A policeman, certainly, sees a great difference between a robber and a pianist. The former, he is sworn to hunt and, if possible, to capture. Over the latter he has, alas, no present jurisdiction. A newspaper man, as a private individual, may regard the two in as widely divergent a manner as the bluecoat himself, but in his capacity as reporter he has no choice but to relate objectively what each one did.

In modern newspapers a robber is not referred to as a dangerous wild beast but simply as a man who stole something. And the same wholesome rule which forbids taking sides against a criminal requires that the chronicler of the actions of some one widely regarded as a good influence should studiously avoid the appearance of that sympathy and cordiality which might cloud his presentation of simple facts.

Writer's First Job to Give Clear Story.

Any one who asks why a critic should write an unfavorable review of a debut appearance when a little pecking away at a kinder assortment of keys on his typewriter would give a much needed boost to a deserving artist is forgetting that the writer's first job is to give his readers a clear and complete account of just what happened at the recital. Incidentally, he is also blind to the much less important fact that a critic's power to help along a genuinly good artist is bound to be impaired if his readers begin to discover little by little that there is no discernible connection between the event of last evening and the account of it which appears in the paper today.

If you do not mind having a point driven home by means of an absurd example, return for a moment to our friend the robber and to the reporter who has the task of writing a story about him.

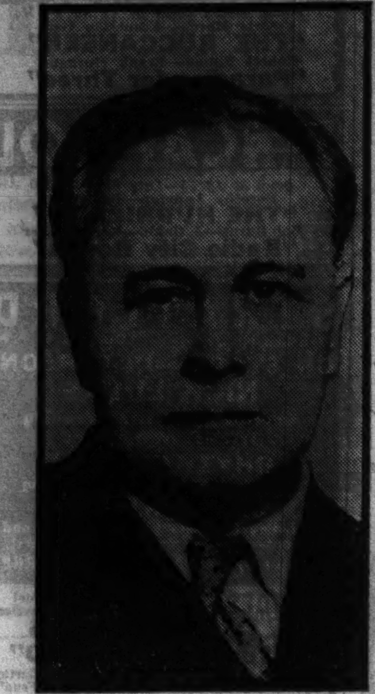
Suppose the thief succeeds in escaping from the country. The reporter, dismayed at the effect which these tidings may have on impressionable youth, decides to suppress the news of the escape in his account of the man's exploits. It would not do, thinks he, to let unformed youths and youthesses find that crime does sometimes pay, nor to implant in some impatient person sick of the economic struggle a suspicion that this robber, now presumably enjoying his loot in some foreign land, chose what is really a perfectly practicable short cut to leisure.

It's a Good Deed, but a Bad Story.

So the reporter writes the story, suppresses the relevant fact of the escape and, if his paper is innocent enough to print the yarn without verification, he may congratulate himself on having done some good in the world. Through his efforts, a wholesome belief in the dire results of crime has escaped the shaking which would otherwise have been its lot. Yet he has written a very bad story, and readers will fume when they discover the facts.

And if some sad and trembling fiddler squeaks miserably throughout his recital and ends by breaking not one but all four of his strings in a single mighty twitch, it is hard to understand what can be gained by a congratulatory review the next day. What if the young violinist did work hard for many years, what if music study is a wholesome influence in the community? The reporter's job is not to mouth such irrelevancies and truisms but to tell the story of the recital.

None of this is to be construed as a denial of the right of a critic, as a private individual, to help youth along, in any way he may think fitting. Just as the police reporter, in his simple capacity as citizen, may hire a hall and underwrite the expenses of teaching the young that crime does not pay, so the writer of music is privileged to subscribe personally for a block of tickets for every debut recital. His detractors—those who agitate so constantly for more support from the critic for young artists—are doubtless doing his very thing right along.



IN RECITAL TUESDAY

Josef Hofmann, known to America for 50 years as a pianist of extraordinary gifts, plays in Orchestra hall Tuesday evening. This is the concluding recital in the Adult Education council's musical arts series.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Josef Hofmann's jubilee recital, celebrating the 50th anniversary of his first American appearance in 1887 as a boy of 10, takes place in Orchestra hall Tuesday evening. The actual anniversary occurred last autumn. Since that time the eminent pianist has toured the country, greeting capacity audiences at each stop. A number of veterans who heard the young prodigy in his earliest recitals will be present to honor Mr. Hofmann Tuesday. Dr. L. H. Mettler of Hubbard Woods heard young Hofmann in Philadelphia on Dec. 10, 1887, and made the following note at that time: "If this little fellow is not spoiled by over-adulation, he will turn out some day to be one of our greatest musicians."

The program follows:

Sonata, Opus 53 [Waldstein]........Beethoven
Kreisleriana........Schumann
Polonaise, E-flat minor........
Nocturne, E-flat major........
Grande Valse Brillante, E-flat major..
Ballade, F minor........Chopin
Orientale........Stojowski
Moment Musical, F-sharp minor........
........Schubert-Godowsky
Etude, C-sharp minor........Scriabin
Kaleidoscope........Hofmann

Nathan Milstein, the dynamic and brilliant violinist who escaped from Russia in 1925 with Vladimir Horowitz, is the Chicago Symphony orchestra's soloist. Mr. Milstein has won an enthusiastic following in Chicago, and his appearances with the orchestra have become an exciting annual institution. Dr. Frederick Stock will conduct the Thursday-Friday concerts at which Mr. Milstein plays:

Overture to "The Barber of Bagdad"........Cornelius
Suite, "Beni Mora"........Holst
"Prometheus, the Poem of Fire"..Scriabin
Jane Anderson, pianist.
Concerto for Violin, D major........Beethoven
Nathan Milstein, violinist.

An all-Wagner program will be played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the young people's series in Orchestra hall Wednesday afternoon.

Andres Segovia, world famed Spanish guitarist, returns to the Civic theater for his annual recital this afternoon. His reputation is based as much upon his untiring success in discovering forgotten music for the guitar and lute as upon his unbelievable technique and delicately inflected style of playing.

Almost exactly a year after his death an important work by the gifted Polish composer, Karol Szymanowski, will receive its first Chicago performance at the Illinois Symphony orchestra concert in the Great Northern theater today. The work is the "Symphonie Concertante" for piano and orchestra, and the solo part will be played by Wanda Paul, an able and enterprising Chicago musician. On the same program Izler Solomon, the conductor, will introduce a neglected symphony by Franz Schubert:

Ballet Suite, "Les Petits Riens"......Mozart
Symphony No. 6, C major............Schubert
[First time in Chicago.]
Symphonie Concertante, for Piano and Orchestra..................Szymanowski
[First time in Chicago.]
Wanda Paul, pianist.

Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" will be presented today at the Beaux Arts salon in the Medinah club by the William Green Opera company. Costumes and stage settings will be employed. The cast is composed of Emma Calder, soprano; Jennie Podolsky and Jeannette Barron, mezzo-sopranos; Edison Campbell, tenor, and Herman Feld, baritone. Alexander Aster is accompanist. On the same program Maria Culizia, 16 year old coloratura soprano, will sing a group of characteristic items.

Jean De Keyser's Chicago International Grand Opera company presents Verdi's "Rigoletto" in the Auditorium theater tonight. Dino Bigalli will conduct. The cast includes Harriet Gricus, Chicago Lithuanian soprano making her debut; Armand Tokatyan, Joseph Royer, Elizabeth Brown, and a number of other Chicago singers.

The DePauw university choir, conducted by Van Denman Thompson, will sing in Thorne hall this afternoon at the monthly vesper service of the New England Congregational church. The program includes religious works by Vittoria, Palestrina, Morley, Bach, Tschaikowsky, Rachmaninoff, Schvedoff, Elgar, Macfarlane, and Van Denman Thompson.

John Jacob Niles, American folklorist and composer of Lexington, Ky., will give a recital at the Cordon club Tuesday night. The program is under the auspices of the Chicago High School Music Teachers' club. Accompanying himself on the dulcimer, Mr. Niles sings folksongs, ballads, work songs, Negro spirituals, and a host of other Americana.

The Waukegan Orchestra and Choral society gives its fourth concert of the season tomorrow evening at the Waukegan High school gymnasium. Sandor Kish is the conductor. Theresa Cook Brown, soprano, will be heard in excerpts from Wagner's "Lohengrin."

Critic Analyzes Revolt Against Modern Music

By Cecil Smith.

Ten days ago the constituency of Orchestra hall was seized with a bad case of the jitters when Paul Hindemith, one of the most prominent living composers, was the Chicago Symphony orchestra's guest in a program largely given over to his own works. Although there were some who enjoyed the concert, the general consensus was strongly unfavorable. Both on Thursday evening and on Friday afternoon a noticeable number of subscribers found the ordeal of hearing so much unfamiliar music beyond endurance, and protested visibly by leaving the hall prematurely without trying in the least to conceal their departure.

This uneasiness in the presence of uncompromisingly modern music is no local Chicago phenomenon. When I was in St. Louis last week-end one of the directors of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra board poured into my ear the tale of a few of the musical woes of that institution. Vladimir Golschmann, the gifted and alert conductor, is particularly interested in modern French music and is an unusually persuasive proponent of it. When he returned from Europe last fall he was advised to hold off from playing any of the new French works he brought back with him for fear of adverse audience response. So firm was the protest against overweighting the répertoire with modern French works—of which he played exactly three last year—that Mr. Golschmann actually refrained this year from presenting the season's first French novelty until March 6, when he ventured to offer an innocuous, if charming, suite of impressionist local color sketches by Roland-Manuel.

Philadelphia Subscribers in Periodic Uprisings.

In Philadelphia the subscribers of the orchestra have engaged in periodic uprisings against Leopold Stokowski's sponsorship of new music. Mr. Stokowski, aware of his profound psychological hold over his audience, usually has been able to precipitate a temporary truce by exercising his extraordinary temperament, but the ensuing peace has been transient at best.

When Serge Koussevitzky came to Boston and began playing modern music a dozen years ago the ladies who belong to the Dickens fellowship and attend the Lowell lectures thought the world had come to a premature end. They talked about canceling their symphony subscriptions, and in some cases they really acted.

So it goes everywhere in America, except possibly in New York, where the floating musical population is so large that any piece of music can be played with impunity.

If you were one of those who disliked the Hindemith concert, therefore, you are a typical American concertgoer. Yet I want to assure you that the management of the orchestra acted in all good faith in inviting Mr. Hindemith to present some of his works. Nobody wanted to plague you, or antagonize you, or reduce you to a neurotic pulp.

Puts Hindemith at Head of Contemporaries.

In point of fact the orchestra's management was completely right in giving Mr. Hindemith a Chicago hearing. He belongs at the top of the list of living composers, along with Stravinsky, and Prokofieff, and Sibelius. His brain teems with ideas and his knowledge of the composer's craft is unsurpassed. If you think this praise is extravagant, please do not ask me to justify it today, but rather let me go on to something else.

If you have accepted my estimate of Mr. Hindemith's academic value you may wonder: Why does the average concertgoer hate contemporary music, no matter how good the critics may say it is?

There is a missing link in our American musical experience. In our high pressure society we have tried to develop musical culture too fast. Within not much more than a single generation we have tried to acquaint ourselves with all kinds of music, from Palestrina and Bach to Brahms and Sibelius. In thirty or forty years we have tried to live through at least 300 years of European musical experience. We have done amazingly well, to be sure, but we have not yet grown either tired or suspicious of the standard classics, or, more especially, of the elaborate music of the late 19th century [Wagner, Strauss, and their ilk].

Hindemith's music, which is a reaction against 19th century musical extravagances, is a reaction against a kind of music we have not yet developed any desire to react against. One who sees no shortcomings in the tone poems of Richard Strauss can scarcely see the point of revolting against it. Hindemith and other composers of his general viewpoint have had trouble with audiences in Germany, too, for the typical German concertgoer is no up-to-the-minute modernist, either.

Asserts Concert Came as Shock.

The Hindemith concert thus came as too much of a shock. Brahms and Strauss and Mahler and Wolf are no preparation for so strong and copious a dose of dissonant music. After five months marked by a conspicuous absence of controversial music the powers of the orchestra swooped down upon us virtually without warning, and we are flattened by the attack.

Next year I hope the orchestra will let us learn something about modern music more gradually—and, in the end, far more effectively. For what it is worth, I suggest the following procedure in program building:

Place a contemporary piece, not necessarily a long one, on at least every other program. Place it so that people will not find it easy to leave without missing something attractive. Place it on a program otherwise so satisfying in standard content that the audience will be pleased with the total effect of the concert. Make listening to new music a regular and more or less casual experience, and see if we do not react better to Mr Hindemith when he comes again.

By the way, what has ever become of the list of novelties Dr. Stock promised to have the orchestra play this season?

Current Music News

Fernando Germani, Italian organist, who is the first international figure to tour the United States playing recitals exclusively upon the newly developed Hammond electric organ, will play in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago on March 28. The recital, which was originally announced for today, is given under the auspices of the Renaissance society.

Bertha Ott's concert schedule for the next few weeks includes the following attractions: Evelyn Eby and Reginald Bedford, duo-pianists, March 20; the Continental ensemble in a return engagement, March 27; Roselle Bezazian, pianist, March 27; Harry Hamilton, dancer, April 3; Esther Goodwin, contralto, April 5.

Mark Love, baritone, and Robert Basso, violinist, have been added to the roster of names for the Northwestern university festival May 17, 19, and 21. Mr. Love will be the narrator in Honegger's "King David." Robert Basso, who will play at the Saturday afternoon children's concert, was born in Sioux Falls, S. D., thirteen years ago. Recently he won first prize in a National Federation of Music Clubs contest in which there were forty-six entrants. Adolph Pick is his teacher.

Other soloists already announced for the festival include Helen Jepson and Agnes Davis, sopranos; Bruna Castagna, contralto; Richard Crooks, Giovanni Martinelli and William Miller, tenors; Julius Huehn, baritone.

The St. Louis Symphony orchestra, Vladimir Golschmann, conductor, together with the St. Louis Symphony chorus, William B. Heyne, director, will present a concert version of Wagner's "Lohengrin" in the Opera house, St. Louis, Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. Two former St. Louis singers, Helen Traubel and Marion Telva, will be cast in principal rôles along with Charles Kullman, Frederic Baer, and Herbert Gould.

Cara Verson, Chicago pianist, will play an all modern program in Jordan hall, Boston, Mass., Thursday evening. Her program will include a new sonata by Castelnuovo-Tedesco, and Aaron Copland's "Piano Variations."

Sixty-seven studios and schools of music have joined in forming a Greater Chicago chapter of the National Guild of Piano Teachers. The new group, organized by Irl Allison of New York, will sponsor a Chicago unit of the national piano playing tournament at the Stevens hotel June 3, 4, and 5. Competing piano students do not receive prize awards, but are graded and rated by an imported and objective judge. Sixty such tournaments will be conducted simultaneously from Boston to Los Angeles.

The fifth annual National Folk festival will be held in Washington, D. C., on May 6, 7, and 8. The festival, started in St. Louis four years ago, was given here in Orchestra hall last year. The life work of a remarkable enthusiast named Sarah Gertrude Knott, the folk festival attracts folk singers, balladists, and dancers from all parts of the country. It is Miss Knott's hope thus to preserve and make known many varieties of American folklore which otherwise might become obliterated from the cultural scene.

Forums Begin This Week on Jobless Taxes

By the Rev. John Evans.

A series of conferences on relations arising under the Illinois unemployment compensation act will be held in the auditorium of the Central Y. M. C. A. college every Thursday at noon, beginning next Thursday and continuing to May 19. Merle P. Gamber, acting dean of the school of commerce, announced last week that this series is being conducted in cooperation with the Chicago Association of Commerce and the State Street council.

Harry L. Wylie of the college faculty, an executive of the Pure Oil company, will act as conference leader. The first half of each session will be devoted to a brief presentation by the leader and the latter part will be a discussion period.

"These conferences," said Dean Gamber," are planned for employers who desire a practical presentation of current problems arising in connection with stabilization of employment, tax savings, and labor relations under the compensation act. Other subjects to be considered include wage administration and job satisfaction. This act was approved July 16, 1937, by the national social security board in conformity with the social security act. Discussions, therefore, will principally deal with section 20 of the compensation act which has to do with employment stabilization."

Dean Gamber explained that a clear understanding of the act by employers is extremely important at this time because what business organizations do now will affect their tax rate in 1942. At that date the director of labor will classify employers on the basis of their success in carrying out the objectives of the act and will set the rate of the pay rol' accordingly.

"This rate may vary from zero to as high as 3.6 per cent of the annual pay roll," concluded Dean Gamber, "and it is estimated that the sum involved in the Chicago area alone will total many millions."

New fields for scientific research have been opened to American scientists by Prof. L. E. Hinkle, head of the department of modern languages at North Carolina State college. He has deposited with the library of the United States department of agriculture forty translations, principally from French and German, of technical literature. Microfilms of the translations, which are reproduced on film for use in projection machines, have been made available to the library.

Prof. Hinkle evolved the idea assigning translation of scientific papers to his classes several years ago. He found it stimulated the student's interest in foreign languages because he was being put in contact with language which was used for expression of thought rather than the illustration of points of grammar. In course of time these translations have assumed a scientific value because they make available much material which might otherwise be unknown by economic reasons. With these accurate English translations much duplication of research effort is also eliminated.

Cecil C. Merrifield, president of the Chicago Harvard Business School Alumni club, announces that a scholarship amounting to $300 will be awarded by the local group to a student entering the Harvard business school next September. The award will be made about June 1.

In addition to this scholarship the local club will make recommendations of candidates for forty service scholarships of $300 each, which will be awarded by the school to entering students. Successful candidates for these service scholarships will be assigned to various tasks upon entering the school in return for its assistance. Such assistance will provide not less than 50 per cent of the total annual expenditures at the school. During the current academic year more than one-third of the students enrolled are receiving assistance of some type.

A scholarship carrying free tuition at Rensselaer Polytechnic institute, Troy, N. Y., the oldest engineering and scientific college in the country, is available to candidates in high and preparatory schools of Cook county. The scholarship is awarded through the Chicago chapter of the Rensselaer Alumni association, chairman of which is J. C. McQuide, 122 South Michigan avenue. It carries complete tuition for the four years, contingent on the holder maintaining high standards of work and conduct, and is therefore the equivalent of $1,600 in cash.

The winner my take any one of the following engineering courses: Aeronautical, chemical, civil, electrical, industrial, mechanical, and metallurgical; or, architecture, arts, science, business administration, biology, chemistry, and physics.

Authors' 'Co-op'

Five prominent playwrights—Maxwell Anderson, S. N. Behrman, Sidney Howard, Elmer Rice, and Robert E. Sherwood—have formed an organization to produce their own plays. Activity is to begin late in the summer, and each playwright is expected to have a new play for next season. Each author will supervise his own plays, either staging them himself or engaging other directors. He may also call upon his fellow authors for "advice and assistance."

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

This is fun! The silliest thing imaginable—but a circus!

The action concerns the adventures in legitimate business of a beer baron who had gone crooked, high wide and handsome during the prohibition era. His name is Remy Marco.

He marshals his adjutants together and gives them their orders. Guns in the discard. White shirts. Shaves. Clean necks. And "Yes Ma'am" and "Yes Sir" instead of "Okeh." Mike, Lefty, and Giuseppe are to forsake their rôles of killers and gun toters for the domestic jobs of butler, chauffeur and cook in the Marco household. All of the other boys are to continue selling Marco's beer, only now the beer is to be known as "Golden Velvet." . . .

But the beer doesn't sell. With good beer flooding the market, Marco's awful pre-repeal stuff falls by the wayside. Marco, who doesn't drink beer, can't understand the gradual and awful slump in his finances. . . .

On the eve of losing his brewery he, his wife, his daughter, Mary, home from boarding school in Europe, and a terrible boy from the orphanage that had been Marco's alma mater go to Saratoga where the Marco's have, for several seasons, rented a commodious house. Douglas Fairbanks Rosenbloom, the enfant terrible is there because, each year, Marco takes one of the orphanage boys to spend the month of August with the family as one of them. . . .

A bagful of stolen money, four dead desperadoes and a killer await the Marco family. The money and the killer aren't discovered till the last of the film. The corpses furnish many of the most glee provoking episodes. . . .

Mr. Robinson portrays this different sort of "Little Caesar" with gusto and humor. He has first and first rate aid from Allen Jenkins, Edward Brophy, Harold Huber, and young Bobby Jordan. Bobby was the Angel of "Dead End," if you remember.

Ruth Donnelly gives a highly amusing performance as Marco's devoted wife who has an awful time remembering she's a lady now. Jane Bryan and Willard Parker handle the romantic rôles pleasantly, and a well assembled band of minor players do themselves and the picture proud.

Direction was clever. Dialog's pat. Situations have the tang of the unexpected.

So saying I leave "A Slight Case of Murder" in your laps.

See you tomorrow.

Mercury Plans

The next Mercury theater, N. Y., production will be a revival of the Elizabethan play, "The Duchess of Malfi," by John Webster, with Aline MacMahon in the title rôle, plus Orson Welles, Edith Barrett, Will Geer, Whitford Kane, Hiram Sherman, Frederic Tozere, and Norman Lloyd. The Broadway opening is scheduled for the week of April 18.

This will not cancel the Mercury's promised Shakespearean marathon [a] blend of "Henry IV.", "Henry V." "Henry VI." and "Richard III." The latter production will open early in June and run until July.

Orson Welles has completed his arrangement of the texts of these plays. He has not attempted to present the entire series in one evening, but has divided the material so that the story of "Henry IV." and "Henry V." may be told on one evening, with the essence of the three parts of "Henry VI." and "Richard III." to be shown on the second evening. A matinée and evening sequence in the manner of "Strange Interlude" also is being considered.

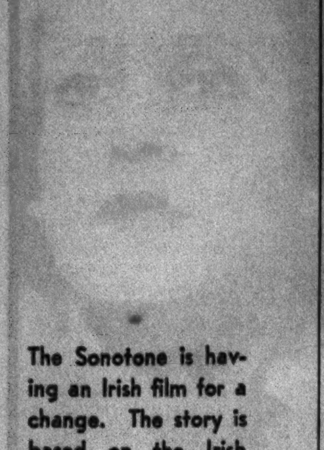
Miller's Life

"Backstage with Henry Miller," a biography of the late actor-manager, by Frank P. Morse, has been published by E. P. Dutton & Co. George M. Cohan contributed the foreword. Mr. Morse is a former dramatic critic of Washington, D. C. He was associated with Henry Miller in his "Great Divide" and "Servant in the House" period.

Plays at Goodman.

"Storm Over Patsy," a comedy adapted from the German by James Bridie, will be staged by the Goodman theater school of acting from March 21 to April 8. In the children's theater at the Goodman a play called "The Indian Captive" is being acted on Saturday afternoons. It will continue through March and April.

FAITH! AND SHE'S PRETTY, TOO



The Sonotone is having an Irish film for a change. The story is based on the Irish classic "Kathleen Mavourneen." Here's Sally O'Neill as Kathleen.

News from Hollywood

By Rosalind Shaffer

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—During the recent heavy rains which preceded the flood Ring Lardner Jr., who has a scenarist's contract at Warner' studio, slipped in a foot of water which was rushing over his garage floor and fell beneath his car. He suffered nothing worse than a complete wetting and a bad wrench of the left leg which has caused him to resort to a cane.

Veda Ann Borg, the red-haired beauty who had her nose broken in an automobile accident just before Christmas and who spent some time in a hospital getting it mended, went back to the hospital to have it rebroken and remended into a more attractive shape.

When Kay Francis weds Count Raven Erik Barnekow, it is the impression here that she will retire permanently from Hollywood to reside in Europe. Miss Francis is one of the well-to-do actresses in the film colony, her contract making her second to Mae West as an earner during the past year. Count Barnekow will be her fifth husband.

Shirley Temple's contract with Twentieth Century-Fox studio provides that that studio cannot hire another child for a featured rôle in any film story at that studio except Jane Withers. . . . In spite of the fact that she went completely through contract periods at two studios—Universal and Warner's—without ever getting a film rôle, millionaire heiress Geraldine Spreckels is still as screen crazy as a high school girl, with an agent dabbling around Hollywood trying to land her another screen test and contract at another studio. Miss Spreckels got as far in her last contract as to have her name changed to something supposedly more enticing from the movie point of view, but has since discarded that professional name, Anna Johns, for her real name again.

Bing Crosby's original purchase of a race horse was partly for publicity purposes. Now he owns a stable of twenty horses, is head of a race track, and has Paramount studio half in a panic with the whisper that he is considering permanent retirement from motion pictures. It is a good guess that Bing Crosby's wealth exceeds the $3,000,000 mark.

Alice Moore, daughter of Alice Joyce [now Mrs. Clarence Brown] and her husband, Felix Knight, radio tenor, separated in the east and Miss Moore has returned to live with her mother, the former star of silent screen, in Hollywood.

In notifying his staf at United Artists that he didn't wish them to help in the circulation of any more of his bad grammar jokes, Producer Sam Goldwyn explained: "Even if I do say something funny, that's not amusing." . . . Don Alvarado, favorite Latin hero of many fans in the silent film days, is now a subordinate production assistant at Warner studio. His ex-wife, the former Ann Alvarado, is Mrs. Jack L. Warner, wife of the production head of the studio. . . . Sigrid Gurie, Goldwyn's Norwegian importation, looms as one of the year's film "finds" after appearing in only one picture, "Marco Polo," with Gary Cooper.

Judy Garland on Stage Bill at the Chicago

The Chicago theater's stage headliner this week is a 14 year old film and radio actress, Judy Garland, who offers a program of songs and skits. The bill also contains the Four Franks; Red Dust, a trained dog; the team of Helen and Robert Williams, and Evans ballet girls. Next Friday the Chicago will offer "The College of Musical Knowledge," presented by Kay Kyser and his orchestra.

The State-Lake theater's stage show this week is Berni Veci's "Spicies of 1938," with a company of 50 performers, including an orchestra and ballet. Among the principals are: Brown and Ames, Tarrace and Masters, Dave Tannen, Gene Gory, Roberta, Doris Dupont, Lester Harding, John Paul Jones, Mlle. Adye Alyn Dore, De Conti, and Romaine, and Esther Harsh.

The Palace theater continues its stage show of last week with the following performers: The Chester Hale dancers; Gil Lamb, dancing comedian; Sara Ann McCabe, singer; Dawn Tagi, ballet dancers, and the Monroe Brothers, comedians.

Maj. Bowes' Collegiate revue, composed of performers recruited from college campuses, provides the stage entertainment at the Oriental theater this week. Among the acts are the University of Missouri Glee club, Raymond Barrett and his Co-Ed band, and the intercollegiate "shag" dancers who won the Madison Square Garden tournament. Fifty people are in the troupe.

Lunts to London.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will present "Amphitryon 38" in London late in May. On March 28 they will give Chekhov's "The Sea Gull" to the subscribers of the Theater Guild in New York.

A Slip of Paper in the Dead Vicar's Cassock Pocket Explains Much About Sources of Information

THE STORY TO DATE

● A shot fired through the window of their London home barely misses Rosemary Bellamy-Pryce and her aunt, affectionately called Boggie. A nephew of Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, persuades him to investigate. Calling to question Rosemary's aunt about possible enemies, they find her bound and unconscious from a blow. Revived, she says her assailant was small and shabby and wore black gloves. Tommy suspects her of knowing more than she tells. Rosemary tells Tommy that her uncle, Gavin Bellamy-Pryce, always wears black gloves. Gavin would benefit by the death of Boggie, Rosemary, or Rosemary's vicar father. Gavin was a steerage passenger on the boat returning from India when his brother, who was Boggie's husband, died of heart failure. Capt. Argus, a boorish friend whom Boggie met on the boat, is now in London. Rosemary's father comes to town and appears at a cocktail party given in the hat shop where Rosemary works, owned by Countess Rakovsky. Gavin is with him. Next morning the cleaning woman is found dead, poisoned from strychnine in a cocktail left over from the party. It was Rosemary's glass, though Boggie insists it was hers. Before the vicar can be persuaded to leave town he falls or is pushed from his hotel window. Death by mischance is the verdict of the coroner's jury. Gavin decides to lodge with Rosemary, Boggie, and Tommy at the vicarage for the funeral. Tommy's brother, Dr. Peter Rostetter, lives near by.

INSPECTOR HEADCORN was speaking.

"I had to consider Argus, Mr. Rostetter," he said. "Here is what I've learned. He was seen going into his flat at the time you set him down close to the mews entrance—and he was not seen to come out again, as he would have had to do almost immediately in order to get back to the hotel by, we'll say, 11:10 at latest. He was certainly at home shortly before midnight. The motor mechanic, who is his next door neighbor, heard him being violently sick."

"Which bears out his own story," muttered Tommy.

"And is not, it would seem, a unique occurrence, though as a general thing it happens in the early morning hours. I took the pains to make other inquiries. Argus gives rather riotous parties at his flat. Sometimes a woman stops on till noon next day. He's in debt to tradespeople, behind with his rent, always with the excuse of delayed remittances; yet on top of this he buys himself a fairly expensive car."

Tommy bethought himself of yet another objection to Argus' having a hand in the vicar's death. Single handed he could not have encompassed it—that is to say, he wanted Boggie's help over the telephone call which would indicate his presence at his flat during a given period. Was it conceivable a woman herself in love with him would lend him aid to commit a murder the sole end of which was marriage with her niece? It was as absurd as supposing these two friends guilty of trying to poison the girl on whom all hope of financial gain depended.

When Tommy had driven into the narrow entrance to Scotland Yard, Headcorn, getting out, leant for a moment on the window sill.

"You appreciate," he said gravely, "just why these next few days are so important? I've spoken of the unique opportunity they provide, but there's a second reason I'd better mention. The old man, Sir Osmund, is actually on the point of death. This time there's no fooling about it."

"Does that circumstance affect the issue?"

"It wouldn't, if one of our persons concerned wasn't champing at the bit to get back to India—only waiting, in fact, to secure all he can lay hands on in the way of money."

As Tommy was turning into Pall Mall the inspiration flashed on him. Vera Coldbottom! He had her new dress in his pocket. Circling the monument, he took a course up Charing Cross road, heading for Epping Forest and the county of Essex.

Vera had gone.

Three days ago, he was told—leaving no address. Simply walked out.

It was a cruel blow. Over cold beef and ale in a forest inn, Tommy bitterly told himself he had never properly estimated Vera's importance.

Genially the landlord deposited by his plate a copy of the Star. Tommy thanked him and glanced down.

"DEATH OF TEA MERCHANT," he read, and below, "Third of Family Dies at Eighty-six. Sir Osmund Bellamy-Pryce, nominal head of the celebrated tea importers, passed away this afternoon at . . ."

"Hark to that ass of a bird!" said Peter Rostetter, feasting his eyes on his own sunny jasmine trellis. "Jugs-jugs all day now. Muriel's mother wants me to write to the Times about it. Got some notion I've nothing better to occupy me."

Across the well laden breakfast table Tommy directed a glance of bleak contempt.

"Fine," he applauded. "I've put in six minutes on a first class sensation happening, so to speak, on your own doorstep, and all I get is some blither about a nightingale's bad habits."

"I was up till six bringing unwanted twins into the world," returned Peter amicably. "Now I'm damned hungry; and from what I have heard, it's the concentrated essence of tommyrot." He shoved a copy of the Times over the table. "Seen the obituary stuff about Sir Osmund? You may care to glance through it. Yet, I was with him at the last. He never knew about the vicar. Stupid affair, that."

"And if I told you," Tommy said acidly, "that Scotland Yard believes the vicar was murdered."

"Is this a leg pull?" Peter inquired. "Who in his senses would murder Cuthbert Bellamy-Pryce?"

"The person who benefits by his death. If you'd been listening you'd know that this so-called accident represents one successful attempt out of five; that the fourth attempt resulted in death to a disinterested bystander, and that the whole indicates an organized scheme to wipe out all the Bellamy-Pryce survivors save one."

He had at last got Peter's ear.

"See here—you haven't wirelessed any of this to the boy?"

"Rank?" Tommy had virtually forgotten his nephew, still aboard the slow boat to Madeira. "Rosemary wouldn't have him told. Afraid he'd turn round the minute he landed and come back."

"Good girl!" Peter's tension relaxed. "Sensible head she's got on her shoulders. That's the only thing that worries me," he added. "Neither of those two women is an alarmist. No, there's no hysteria there."

"So you do know the aunt, do you?" asked Tommy with interest.

"Mrs. James? Certainly I know her. Have done for years, off and on. Level headed, matter of fact—plays the smartest bridge game I've come across, barring a few Indian majors who've put their boys through Sandhurst on their winnings."

" ' about Gavin?"

PETER'S uneasiness had returned. Very little that could be depended upon was known about Gavin. A strange chap, yes—devilish peculiar in his habits—but he was rarely here, and Peter in a medical capacity had never had a chance to study him.

"Looney he may be. I wouldn't swear the contrary; but murdering off an entire family connection for money——! It's too tall an order by half. Particularly Cuthbert, who'd never antagonized him. Wasn't in him to offend any one. The inquest verdict was quite correct. The vicar climbed on a chair to pull down the blind, and suffered a sudden attack of vertigo. The shots must have been fired by a stranger laboring under a misapprehension—or a genuine lunatic with a grudge against Mrs. James. As for the poisoning, what's wrong with plain suicide? Slum women do kill themselves. One wonders they don't do it oftener—and any one can get hold of poison by pinching a doctor's bag. Why, mine was pinched——"

"When?" fired Tommy.

"O, two years back. Nothing came of it. I just mention it to——"

"I was meaning to ask you," said Tommy. "For how long at a time would a malaria attack incapacitate?"

"Depends on the type." Peter on professional ground was rock firm and showed it. "Which has he got? Or don't you know?"

"A diabolical type while it lasted. I took it for an epileptic fit. Came on like a thunder clap—teeth rattling, utter exhaustion. . . . He rallied after the quinine, but——"

"Lord," Peter chuckled, "that's only the benign. Looks nasty, but you should see the worst variety. Quinine, eh? I thought so. What he should have is atebrin. German discovery. Knock the plasmodium clean on the head inside a week."

"Suppose he had attacks four or five days running?"

"Couldn't happen." The doctor spoke dogmatically. "Tell me this: Is it tertian or quartan? Must be one or the other, you know. Tertian means alternate days, quartan——"

"I've been to school, too. Every fourth day."

"Wrong, every third day. You take the count from the first setoff. It's immaterial which. The point is, between bouts he recovers completely. And here's another thing: The attacks will occur at the same time of day—invariably. You can set your clock by 'em. The most usual time is from 3 to 4 p. m., and the duration roughly is three to four hours."

Gavin's attack had occurred shortly after 3 o'clock. If this dope was right—and Tommy did not question it—there was no need for the sufferer to have been laid low as late as 10 o'clock on any evening. It was true flu had been mentioned, but that was doubtless fiction. The Saturday affair, however, had taken place at just the time when, if it was the right day, Gavin would have been shaken to atoms. A little counting, first, two day intervals back from Thursday and then three day ones brought a reliable conclusion.

"I see what you're figuring," said Peter challengingly. "Does either way give him a clean slate for the Saturday?"

"No. Whether tertian or quartan, it works out the same—a free day."

"Not proof," muttered Peter.

Peter scanned the distant rose garden, satisfied himself that his tweed skirted wife was on the warpath for greenfly, and voiced the load on his mind. It was, in a word, Rosemary. If she really was in imminent danger—not that he believed it—it was a most appalling state of affairs, involving personal responsibility.

"On the boy's account," he explained. "O, I don't say anything's settled! At least, we hope not—though I don't know, all considered, if it mightn't be a good thing if some such dependable girl took him in hand. Rosemary'll have money, of course. Not to be despised. What matters, though, is the splendid young woman she's grown into. Her mother's looks and practical sense into the bargain. Toned down a bit since that time she squashed the ripe plum down your back. Ha, ha!" Peter guffawed. "Not forgotten that tragedy, I suppose?"

In his trembling hand was a slip of paper.

"My God!" cried Tommy weakly. "That wasn't Rosemary?"

"Was it not?" Peter rumbled. "Little spindly thing, all legs and freckles. I can see her now, hot-footing it over the lawn after messing up your new flannels. You'd dropped off in the old hammock we had slung between those two cedars."

So that small demon with the sun blistered nose was she who at present writing enslaved his every thought and impulse—controled, in fact, his whole destiny. Tommy saw a date stamped on himself, plain as the purple marking on one of Muriel Rostetter's breakfast eggs. He and this girl belonged to different generations.

"Charles," pursued the voice at his side, "seems to have been the pick of the bunch. You remember him, of course?"

Charles? Who the hell . . . O, Charles Bellamy-Pryce!

"See here, Peter," barked the younger Rostetter, stung. "What vintage do you think I am?"

"Quite right, Charles was before your time. I remember him, though. Fine, upstanding chap, Oxford Blue. He'd brains, too—and by the same token he was the worst knockout to old Osmund's pride. They say the old boy kept hoping till the last that Charles would knuckle under. When he'd the cable saying the lad had gone under in some God forsaken hole overseas he never spoke for a week. It was the first intimation he'd had that Charles had been bedridden nearly a year with a gunshot lodged in his vertebræ. They didn't do much bone surgery then."

"He had a wife, hadn't he?" asked Tommy absently.

"Yes, some colonial girl who died later on, after finding herself another husband. Never came to England. I . . . O, blast!"

Peter's face had fallen. Seeking the cause, Tommy perceived, just beyond the privet hedge bordering the premises, a lean and scraggy female peddling purposefully toward them.

"Miss Gosmartin," muttered Peter. "Ever run foul of her? Well, you will now. Be devilish careful what you say."

"I thought you'd be interested to hear that the funeral is arranged for tomorrow. The first of our funerals, that is," Miss Gosmartin explained with relish. "Sir Osmund's, I understand, is set for Monday—the bishop, of course, officiating at both. Poor, poor vicar!" Miss Gosmartin sighed, fixing greedy eyes on Peter's face. "I'm wondering, doctor, if his death—that is to say the circumstances of it—struck you as at all peculiar?"

Peter made disparaging noises, out of which "vertigo" stood clear.

"I do sincerely trust you're right," Miss Gosmartin mused insincerely. "The coroner should know, shouldn't he? I was only thinking of the—the opportuneness, if one may so put it. Coming on the very eve of Sir Osmund's death, and so very soon after that of the judge. . . . When did that sad event take place? It can't be more than three months, for it was the first week in Lent we had Mrs. James in our midst. H'm—yes. A most strange coincidence, wasn't it, for Mr. Gavin to have been on the same boat with them? Mr. Gavin, I'm told, will be staying at the vicarage—with his sister-in-law and niece."

Here the speaker enlivened her discourse with a repellent smile and remarked that it would be delightful to see Mrs. James again.

"If I do manage to see her," she continued uncertainly, "Mother, you know. How is she? O, most cheery. Hardly any sensation in her legs now. I've wheeled her into the little summer house with her tatting and now I'm hurrying back to take her my bits of news. I see you're watching the time. It's the good train they're coming by, isn't it?"

"It's due now," mumbled Peter desperately. "Tom, we must dash!"

• • •

WHEN the two brothers reached the platform the ticket collector and solitary porter were just abandoning their game of draughts to range themselves in readiness for the line of dingy carriages at that moment drawing alongside. Boggie alighted, sober and dependable, with Rosemary behind, steady-eyed, but fine drawn in her black spring coat. Neither glanced at the very average man in plus fours who transferred his suitcase and golf clubs to the lone car outside, and the latter did not flicker an eyelash at the wizened, caped form emerging from another third class compartment. Tommy, however, was keenly alive to Gavin's well poised approach. He missed nothing of the greeting, on one side awkward, as Peter stepped forward and relieved the archæologist of his dilapidated Gladstone bag, and a second later, his notice falling on the two station functionaries, he observed an arresting phenomenon.

Forgetful of duty, this pair had drawn together and were staring fascinatedly at Gavin. Both heads gave a slight nod. Said the porter, sotto voce:

"Aye, he's come, right enough."

That this demonstration was no isolated affair was proved by the knots of tradespeople all along the High street, posed to stare silently and ominously at the caped figure in the doctor's Austin, and by Sarah Pennylove, whose lugubrious welcome held a distinct tinge of fear. As the arrivals entered the vicarage—Elizabethan, small windowed, with a superadded Victorian ell—the housekeeper backed nervously against the wall, avoiding Gavin as though he were a plague victim, and babbling agitatedly that she had given the two ladies their usual rooms on the main landing while the gentlemen she was putting farther along.

"Farther along" meant through a baize door on the upper floor in the Victorian addition, where the male guests found themselves ushered into two small, stuffy bedrooms and precipitately deserted. Tommy opened his casement window, partly dislodging a swallow's nest clinging to the eaves, and looked down on the churchyard. Directly opposite rose the squat stone-and-flint Norman tower from whose dog-toothed arch a decrepit verger peered forth like a turtle from its shell. All around were graves, some sunken, some covered with modern stones and railed in. In corners the grass grew long, and ten yards distant a hole with a mound of freshly turned earth marked the spot where the vicar was to lie. The body was due to arrive that afternoon and rest in the chancel. It was a saddening thought. Tommy withdrew his gaze and, quitting the room, paused beside the open door alongside.

Gavin was unpacking his disreputable bag—containing, apparently, little but manuscript. Turning he locked some unseen object in a drawer, pocketed the key, and only then—though he must have been well aware he was being watched—looked round with his slow, sardonic smile. It was singularly difficult confronted by those omniscient eyes to frame any remark. As on a former occasion, it was Tommy who suffered from discomposure.

"Feeling better?" he asked lamely.

"Thank you, quite as usual." The archæologist inclined his head and added blandly, "Your brother has very kindly offered to procure a remedy for my complaint. Something new and highly efficacious."

"I know, he mentioned it to me. He says you'll be cured in a week."

"That would be of inestimable benefit."

Tommy entered the oddly shaped little drawing room. Boggie was there, reading a note written in a prim backhand on mauve paper. She glanced up with a deprecatory smile.

"Gosmartin!" she mused. "What a ridiculous name! Who she is, I've no idea, but evidently some well meaning creature I met in the spring. Very good of her to leave flowers for us," she added, touching the handsome purple irises on the mantel shelf. "I see she's written Ro, too. I must take it up to her. Are you all right?" she asked meaningly, and then in a lower tone, "What does your brother say about him?"

Tommy told her that the doctor declined to connect Gavin with the various sensations, and held to the accident theory where the vicar was concerned. Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce looked gravely at the dim figured carpet, nodded as though unsurprised, and gave a stoical shrug.

"And he may be right. Who can say?" she murmured as she left the room.

A moment later Rosemary joined him, her eyes fixed and far seeing.

"Tommy," she said, closing the door and coming close to him, "I've been talking with Ted Sprocklehurst—daddy's curate, you know. He doesn't know either how daddy came to hear about our disturbances, but I'm sure of this, that whatever it was happened just after the evening service last Sunday. You see, he was all right before, but when he went to take off his cassock Ted found him in the vestry in a sort of daze. . . . O, if only I'd kept daddy's letter! Still, I'm sure of what he said." She sank her bright head on her knees. "Tommy! Who told him? Who?"

"Tell me," he said, slipping his arm round her, "about this woman called Gosmartin."

"Aggie Gosmartin?" Rosemary glanced up incredulously. "How could she have anything to do with it? She never goes to London. She wrote to Boggie, but Boggie can't even remember her. See, here's her note to me. Just smarmy sympathy."

The luncheon gong sounded a subdued roll and Rosemary stood up. "Some along, let's get it over."

Gavin and his sister-in-law were standing stiffly by the dining table, not looking at each other.

Never out of a long experience could Tommy recall a more ghastly meal. It seemed to him that Rosemary, already at breaking point, must crack under the strain of it; but he had not reckoned on the massed force of British conventionality. Boggie showed herself mistress of the situation.

Suddenly a nasty incident shattered every one's false composure. Pennylove, bringing the coffee, stumbled on Boggie's bag and burst into dithering apologies. Good humoredly Boggie said: "Not at all, Pennylove. See, we'll put it here," and rescuing her property—heavily charged, as all could see—plunked it down on the table with a sinister, metallic clang. Rosemary looked sick. Tommy glanced at the fourth of the party. He was gazing with narrowed eyes at the bulging bag, while over his yellow parchment features a twisted smile played. A moment later he declined the cup of coffee passed to him, excused himself, and quietly withdrew. Presently the front door closed quietly and Boggie, along whose neck a little brickish tint had spread, heaved a sigh.

"Thank God!" she exploded.

• • •

ROSEMARY said nothing, but rose and moved toward the door, and Tommy, believing she wanted to resume their talk, followed her into the drawing room.

She was standing by the front window, which commanded a view of the road winding southward toward the green slope of downs. Some distance along this her uncle was trudging. In the foreground, from nowhere, a second figure had bobbed up. It was the man in plus fours, innocently exploring the countryside, but taking the same course as the less congruous pedestrian ahead.

"Going to Black Gables, I suppose," murmured the girl tonelessly, and then, with a spasm of unhappiness crossing her face, "Will he guess he's being followed?"

"Two-twenty," Tommy murmured, glancing at his watch. "So there'll be no attack today. It's your uncle's malaria. I've something to tell you about it."

"Let's slip into the church," she said quickly. "We'll be quiet there."

Tommy explained what he had learned from Peter. She listened despondently, but on hearing that Dr. Rostetter was undertaking to treat her uncle for the recurrent malady showed a slight relief. "He'll stay here for a bit and we can get off. Boggie will want to stop on for my grandfather's funeral."

The heavy wormeaten door was cautiously opening, and round its edge peered the face of Mr. Sprocklehurst, the curate. The soft brown eyes betrayed a glint of fear.

"Ted!" whispered Rosemary sternly. "What's wrong with you?"

The curate converted a gasp into a cough and creaked diffidently toward them. In his trembling hand was a slip of paper.

"In the pocket of your father's old cassock," he stammered.

It proved to be the long detached flyleaf of a hymnal. On it in block capitals was printed:

"The writer feels you should know that two attempts have been made by shooting, to end the lives of your daughter and sister-in-law. They do not want to frighten you, but there is reason to think they are in serious danger. Say nothing about this and destroy the message without delay."

"But who brought this to him?" demanded Rosemary, suddenly more haggard than at any time since her father's death.

Mr. Sprocklehurst could only shake a troubled head. He had absolutely no idea on the subject. There were the usual handful of people at the three Sunday services, no strangers among them.

"And yet I think I know when and where he found this paper," he faltered eagerly. "Yes, I could almost swear it was between the pages of the lectern Bible at vespers, and that that is why your father made the sudden pause during his reading of the second lesson. I had put the markers in for him after the morning service and there was nothing there then, but it certainly happened that just as he turned over a page he came to quite a noticeable halt."

"You say only the habitual congregation was present," said Tommy, pinning him down. "Out of them were there any who were in the church before the services began?"

Mr. Sprocklehurst on this one occasion could not say. There were a number of devout ladies who made a practice of coming early, mainly those who undertook the renewal of flowers for the altar vases, but he had been late Sunday evening and had barely time to get into his vestments before the processional started. Asked to name the prowlers and potterers, he gave a hesitant list which included Miss Gosmartin.

The curate murmured, "I am greatly distressed to be of so little assistance," and with another deprecatory cough faded back into the vestry.

"No," said Tommy slowly. "Miss Gosmartin's part in this is easily accounted for. Poking her nose into the Bible—God knows why—she came on this note. She couldn't say she had found it, for that would be giving away her unholy inquisitiveness; but she did drop a few mysterious hints just as she's doing now, and it's those hints that have given rise to the general suspicion present in the village. I rather expect for some time past there's been a feeling against your uncle, though I may not find it has a better basis than your grandfather's feud with him. As for the person actually responsible for this vile message——"

"Well?" she prompted with dry lips, letting him take the paper.

"Well," he repeated grimly, "I don't imagine Headcorn will discover any significant finger prints on it; but one point we can settle. Can you dig up a railway guide?"

On what day were you born? Whatever day it was, there are specific astrological influences about which you should know—influences which pertain to your birth date and to no other day in the year. Wynn has compiled, especially for readers of THE TRIBUNE, detailed analyses of the future to Dec. 31, 1938, giving counsel for all activities. Learn of your own astrological pattern for 1938 by filling out the blank below immediately.

AS ABOVE ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ SO BELOW

Look for your birthday or the group in which it appears throughout the following notes—it may be mentioned more than once. Mark it with a pencil wherever you see it, and then heed the counsel given.

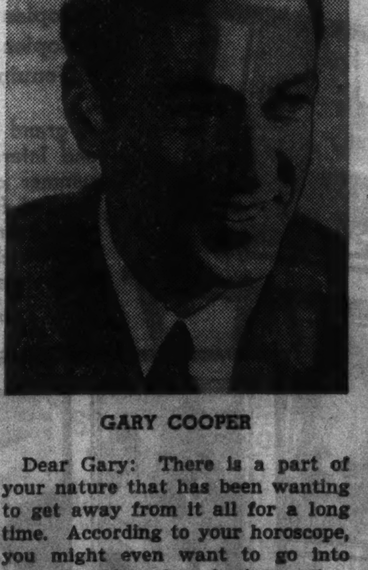
An Open Letter to Gary Cooper



GARY COOPER

Dear Gary: There is a part of your nature that has been wanting to get away from it all for a long time. According to your horoscope, you might even want to go into some line of work or business other than your present profession. All of which is a good idea, especially during the next few years—five, to be exact—if you don't entirely leave the movies to their sad fate without you. You could be a mighty good two-occupation man. And let your restless feet take you places during the next two years, too. With best wishes, WYNN.

THURSDAY, MARCH 17: Look around for ways in which you can extend your boundaries a bit. Best for those born Oct. 1-15, Jan. 28-Feb. 11, and May 29-June 13.

FRIDAY and SATURDAY: Financial returns or expenditures linked with marriage, partnership, or legal matters call for careful thought and study.

Even Floods Fail to Dampen Delight of Chicagoan as She Enters the Gay Whirl of Pasadena

BY COUSIN EVE.

PASADENA, Cal.—(Special.)—We left Chicago in the lightest mood and with the best omens to meet the spring in California. To be sure, the outlook was a surly drab, a dull brown winter scape with no hint of either snow or violets to come. Even the Father of Waters did not swell up and look exciting as we passed over, but flowed along in tiny ripples, quite noble and grand.

If nature were in a colorless mood, we had piles of new books on hand, and the one I picked was Bromfield's "The Rains Came," a prophetic title as it proved later. But the train itself was excitement for anybody. Railroading has taken to modernism and riots of color, and one is likely to see a gorgeous red train decked out with nickel, or an all yellow or emerald green one. The train which whirled us westward was a solid streak of shining silver, a lighter than steel train.

Next day when we were tearing over the snow covered face of New Mexico, across the vast wide open places, it was a singular thing to see the long shining dragon making its way in a pure white world where earth and sky were all one, like a snowy cloud.

The inside of our train was alluring. In some cars its steel walls were painted Persian blue with cushions and carpets of rich Florentine red. The furniture of steel was cushy indeed, and the staterooms large and nice. In other cars the walls were peach color, and the hanging and flooring almond green. As for the gadgets, new and shining, we were the entire trip learning to work them.

• • •

California greeted us in the morning at Bakersfield with sunny, perfidious smiles, bright but deceiving. One's pulse leaped high at the sight of blue sky and sun on the glossy leaves of orange trees, already in full fruit, with enchanting sights and sounds everywhere. Traveling that way were Mrs. Charles Bosworth of Evanston with her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Padley of London, and her babe, and Robert W. Stewart of Chicago, bound for his ranch at Ventura. We did not know it then, but ours was the last overland train over the Cajon pass. In a few hours the tracks were lost in great landslides.

Pasadena has the charm of irregularity in its lack of plan. It runs up sketchily on high hills that flank its background of Sierra Madre mountains. It spreads over a radiant valley. Some streets are noble and broad, lined with royal palms, like South Orange Grove avenue, where are many great houses, including those of Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson and Mrs. William Wrigley Jr., whose white palace with formal terraces and loggias occupies an entire block set with magnificent palms in vivid tropical green. There are smaller, intimate streets with cuddling bungalows already hung with wisteria vines, climbing roses, and half hidden by flowering hedges.

At San Marino, a high suburb, are fascinating new houses of the Spanish California sort, with views off toward the mountains. Here the wealthy young marrieds are settling. On high, high hills stand one or two tragic monuments, huge stone skeletons of great houses, begun with vanished cash, that overlook the greens and hazards of Annendale Golf club.

• • •

Pasadena is a great rendezvous for the middle west. Chicago has lost a lot of residents to this semi-tropical resort and the Huntington hotel is the great social center. This is a rambling, cheerful, overflowing beehive that looks simple and unpretentious and has a certain charm and comfortableness.

I am staying in a high set, wide windowed house and, like King David, often lift up mine eyes to the hills around about. Upon arrival the glow of ripe oranges on our trees bedazzled me, also strange black lilies with a dash of purple. And, inasmuch as pink and white camellias bloom all over the giardino, and gardenias, too, nobody sends exotic shoulder knots. Magnolias, palms, and a pool sunk deep in blue pansies are a part of our garden,

Floods Do Not Dampen Delight of Vacationist

There was a mere fleeting snatch at these joys before the rains came. I will not tell about the great rains, à la Joseph Conrad. It would be a sad story and a long story, and probably boring. Enough to say that the Pacific ocean seemed to have supplied the heavens with an endless reservoir. Down it came in sheets and radio supplied the horrors of the whole countryside awash.

When the great storm was over the sun burst out one morning rather shamefacedly, and we decided to let bygones be bygones and go over to Hollywood to lunch. At that it was a rather wild ride along high roads, over which, at the cross streets, rivers were rushing.

The main damage was done by landslides, and we passed street cars engulfed, motor cars swallowed up entirely, and houses that had crashed to pieces where they stood. Railroad and other bridges had gone astray, and altogether nature seemed to have gone on a terrific binge in California. But Hollywood had never turned a hair. Its little and big white stucco houses, its gay streets and cafés were alive with self-centered people coming and going with intriguing self-importance.

• • •

The little shops were simply thrilling, with show windows of the most glamorous. Here and there huge signs read, "Guides to show you houses of movie stars," which must be a large order, for the great movie people are by no means segregated. Some of them live in Beverly Hills, others right in Los Angeles, and, in short, they are all over the place.

Appetite came with the electricity and rapid tempo of Hollywood, so we turned in to a small shining place, "The Cock 'n' Bull," an English restaurant that is the high success of the hour. With dark wainscot, small tables crowded in, a large bar, and a groaning buffet table in the rear, the set-up was not important, but the food was marvelous. Steak and kidney pie awaited us—cold turkey and salads, cheeses, puddings, and sweets that were perfection. There were waitresses, but self-service was the style of the place. Rather soon chinchilla and mink coats came in, and crazy little hats framing tired but pretty faces.

Lots of the men were well arranged English and seemed to be time killers rather than of the local industry of pictures. And there was so much movement and train of life that hardly could one partake of nourishment lest some exciting novelty should escape. The Cock 'n' Bull was a great adventure and we were almost sorry to leave the jolly little place.

• • •

The next day's adventure was along far different lines, and even more charming and exciting. We drove west to the Pacific to San Pedro, where is Fort Douglas MacArthur. There the commandant, Lieut. Col. Claude Thiele, and his charming wife, recently out from Washington, D. C., were having a luncheon. The ride was again a matter of broken roads and torrential rivers. The everlasting hills were still disgorging their surplus of moisture. Finally, Long Beach with its strange oil wells, hundreds of high derricks like a forest of giant leafless trees lay across our path, and then the trim parade ground and trees of the fort, just on the brink of the ocean.

Col. and Mrs. Thiele have a charming house full of antique furniture and interesting books and souvenirs of their European life, and on leaving them we stopped a moment at Long Beach to leave a card for the E. A. Wollesons. Capt. Wolleson, who was acting commandant at Great Lakes before Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis arrived, is on sea duty aboard the Tennessee, and Mrs. Wolleson was lunching aboard a battleship that day. So we missed them.

The next great excitement was the Santa Anita handicap over the magnificent course, once "Lucky" Baldwin's potato patch. The whole world goes to these races, and the drive took us across almost to the base of the mountains, where we saw shining from a long distance the roofs of 16,000 motor cars, gleaming in the sun like so many serried and orderly wet turtles. The day was fine and banks of yellow calendulas flanked the entrance to the Turf club and grandstand, and out by the paddock the flowers were solidly pansies.

• • •

The whole effect was simple and chic. We had in our box an army officer whose ability to pick winners was uncanny. After luncheon, which was served in the box on a shelf table and was excellent, the rush was on to place the bets, for 65,000 persons were present and nearly all seemed to be betting.

Presently a beautiful blonde tall woman with dark eyes entered the next box and it was Mrs. Pat Hurley of Washington with her handsome husband, the ex-secretary of war. They have a house in Pasadena for six weeks or so. Later, when I climbed up to the Turf club, it was to laugh to see all the Chicago faces.

The Santa Anita course is laid out with great style. The opposite ends of the oval inside the track are solid orange and yellow calendulas, very effective.

An easy way to see stars of the pictures was to listen to the megaphone man bawling at the sortie: "Mrs. Douglas Fairbank's car." And there was the former Lady Ashley coated to her heels in silver fox, and hatless, a real bear. "Doug" was handing out his autographs zealously. "Miss Bennett's car, Mrs. Whitney's car, Mr. Vanderbilt's car, Col. Guggenheim's car, Harold Lloyd's car," and so on indefinitly.

At the Midwick Country club, where there is polo, the Westbury, Long Island, team was playing the Pasadena and Santa Barbara men. There, too, at luncheon were some of the famous—Mary Brian, Mrs. Fairbanks, again hatless and silver foxy; Katharine Hepburn, and Robert Taylor.

Among the familiar faces at the Turf club were Mr. and Mrs. George Gaylord, Mrs. Charles Bosworth, Mrs. Gordon Padley, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hardin, the William Masons, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Connors, Mr. and Mrs. George Marcy, and W. O. Lindley.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gaylord, who still maintain a house at Neenah, Wis., and have Chicago for background and an infinity of cousins, have an admirable house built on Rosemont terrace in the likeness of a French château. On Sunday night this was the scene of a brilliant party in honor of Mrs. Charles Bosworth, who was looking lovely in the cobwebbiest of black lace as a foil to her blondness, while Mrs. Gaylord, very chic and extremely pretty in printed chiffon, had two beautiful daughters to assist, Margaret Ruppel and Gertrude Bruce, whose marriage to young Eugene Bruce was the outstanding wedding of last summer. Here again Chicago people foregathered and played bridge, and I met the life of the party, Conrad Poppenhusen, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Johnson, the Albert Harveys, W. O. Lindley, formerly of Lake Forest, and the Peter F. Conners.

It's a great little world, with something quite new under the sun, the drive-in movies, which happen only at night, and where the audience sits and luxuriates in its own cars and comes and goes at will.

Bingo Is Lingo for Lotto and Fun in Miami

By India Moffett.

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.

The gentleman from Cincinnati is richer by $1,968. But he is not excited, as you or I would be, for, he says, they run bigger bingo games at home in his church. He is given a check, which does not please him; probably his church pays in cash. But his wife is excited, if he isn't—perhaps she doesn't play in church—and she says gleefully, "Gee, I'm glad we're going home tomorrow; he won't have time to spend it."

Bingo is the rage down here. It's causing a gold rush toward Broward county where the plantation has sprung up like unto nothing we've seen before. You can't miss it if you drive north from Miami Beach any time after six o'clock in the evening for there is a steady stream of cars going up the ocean boulevard to Hallandale road, south of Hollywood. In the early evening all the cars turn to the left to find parking space near a huge, one story shed, with screened sides.

• • •

Later some of the cars turn right on the Hallandale road into an elegant night club, La Bohême, where one may dine and dance and watch a floor show, and play roulette, but "the carriage trade" goes there later in the evening; early it's the Plantation every one is seeking.

The doors open at 7 o'clock and if you want a seat you have to be there around that time. The night I went, we got there at 8:30 o'clock and by that time not only was every seat—there are one thousand around the bingo tables—occupied, but every inch of available floor space was covered, too. Every one was holding a card, which had been purchased at the door for two dollars; you can play all ten games each night on the same board. Bingo, you know, is what we called lotto when I was a child; later it became keno, and then screeno, and now in Broward county it is bingo.

We wriggled our way through the crowd into a corner where we managed to find space in which to stand, but holding our cards flat after the game began at 9 o'clock was almost impossible, for people kept pushing by, vainly trying to find a cooler, more comfortable spot.

• • •

Loud speakers carry the numbers all over the place, for the bingo players push the roulette, chuck-a-luck, and dice players aside during the bingo hour. The croupiers rest then, for bingo is the game. Bingo is the great American sport that is making "Potatoes" Kaufman's Plantation the most popular place in southern Florida.

"Potatoes" and his partner, one "St. Louis Dutch," say they don't take a penny from the pool, even for operating expenses. The night I was there, there were 2,000 people, all of whom seemed to be bingo players; some had more than one card. The first eight games paid one hundred dollars a game—the house regulates the size of the purses for the first nine games and what is left goes into the last one, the boys say.

The Plantation is a mushroom sort of building, a rough wooden place with the bingo tables occupying one half, and eleven roulette tables, two chuck-a-luck, and about eight crap tables filling the other half. The lights hanging from the rafters are brilliant and hot; every one drips sweat and most of the customers remove coats and some even take off their neck ties. Any one in formal evening clothes would stick out like a sore thumb, but it isn't a tough crowd; it's a crowd of vacationists who look as though they came from small middle-western towns—respectable, law-abiding citizens like Great Aunt Phoebe and Great Uncle Jason from Rushville. They wouldn't go into a gambling "joint" at home, but down here it's different.

It is different, too, different from anything any one on this continent ever has seen. Tia Juana in its most wide-open days was never like the Plantation from the standpoint of the numbers of people gambling under one roof, and the class of the players. No hard liquor is sold; only beer and soft drinks and sandwiches at a tiny bar in one corner. The prices are low, too, very un-Miami like. When the bingo is finished, half the people leave and the other half stay to try their luck at the other games.

The Plantation is open in the afternoon, too, with the tables running, and racing boards in place of the evening bingo. At every table there is a watcher, perched on a high stepladder from which he can watch every move. It is the operators more than the customers he watches, I am told.

WINNETKA DEBUTANTE AT VASSAR

Not until Easter time will there again be many parties for college age boys and girls, for most of them are deep in studies. Miss Josephine Zeiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henry Zeiss of Winnetka, is a student at Vassar. She made her debut this winter.

State D. A. R. to Convene in 42d Conclave

Representatives of the 116 Illinois chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution will assemble Wednesday morning at the Stevens hotel for the 42d annual state conference of the organization.

Mrs. William A. Becker.

Greetings from Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the national society, and from other leaders will combine with business and a brief memorial service to form the opening day's program. Tea will follow.

Wednesday evening a pageant, "America's Unfinished Battles," will be given and the good citizenship award presented annually to an outstanding high school girl will be made. The award is a trip to Washington, D. C., at the time of the Continental congress of the D. A. R. this spring. Mrs. Becker will speak on the conference theme, "Youth and Tomorrow."

• • •

Thursday additional reports will be given and officers will be nominated. Miss Betty Browning of THE TRIBUNE will speak under the auspices of the press relations committee.

The Illinois Sons of the American Revolution will join with the Daughters in a state dinner Thursday evening, when Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nation's Business, will speak on "Where to—America?" New officers will be elected and presented on Friday, the closing day.

Mrs. Jacob Fredrick Zimmerman, state regent, will entertain for her state board and former state officers at a luncheon on Tuesday preceding the opening of the conference. The luncheon will be held in the Tower room of the Stevens hotel. On Wednesday evening Mrs. Samuel James Campbell, former state regent, will give a dinner for Mrs. Becker, and Mrs. Eli Dixson, vice president general, will give a luncheon Thursday for Mrs. Becker and Mrs. Zimmerman.

Protectorate to Review 21 Years' Service

The Protestant Woman's Protectorate will take stock of twenty-one years of service to women and girls of all creeds at an anniversary luncheon Monday, March 21, in the College inn of the Hotel Sherman.

Miss Mary Bell Mainland, superintendent, will speak on "Why a Woman's Protectorate?" and among other speakers will be Dr. Charles T. Holman, professor of pastoral theology at the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Fred W. Waterman, president, will give a welcoming address, and opening and closing prayers will be given by Dr. George L. Scherger, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical church, and by Mrs. Ernest Lynn Waldorf. The Chicago Union Swedish Baptist woman's chorus of fifty voices, and Don Enrico, operatic tenor, will give a musical program.

• • •

Among the special guests will be Miss Edith Abbott, dean of the school of social service administration at the University of Chicago; Frank D. Loomis, executive secretary of the Community Fund of Chicago; Walter R. Mee, executive secretary of the Chicago Church federation; Mrs. Silvester Schiele, president of the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation, and Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen.

It was in 1917 that the women of the Church federation founded the protectorate at the suggestion of the Travelers Aid society to help women of all ages and creeds with their economic and psychological difficulties.

Free employment service is provided at the organization's headquarters at 127 North Dearborn street, and a case work department coöperates with other social service, medical, and psychiatric agencies in giving each woman the type of attention her particular case demands.

• • •

An average of 150 to 200 persons is helped each month through contributions to women's organizations in churches of twenty-one denominations, and through the support of other organizations and individuals. The Chicago Association of Commerce and the Chicago Church federation indorse the Protectorate, which is a member of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies.

Mrs. C. T. Madsen.

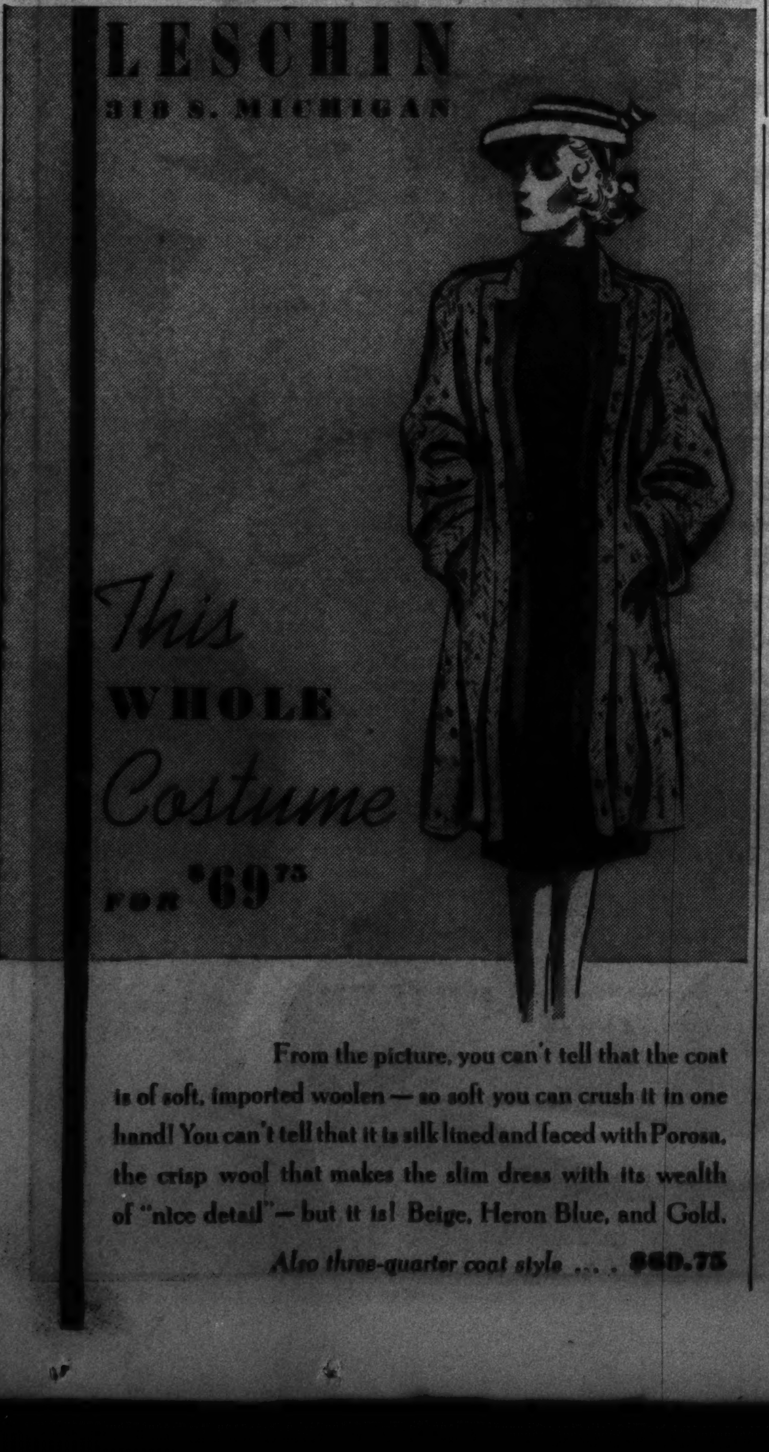
The board, comprised of fifty members, is headed by Mrs. Waterman, with Mrs. C. T. Madsen as first vice president. Mrs. Madsen is chairman of the anniversary luncheon. Mrs. George L. Robinson is second vice president; Mrs. R. Scott Hyde, third vice president; Mrs. L. L. Stratton, fourth vice president; Mrs. J. M. Riddie, secretary, and Miss Mabel Haggman, treasurer.



Women in the World Today Popular Topic

Women and the place they occupy in the world today will be discussed from three different standpoints at as many meetings this week. The Covenant club will sponsor a symposium on "Jewish Women in the World Today" at 8 o'clock this evening, with Miss Lillian Herstein, Miss Jane Evans, Mrs. Felix A. Levy, and Mrs. Charles E. Shulman participating.

Mrs. Levy will speak for Jewish women in America; Miss Evans, for those in Russia; Miss Herstein, for women in totalitarian states, and Mrs. Shulman for the women of Palestine. A recital by Walter Stafford of the Chicago International Opera company will precede the symposium, which has been arranged by Isador Becker, chairman of the forum committee.

Miss Julia I. Felsenthal will be the principal speaker at the International Relations day meeting of the Norwegian Woman's club at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the fieldhouse at 3548 West Addison street. Miss Felsenthal, who is a leader in the National Council of Jewish Women, will discuss "Women and the Peace Movement." Mrs. Sarah Catlin Weeg, 7th district international relations chairman, also will speak. Dr. Helga Ruud is in charge of the program.

The position of women in Europe today under Fascism, Socialism, and Democracy will be the topic discussed at an international relation dinner of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Swedish club, 1258 North La Salle street.

Miss Hilary Nevitt, young English author of "Women Must Choose," will be one of the speakers. Miss Nevitt has studied at Geneva, Switzerland, and lived from 1929 to 1932 in Germany, where she observed the growth of the Nazi party. In 1936 she traveled in France, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, and Germany, studying the position of women politically, socially, and economically.

Miss Hilary Nevitt.

Also on the program will be Miss Fay Gliatto, a member of the alliance, who spent two months in Italy last summer studying the Italian situation from a woman's point of view.

Miss Mabel Vollmar, state chairman of international relations for the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, and Miss Celia Howard, associate state chairman of marathon round tables for the cause and cure of war, also will speak. Both are members of the alliance.

Miss Marguerite Heinrichs is chairman of international relations committee which has arranged the program. Mrs. Bert Schiller McDonald, president, will conduct the meeting.

Paintings Adorn Exteriors of Many Bavarian Homes

In Bavaria the home dwellers have an interesting treatment for the exteriors of many of their homes. They adorn the outside walls with ornamental paintings, large paintings which sometimes also are found on the entrance doors. The paintings usually are of a religious nature and date back to ancient times when they were used to ward off evil spirits.

Daughters of the British Empire Elect Officers

Lloyd George chapter of the Daughters of the British Empire recently elected Mrs. George Cooke Adams as honorary regent.

Other officers for the year are Miss Elizabeth Harvey, regent; Miss Olive Lawson, first vice regent; Miss Bertha Davy, second vice regent; Miss C. M. Tighe, treasurer; Mrs. William Munroe, recording secretary; Miss Elizabeth Christy, corresponding secretary; Miss Hilda Smith, historian.

The organization will meet at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Stevens building, 17 North State street. Women of British birth or ancestry, from all parts of Chicago, are eligible for membership in the group.

Pasadena Race Party Inspires Amusing Garb

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. "Didn't it rain!" Pasadenans are exclaiming as those whose gardens now boast miniature ravines and rock gardens [laid out sans blueprint] set about filling up the holes. For Pasadena was fortunate, indeed, and citizens are digging liberally into their pockets and into their wardrobes to contribute money and clothing to the relief of those who suffered most from the storm.

There were amusing incidents, too, as when a woman telephoned a local newspaper office demanding to know why there had been no stock market reports for two days! Her informant explained in vain for five minutes and finally, in despair, sighed, "Well, lady, I guess you'll just have to take your chances with the rest of us."

Racing fans caught their breath again after the rain to swarm out to Santa Anita last Saturday for Handicap day, and much merrymaking was attendant upon the occasion. A ball followed at the Ambassador for Turf club members and their guests, and a costume ball preceded it on Friday night at the Huntington.

Huntington guests attired themselves to represent their favorite horses with no end of amusing results. Time Supply and Carrying Time inspired the use of clocks and watches for "decorations." Iris Masters Rogers, in Hawaiian costume, represented Tropic Isle and Mrs. A. S. Ames was Grey Nurse. She wore a gray chiffon dress and insignia of the Red Cross. Robert Bensingen of Chicago was a guest in the party of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Louchheim of Philadelphia. Mrs. John F. L. Curtis gave a party, including her Chicago friends, the George Marcys, Mrs. W. Irving Osborne, and Curtis McWhinney. Mrs. C. F. Morse was at Marjorie Day's "Dutch" table as was Mrs. Ames. Miss Day, with her usual sense of humor, chose to dress as Braving Danger and wore a bridal costume.

• • •

Mrs. Levy Mayer of Chicago was hostess at a table with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Low and Miss Helen Reddy as her guests. The Stephen McIvers also were hosts. Maj. and Mrs. Ral Parr's table included the major's brothers, G. Howell Parr and Henry Parr, the latter having fastened to him a fringe of miniature champagne bottles as Party Spirit. Mrs. Parr was Her Grace, the duchess, in white gown and jeweled tiara. Maj. Parr went as his own horse, Legal Light, wearing color bands of his stables.

Cards have been issued by John F. and Anna Lee Stacey, former Chicago artists, for a house warming Wednesday from 4 until 7 o'clock. They expect 150 guests and Mrs. Stacey will be assisted by Mrs. Theodore White Smith and Miss Ada Belle Champlin, formerly of Chicago. Mrs. Clifford Bartlett, Mrs. Guy Stewart McCabe and Mrs. M. J. Backenstoe.

Santa Barbara is aflutter this week with the approaching wedding of Miss Barbara Chase, daughter of the Harold Chases of Hope ranch, to George Mercer Nairne of Scotland, son of Lady Violet Astor, who is in Santa Barbara for the occasion. The wedding will take place Friday at All Saints church in Montecito. Other titled guests at the wedding will include the bridegroom-elect's uncle and cousin, Viscount Waldorf Astor and Michael J. Astor.

Santa Barbarans are eagerly awaiting also the arrival in April of Lord and Lady Tennyson, who are expected from their Isle of Wight home.

Byron S. Harvey of Chicago is visiting his son at El Mirasol hotel, Santa Barbara, and Mrs. Charles Yoe Freeman is a guest at the Santa Barbara Biltmore, where she has a cottage.

The John J. Mitchells entertained at dinner in El Mirasol recently, their guests being Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Manning of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Mosely, and Mrs. Kenneth Moore of Los Angeles and Henry Benedict of Palos Verdes.

Longabaugh Shows Mexico Water Colors

By Eleanor Jewett.

Interesting exhibitions are current in practically all of the galleries this month. Pen and ink drawings and three new bronze heads by Maude Phelps Hutchins may be seen in the Quest gallery, 810 North Michigan avenue, to March 19. Continuing to April 1 are the water colors of Mexico by Charles Oglesby Longabaugh, which with a group of water colors by John Whorf and another by W. Emerton Heitland make up the current exhibit in the O'Brien galleries, 820 North Michigan avenue.

Mr. Longabaugh has just returned from a sketching trip to Mexico, and the pictures he has brought back are among the best that Mexico has yet yielded one of our painters. They are fascinating and well out of the usual run of travel sketches.

Whether you prefer the steep street of Taxco to the pink walls of a nearby cathedral, or the gray of the Alamo, or the sunny silence of a country road [where man and donkey make their siesta in the shade of a gigantic cactus], you will not weary of your choice. Each of these water colors has much to commend it; Mr. Longabaugh must be ranked among the first of our water color painters. And his series of "little" water colors is marvelous.

Francis Chapin is responsible for the thoroughly delightful one man show of water colors and lithographs current through March in the Roullier gallery, Fine Arts building. These water colors are modern in tempo, fresh, picturesque, and decorative. The little children who dominate several of them are most attractive, solid, chubby infants who focus attention as would so many brilliant poppies.

In the Katharine Kuh gallery, Diana court, is an exhibit of paintings and water colors by Carlos Merida, but these are so ultramodern that they overstep the meaning of pictures. Rather than pictures, these efforts resemble flights of a mathematical mind. This dotting of space with nameless and formless solids scarcely seems worth the time of any one to contrive, and yet, quite possibly, there will be those who see these works and find satisfaction in them.

Ethel Couch Brown is exhibiting in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, to March 16.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is sponsoring an exhibition of Indiana dune paintings by Arno Bretsnyder in the West Mezzanine gallery, Drake hotel, during March.

The North Shore Art league is sponsoring an exhibit of modern design and typography by Maholy-Nagy from March 11 to April 3 in the studio at Community house, Winnetka.

The artists of Chicago and vicinity exhibition will open in the east wing galleries of the Art institute on March 19. A new prize has been added to the list this year, the William H. Bartels prize of $300.

Entries for this show were limited to four from an artist, and of the four only two could be accepted. Nine prizes, totaling $1,950, will be awarded. The jury met on March 1 and 2 and was composed of Philip R. Adams, director of the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts; Albert Stewart of New York, sculptor and water colorist, associate of the National Academy of Design, and William A. Kittredge, the art director for R. R. Donnelley & Sons, Chicago.

The third annual water color exhibition of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts will be held at the Stevens hotel from March 19 to April 16.

The Hoosier Salon Patrons' association announces the opening of the spring exhibition season at the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, with an exhibit of paintings by Dale Bessire and Prof. Paul E. Barr, director of the art department at the University of North Dakota.

Mrs. C. B. King of the Hoosier gallery sends us the following interesting piece of news: Clarence Mitchell of Santa Barbara and Chicago has been busy for the last three months photographing in color the rare collections of Chinese jade at the Field museum. He is now working on the colored photographs of the animals in their native backgrounds as given them by the late Charles Corwin, a painter whose work was among the most valuable to Chicago of any painting done this last decade and more. Mr. Mitchell is returning to Chicago next fall to photograph the jewel collection belonging to the Field museum.

The annual exhibition of advertising art, sponsored by the Art Directors' Club of Chicago, is to be seen at Marshall Field's to March 19. The exhibit is open to the public.

A wail has been heard from one of the contributors to the Chicago No Jury Society of Artists show, which will close March 15 at Goldblatt Brothers. George W. Kramer writes that his picture "Rolling Home" has been hung upside down and is continued in that unfortunate position despite his plea for clemency to the hanging committee. "Rolling Home" depicts a breaking wave, and one is supposed to catch the suck and surge of it as it rolls back from the shore into the wide waste of the sea. Those in charge of the show comfort Mr. Kramer by stating "it looks better this way." Unfortunately the artist cannot bring himself to agree.

The 1938 national exhibition of contemporary American sporting art, under the auspices of the Institute of American Sporting Art, Inc., will be held from March 14 to March 31 at the Midland club, 172 West Adams street. More than two hundred artists will be represented. Both painters and sculptors have depicted sport in America. There is, for instance, Frank W. Benson, with his paintings of wild duck, and there are Carl Rungius, in the field of big game animals; Lynn Bogue Hunt, big game fish and upland birds; Edwin Megargee, dogs and horses; Gordon Grant, yachting; W. Granville-Smith, trout fishing, and, for sculptors, Mahonri Young, Dr. R. Tate McKenzie, and Dr. James L. Clark are among those represented.

A second edition of the Dictionary of Pronunciation of Artists' Names [with their schools and dates] assembled by Mr. Kaltenbach of the Chicago Art institute, has just been published. The dictionary is a most useful little volume to him who really wants to know the right way to say, for example, Van Gogh or the Flemish David. This last it not to be confused with Hermine David of the French school, not at all. The Flemish painter correctly addressed is Dah-vit.

The last March exhibit to be announced today is that of paintings by Frank V. Dudley, Oskar Gross, and Marie E. Blanke and the annual national exhibition of the Chicago Society of Miniature Painters, which will open March 12 in the Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue.

Dr. John Timothy Stone will be the guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Municipal Art league, to be held at the Union League club on the evening of March 15.

"MOUNTAIN FARM"

Charles Oglesby Longabaugh, noted Chicago water colorist, has what is probably the most sparkling and original group of water colors of Mexico that we have yet seen, on exhibition to April 1 in the O'Brien art galleries, 820 North Michigan avenue.

Here's Hygienic and Modern Way to Dry Dishes

There's an art to dish drying, if we would do it according to modern hygienic methods!

Fresh towels should be used for each batch of dishes. It is much better to scald and air-dry dishes than to wipe them with unclean towels.

Avoid the use of too absorbent towels that are easy breeding places for bacteria. And don't hang a towel that is damp and soiled behind a hot stove or over a radiator to dry. Spread dish towels on rods to dry after you have washed them, or, better still, hang them outdoors for a breath of fresh air, a bit of light, and sun, too, if the sun happens to be shining.

Nautical Party Is Gay Event at St. Augustine

Gayest of this season's events here was the nautical party held last night in honor of the anticipated formal opening this month of Marine studios, the large ultra-modern aquaria erected at what is now known as Marineland, 18 miles south of here.

To mark this event, St. Augustine hostesses joined forces in a large gala dinner dance at the Hotel Ponce de Leon, features of which were nautical costumes and music, a marine menu, shell decorations for the tables, a model in ice of Marine studios, and a buffet table of fish in aspic.

The special guests were officials of Marine studios, of which W. Douglas Burden of New York is president, and included Ralph W. Poole Jr. of Lake Forest, who is associated with the unique enterprise.

St. Augustine's "Day in Old Spain" fiesta which the town's garden club sponsors each year, stands out among the events of next week. This colorful festival will take place Friday in quaint Aviles street, which with its old coquina buildings and overhanging wooden balconies, will be decked for the occasion with banners, flowers and strings of colored lights.

On the day of the fiesta, senoritas in graceful Spanish gowns and mantillas will gather in the patio of the Hotel Ponce de Leon and leave for the fiesta in open carriages, escorted by caballeros on horseback. The opening address will be given from the balcony of the old Patio house where artists now have their studios.

• • •

There is to be Spanish music and dancing. Sweetmeats made from old Minorcan recipes will be sold at streetside stalls and there are to be booths of flowers and plants, and of dolls in Spanish costumes of long ago. Booth attendants will wear costumes of St. Augustine's eventful earlier days.

W. H. Huth of Chicago, who has been staying at the Ponce de Leon, has departed for the Isle of Pines, off Cuba. Mrs. E. J. Rogerson of Chicago is passing the remainder of the season here, after being in Palm Beach earlier during the winter.

Princess Devotes Much of Time to Newspaper Work

never will satisfy his ambition to run a newspaper. But he passed the ambition on to his granddaughter, Princess Tatiana Wiasemsky, and she seems to be well on the way to success.

The Modern Girl club, composed principally of last spring's debutantes, is running a magazine in which Princess Tatiana has a strong hand. She herself writes mostly on yachting and, for a young girl, she has had every chance to become an authority.

Fashion Joins with Posies to Enthrall Miami

By Clarissa Greene.

Miami's winter colonists desert even the races when a fashion or a flower show is announced.

MIAMI, FLA.

One of the many fashion shows which have marked the season was that of Thursday night at the Surf club, to which imports from European fashion centers featuring evening models were flown by special plane from New York to lend variety to the showing of resort styles of southern origin which have characterized previous events.

Hundreds of orchids, including a number from local collections of rare specimens, will high-light the flower show which the Miami Beach Garden club will open next Thursday in the Women's club. The empress of flowers will occupy her throne in the stage area, with the remainder of the building and surrounding terraces and lawns devoted to native wild flowers, ferns and shrubs, and exotic exhibits representative of many tropical countries.

A number of Chicagoans will occupy key positions in next Friday's charity ball for the benefit of St. Francis hospital. It is being given at the Surf club by the Surf, Indian Creek, and Bath clubs and the Committee of One Hundred. Planned as the first of a series of annual events to be held at the Indian Creek next year, then at the Bath and Committee of One Hundred homes, the event is arousing an amazing amount of interest.

Mrs. David J. Molloy, chairman; Mrs. C. Rus Dashiell, and Mrs. H. Teller Archibald are serving on the women's committee from the Indian Creek club. Mrs. Frank A. Steiner is on the Surf club women's committee. Mrs. Frederick A. Poor and Mrs. Otto Mersman will serve on the special committee headed by Mrs. Christian N. Lindback of Ventnor, N. J., vice chairman. Reservations during the week added to the list of the Chicago members who will entertain the George A. Steiners, Mr. and Mrs. Peter T. Potts, Mr. and Mrs. August Kochs, and the Herbert W. Youngs.

The Committee of One Hundred held its annual yachting trip and outing at the Matheson hacienda harbor in Biscayne bay last Thursday, when the majority of its 400 members boarded a fleet of yachts owned by members. The event has become a tradition. The group, which includes in its membership leaders in finance, industry, the professions, and society, will hold its annual southern dinner Tuesday night at the clubhouse in Miami Beach. Location of the annual northern dinner, held in a northern city during the summer, has not been decided. Chicago members were hosts in that city a few years ago.

Four Chicago men are directors of the organization, including Frederick A. Poor, Peter T. Potts, Frederick Snite, and William Tarradash. Mr. Snite and Mrs. George N. Hillenbeck will be co-chairman of the St. Patrick's day ball, outstanding event of St. Patrick's church in Miami Beach, to be held Thursday in the new clubrooms of the organization. Mr. Snite had as luncheon guest at the Surf club Tuesday his house guests, Dr. Henry Langhurst of Elmhurst and Dr. Newton C. Mead.

• • •

The junior William T. Atwills of Chicago and the James Wilsons of Kenosha, Wis., were among those entertaining at dinner at the Indian Creek club Wednesday night. The Wilsons had thirty guests in their party.

Marion Taylor, Chicago violinist, will share honors with Rafaelo Deaz, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, at Miami's Unity center today. Miss Taylor is a house guest of Mrs. Charles O. Schaeffer at her house in Northeast 31st street.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Dwyer of Chicago, who are spending the season at the Gulf Stream apartments on the ocean front, entertained at luncheon at the Surf club Tuesday for a group of Chicago friends, among whom were Mrs. W. A. Lydon, T. J. Lawler, E. K. Lydon, James Clare, and the Philip Colons. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright and their house guest, Graham Smith, were among the guests of the Carl Leighs Saturday night, when they entertained for their daughter, Miss Betty Leigh.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, June 2, 1889.

Dear Julia: How terrible the news is from Johnstown! It seems incredible that a whole city should be wiped out in a few hours. Some dispatches say that as many as 17,000 lives have been lost, but I suppose we shan't know for weeks the extent of the disaster. Houses, it is said, were lifted from their foundations, trees uprooted, and enormous masses of débris swept along carrying poor human beings to their death.

The descriptions I have read remind me of the scene in George Eliot's "Mill on the Floss."

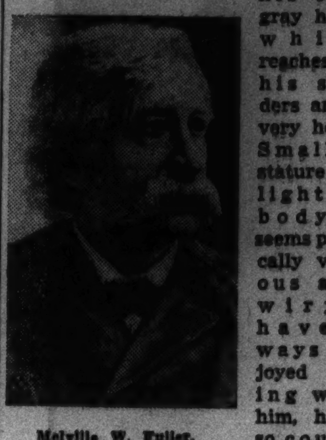
Some of the brave deeds witnessed by rescuing parties must have been touching—mothers refusing to accept safety without the children who clung to their skirts; a young man who relinquished a rope thrown him rather than desert two women who were with him on the roof carrying them along and who couldn't grasp the rope themselves.

"So nigh is grandeur to our dust . . ." A great hour reveals that human nature has some fine elements in it.

• • •

Chicago is sending $50,000. I saw in the paper that John B. Drake had wire $500. Will and I sent $200, remembering the help the world gave us eighteen years ago when Chicago was swept by fire. Will Johnstown be able to rebuild? Its case is even worse than that of Chicago, for a flood leaves in its wake much danger of sickness . . . decaying debris and slime—while fire purifies. How often that symbol is used in the Bible . . . "so as by fire!"

Will and I called on Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller and Mrs. Fuller at the Palmer house today. They are in Chicago for their first visit since they left the city for Washington, and are to open their old home at 3600 Lake avenue for the summer, after which they will go on to commencement at Wells college, where a daughter is to graduate.



Melville W. Fuller.

Chief Justice Fuller is a picturesque figure, with his flowing mustache and his long gray hair, which reaches to his shoulders and is very heavy. Small of stature and light of body, he seems physically vigorous and wiry. I have always enjoyed talking with him, he is so courteous, and genial, and modest. Will says he was always so, when he was at the bar, and he hasn't changed since his appointment to the high office he now holds.

Will and I were talking, as we left the hotel, of the many celebrated cases in which he has been concerned here. One of the most famous was the trial of Bishop Cheney for insubordination . . . a trial which led to the establishment of the Reformed Episcopal church. That was about fifteen years ago. Bishop Cheney, then only Mr. Cheney, magnetic, popular, was as low church and evangelistic as his superior, Bishop Whitehouse, was high church and insistent on form. Mr. Fuller defended the priest. The trial lasted a long time and Mr. Cheney was defeated, but he continued to occupy his pulpit. This led to another trial, this time in the civil courts, to oust him from his church. But here he was victorious and the parish was declared to be owner of its property. As a Reformed Episcopal church, Christ church has a large and enthusiastic congregation.

Will reminded me of the astonishment of the lawyers of Chicago at Mr. Fuller's knowledge of canonical law at these trials. He is a wide reader and his speeches are worth listening to, interspersed as they are with allusions to the classics and to modern literature as well.

With love, yours as ever,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Melville W. Fuller [1833-1910], appointed to the position of chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States by Grover Cleveland, was a notable Chicagoan.

That eastern cities have always enjoyed picturing Chicago as wild and woolly is evidenced by an old clipping, dating probably from the late '60s, sent us by Mrs. W. L. Whitmarsh. Three stanzas follow:

CHICAGO

(From the Philadelphia Press.)

I have been to the north, I have been to the south,
But in traveling a man may afar go
To the jumping-off place, ere he ever will find
A town to compare with Chicago.
Some people send on by Adams Express,
And some put their faith in a Fargo,
But if you would go to the d——l direct,
Just enter yourself at Chicago.

There all the small boys play at "poker" and "cram,"
For most of them did to the war go;
And they sing that wild song called "I don't care a d——n"
All night in the streets of Chicago.

Spring Kittens

Some wearing smiles and some with a scowl,
Pretty pussy willows soon will prowl!
Up and down the branches of the willow tree
Fuzzy little kittens you shall see—
Silver, furry kittens, fat and fair,
What a funny mother cat to leave you there!
With your brown jackets split by the sun,
Every sudden wind that blows makes you run.
Up and down the branches, silver gray and sweet,
Watch the pussy willows trip on tiny cushioned feet!

Lithuanians Will Give Dinner for Alliance Trustee

Representatives of Lithuanian societies will welcome home Miss Euphrosine Mikuzis, only woman trustee of the Lithuanian Alliance of America, at a dinner Saturday evening at the Maryland hotel. Miss Mikuzis is returning this week from a tour of eastern cities, where she spoke at various meetings in celebration of the 20th anniversary of Lithuania's independence. She also was one of a delegation which presented a petition urging amnesty for political prisoners to the Lithuanian embassy in Washington, D. C.

Miss Euphrosine Mikuzis. [Stankunas Photo.]

Congressman Adolph J. Sabath, Dr. Pius Grigaitis, editor of the Lithuanian Daily News, and Dr. Anthony Montvid will be among the speakers, and there will be a program of Lithuanian music.

Miss Mikuzis, a native Chicagoan and a graduate of the University of Chicago, also is secretary-treasurer of the Lithuanian Congress of America.

Personalities Enliven Events at Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

Small evidence appears of a social recession in Palm Beach. The week began with a colorful revue at the Everglades club sponsored by the Students International union and concluded with a lecture at the Four Arts by Henry Bainbridge, who lectured on Faberge, known as the modern Cellini, court jeweler of the Romanoffs.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

And in the meantime an interesting variety of personalities add spice to the balmy air. Marjorie Hillis, the author, is at the Everglades club. Mr. and Mrs. John Work Garrett of Baltimore also are here, and were entertained Tuesday night with a dinner by Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick at lovely Villa Today. Mrs. Garrett is an accomplished musician, and created a sensation several years ago by maintaining an orchestra at the embassy in Rome when her husband represented his country at the Eternal City.

• • •

On Wednesday morning Mrs. Chadwick, who was with a party on board Hugh Dillman's yacht, had the thrill of landing her first sail fish, a fighting beauty 7 feet 8 inches long.

The exhibit of contemporary American art at the Four Arts is drawing large crowds, and would seem to answer the Kipling query: "It's pretty, but is it art?"—for no matter what you may think pretty or artistic is certainly in this collection.

There are about forty pictures from the galleries of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Norton of Chicago, which cover a wide range of subject matter. A favorite with many is James Chapin's "Ruby Green Singing," a Negro girl in a shimmering pink satin dress, who is singing joyously. It doesn't take much imagination to hear the rich, throaty voice, so poignant is the expression.

The artist winning the $50 prize contributed by Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy was F. C. Frieseke, for his "Memories." Mrs. Chadwick has contributed a like amount for the picture winning the popular vote.

• • •

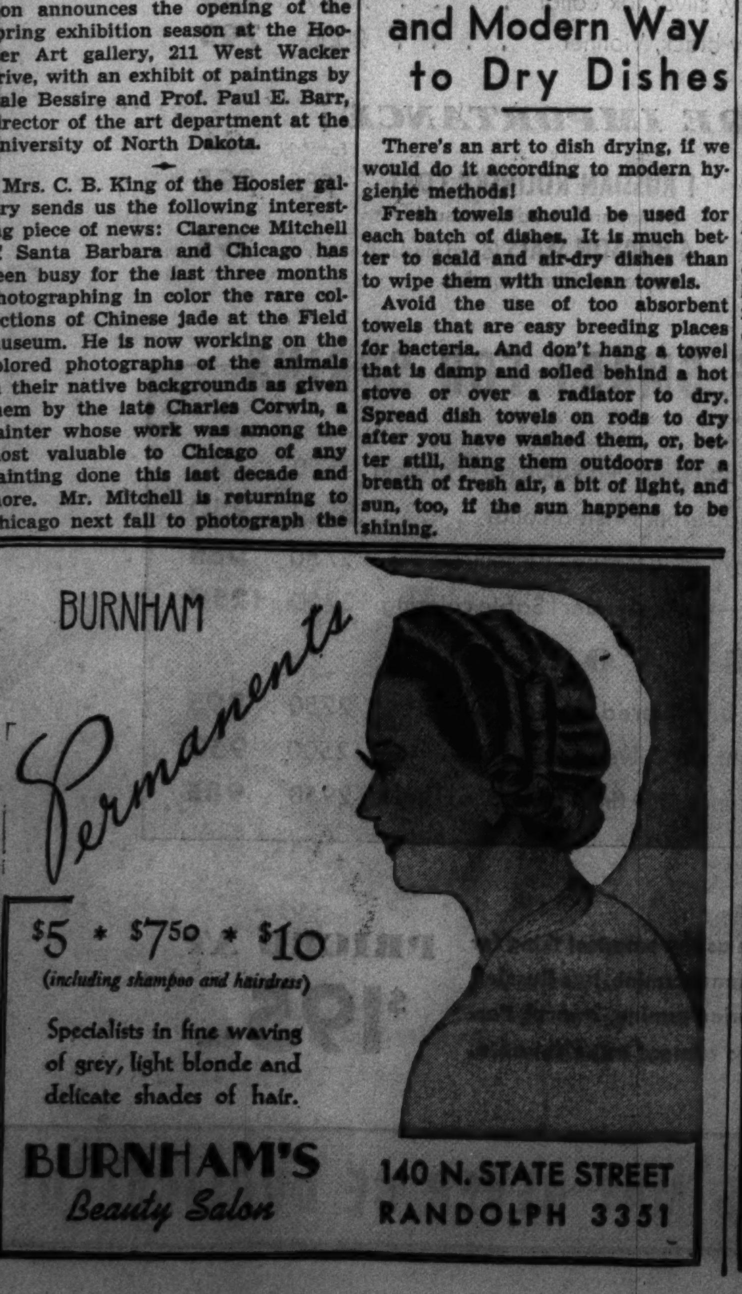
Many parties of the week centered about Miss Althea Tevander of Chicago, whose engagement to Neil C. Drake of Maplewood, N. J. and Chatham, Mass., was announced last week.

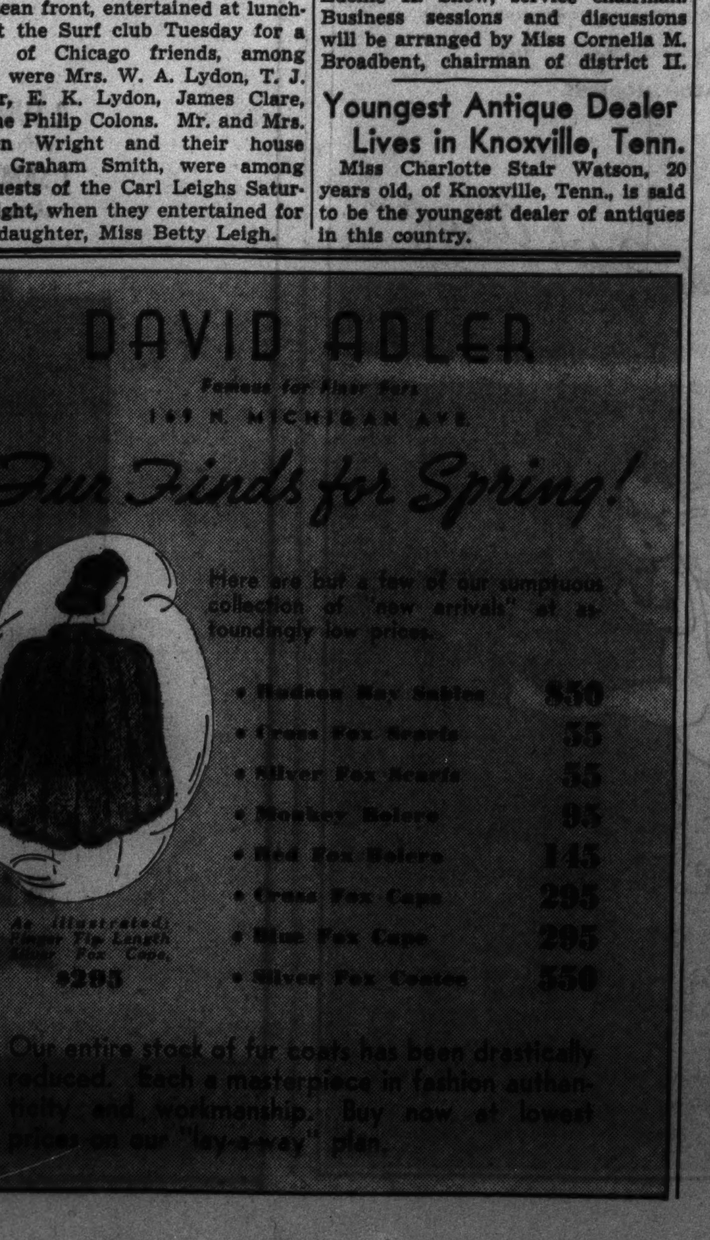
Prince Mikhail Alexandrovitch Goundoroff entertained Wednesday afternoon with a tea and cocktail party at the Colony club for Henry Bainbridge. Chicagoans there included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Havens Windsor Jr., and Mrs. Chadwick.

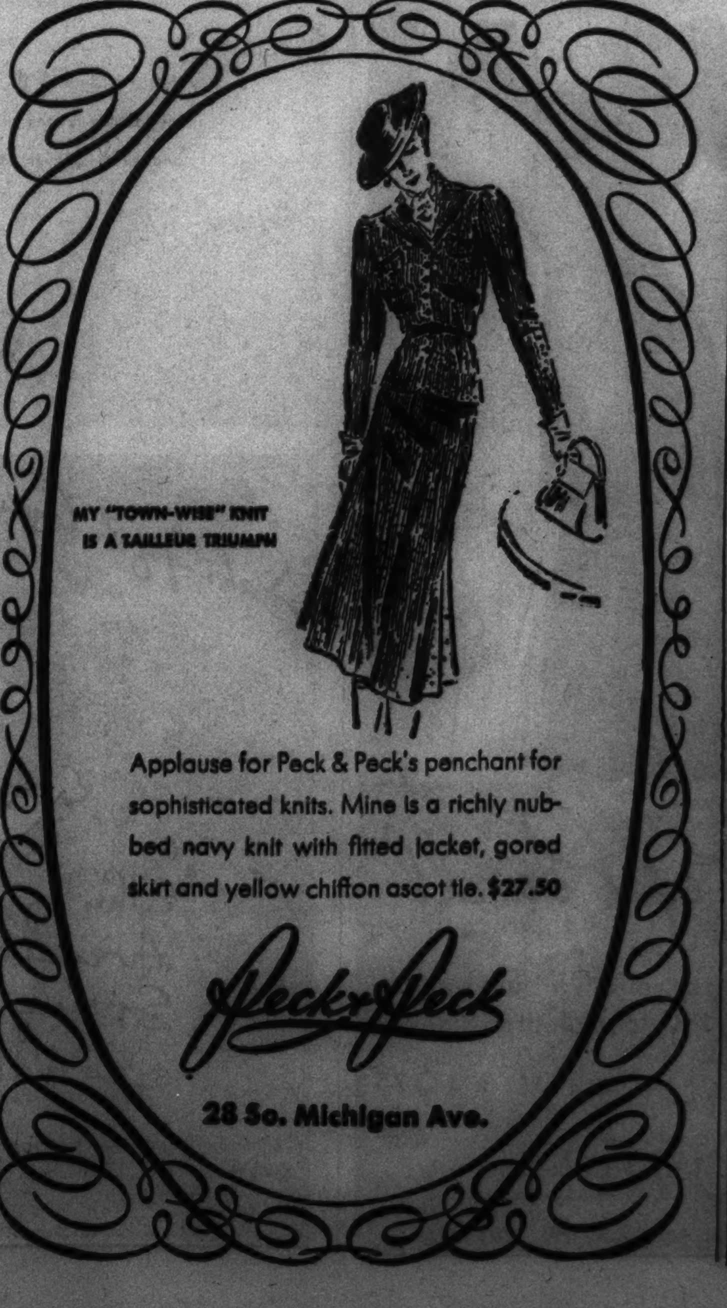
Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed has as her guests her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Peale Bent of Lake Forest, who were accompanied to Palm Beach by Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson Armour III. Mr. and Mrs. Armour have gone on to Havana, and from there are flying to Jamaica.

Mr. and Mrs. Bent won the first round robin tennis tourney they participated in at the Everglades club, taking thirty-eight games and losing ten. They received silver candy dishes as trophies from the club.

Chicagoans attending the Tombola luncheon at the Everglades club on Wednesday included Mrs. Marvin Humhitt, who entertained a dozen guests, Mrs. H. Stillson Hart, who had about the same number, and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan, who had nine. Others noted were Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock and Miss Emily Spear.







Dance to Earn Financial Aid for Magazine

The Chicago council of the League for Labor of Palestine will give a "Jewish Frontier" dance next Sunday evening at the Covenant club. Five chapters, the south side, west side, Rogers Park, Lake View, and Albany Park units, are participating in the event. Proceeds will be used to help finance the magazine, Jewish Frontier, sponsored by the league, which describes the upbuilding of the Jewish homeland in Palestine.

The league works through the Histadruth, a Palestine organization similar to the American Federation of Labor except that business men as well as workers are members. This association forms industrial and agricultural coöperatives, builds workers' villages and suburbs, gives financial assistance to immigrants, and provides health, educational and recreational facilities to the Arab as well as the Jewish community.

Arrangements for the dance are in the hands of Miss Mary Mintz, who has planned a program of oriental dances by V. F. Beliajus and Wennatta Grybas, and songs by Miss Helen Golden. Mrs. Enid Stein, good fellowship chairman, and Miss Ann Weinstein, ticket chairman, are assisting Miss Mintz.

The Chicago chapter of Hadassah, another organization dedicated to the development of Palestine as a Jewish homeland, will celebrate its 26th birthday in the form of a Purim party at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Hamilton hotel, 20 South Dearborn street. An amateur radio broadcast of music, dancing, and drama is planned. Mrs. Harry M. Fisher is president of the chapter.

Rabbi David Graubart of Humboldt Boulevard temple and Sam Golan will be the principal speakers. Mrs. Min Schaeffer is president of the club.

The Chicago Club for Crippled Children has completed plans for a new brace shop to be maintained in the Alfred C. Meyer Memorial building of the Michael Reese hospital. The shop will furnish braces and all kinds of orthopedic appliances to crippled children, as the organization has done through its present shop for six years.

At an open meeting and membership tea of the club tomorrow afternoon at the Palmer House a one act play, "Thursdays at Home," will be presented by several members under Mrs. J. J. Goldberg's direction.

Baskets will be furnished to underprivileged families at Passover through proceeds of a card party the Baby Provident club will give at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Copeland hotel. Refreshments will be served and there will be prizes. Mrs. Essie Davis is president.

At their meeting Tuesday the Jewish Big Sisters will have a program by Alta Warsawska, who formerly was associated with the Adolph Bolm and Monte Carlo ballets. Tea will follow this program at the Standard club.

Two parties will make this week a gay one for the junior auxiliary of the Douglas Park Day and Night nursery. The organization will hold a Purim shower and card party at 2:30 o'clock today at the Congress hotel, and on Wednesday evening will give a dinner-dance at the Chez Paree.

The Esther Natkin Junior Hadassah will open its annual fund raising drive with a theater party Wednesday evening at the Blackstone theater, where "The Great Barrington" is being shown. Proceeds will go to Junior Hadassah's projects in Palestine. Miss Ethel Slavick and Miss Yetta Rosen are co-chairmen of the drive.

The Max Hersch fratority, an auxiliary of the Daughters of Zion Infant Home and Day nursery, is calling its party this evening "The Dance of the Season." The event will take place at the Skyline Athletic club, 188 West Randolph street, withSamuel H. Levinson, president, and Miss Sarah Hersch in charge.

The newly chartered Family club, dedicated to the memory of Dr. Nathan W. Marshall and Pauline Rashkow, will give a card party Wednesday evening at 316 North Michigan avenue. There will be prizes and refreshments.

The Esther Clamage auxiliary will hold a combined meeting and membership tea at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday at Mandel Brothers' clubroom. Elsie Fein Clamage will review Bromfield's novel, "The Rains Came."

The Chicago Philanthropic Club Juniors will elect officers at a meeting at 3:15 o'clock today at the Congress hotel.

Tokio Geisha Girls Told to Eliminate All Frivolity

The 73,000 geishas, Japan's girl entertainers, in Tokio have been ordered to eliminate frivolity, both public and private, during the Chinese war crisis. They have been instructed to discard their loveliest costumes and don more somber garb in recognition of the seriousness of the situation.

WELCOMED NEXT MONTH

As the bride of Chauncey Keep Hutchins, the former Miss Polly Wardwell of Brookline, Mass., will be welcomed to Lake Forest in April. The Hutchins-Wardwell wedding took place in Brookline last month.

Maxim's Keeps Gayety in the Parisian Scene

By May Birkhead.

PARIS While Parisians think Paris has been dull and lifeless recently, the early spring American visitors seem to find the "ville lumière" wonderfully gay. Such an impression is readily acquired if one dines frequently at Maxim's, the one restaurant which always is crowded and retains its old time reputation of having celebrities to be pointed out to the newcomer. One night recently the duke and duchess of Windsor dined there with a party of American friends. They were the guests of Mrs. Amcotts Wilson [formerly Mrs. E. Clarence Jones of New York], who recently arrived from Palm Beach and is going on soon to Austria.

Also in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer. Both the duke and duchess were looking very fit. According to Parisian taste, the duchess justly belongs at the head of the list—published in a London fashion journal, if you please—of the dozen best dressed women in Europe. Her royal sister-in-law, the duchess of Kent, who has previously held this rank, was second on the list.

• • •

The former Mrs. Simpson's always perfect coiffure is beyond doubt the outstanding feature of her chic appearance. On a recent evening she wore two tiny diamond butterflies tucked away in her hair, one on each side. Some such ornamentation placed somewhere above the ears rather balances the extremely square outline of her face. She wore a simple black frock fitted to the neck, topped by a necklace, or rather a collar composed of a single row of diamonds fitted close to the neck and overlapping in front, a sort of spring bracelet for the neck. In the '90s we might have called it a "dog collar," except that it is worn at the base of the neck instead of under the chin. It was a gift from the duke just before the couple was to have started the canceled trip to America.

She also wore in the way of jewels, always so simple that they are scarcely noticed, a square emerald ring on each hand, two emerald and diamond bracelets on one arm, and on the other her favorite bangle bracelet composed of tiny crosses each of a different color on a diamond band. Her globular earrings were set in tiny diamonds.

• • •

Some weeks ago we mentioned that the duchess of Windsor was interested in renting for a year or two the Villa Leopolda, one of the most picturesque properties on the Riviera, built by the late King Leopold II. of Belgium. It seems that she still has a hankering for this villa with its magnificent terraced gardens on the Mediterranean, as it has everything they have been looking for, a beautiful swimming pool, many flower gardens and a profusion of the most beautiful trees. The villa itself is spacious and has a gorgeous view of the sea and mountains from every side. Some years ago it was acquired by the American architect, Ogden Codman, who is known for his excellent taste in decoration and his hobby for buying French chateaux, and doing them over to have all modern conveniences and, at the same time, restoring their old time atmosphere.

Mountains of Europe Hold Beauty for Summer Travelers

The Swiss Alps, "dreams of mountains in their sleep eternal." This scene of pastoral life at the threshold of a vast glacier realm was photographed above St. Moritz and is typical of the glories of earth and sky that await the visitor to Switzerland this coming season.

Subway Riding Real Pleasure in Old London

LONDON.—(AP)—London's subway—pardon, underground—has soft, upholstered seats. And many of the cars have arm rests.

You can smoke on the underground.

You can carry a bicycle on it.

You have to open and shut the doors yourself on many cars—with the result that trains often run with doors wide open.

Beautiful Chapels in Polish Cavern

The Wieliczka salt mines in southern Poland near Cracow, that country's ancient capital, contain a subterranean room large enough to accommodate 20,000 persons, all seated. A shaft nearly 1,000 feet deep, known as the Woodrow Wilson shaft, leads to this room as well as to several chapels with skilfully carved statues and altars—all in salt.

The chapels, dedicated to St. Anthony and to St. Kinga, are especially beautiful, say travelers who have seen them. The laborer-artists showed unusual feeling in carving the figures in St. Kinga's chapel because it was she, according to legend, who discovered the salt deposits through a miracle when on her way to be crowned queen of Poland.

There are elaborate scenes from the Last Supper and of Jesus changing water into wine at the marriage feast, and of Jesus with the wise men in the temple in St. Kinga's. Elaborate chandeliers of salt crystals have been devised for this chapel and most of the other chambers, and in them are electric bulbs which throw a glitteringly brilliant light against the grayish white walls of salt. Mass is said in St. Kinga's every Christmas Eve.

This chapel was completed in 1896 and St. Anthony's in 1898.

Danube's Blue Is Pure Gold to Prospector

BUDAPEST.—(AP)—It's blue to song writers and gray to the unimaginative, but t oHeinrich Paikert de Seproes the Danuabe is a stream of gold.

"Look!" he exclaims, holding up a test tube. "This is gold I have washed from Danube silt. It is 95 per cent pure."

Von Paikert has spent 30 years getting gold from the river. He interested Archduke Josef, and with his help got 400 grams of the metal from 900 cubic yards of silt.

Average of Three Liners a Day to Sail from North American Ports During June and July

SCHEDULES of liners sailing for Europe this summer, now completed, are the best indication of the large number of passengers planning to spend their vacations across the sea. According to a statement just issued by the Institute of Foreign Travel, with offices in New York, an average of more than three liners a day will leave the United States and Canadian Atlantic ports during the months of June and July. Bookings on all lines began to show evidence of a heavy trafic soon after Christmas, but from now on till May every day increases the number of those who have learned it is wise to book early. Prospective tourists are now communicating with their local steamship agencies all over the continent by paying the small deposit required for holding good accommodations on some liner sailing for Europe this summer.

It is pointed out in the statement issued by the institute that the passengers who buy their tickets of their local steamship agencies pay no more than those who secure them from the head offiies of the lines. It is often considered good policy to buy from agencies, as they are paid a commission on their sales, and consequently have a material interest in providing passengers with what is desired.

Of the nearly 200 sailings from Atlantic ports during the nine weeks of June and July, about 20 per cent leave from Montreal and Quebec, about 75 per cent leave from New York, while a few start from Boston and Baltimore. A total of forty-three ports in Europe already are listed to receive travelers from this continent during the peak months this summer. The Mediterranean route will include the Azores, Lisbon, Gibraltar, Marseilles, Villefranche, Genoa, Naples, Palermo, Trieste, Venice, Patras, Beirut, Jaffa, and Alexandria.

The Scandinavian and Baltic routes will include Bergen, Kristiansund, Stavanger, Oslo, Gothenburg, Copenhagen, Helsingfors, Libau, Tallinn, and Gdynia. The other continental ports include Hamburg, Bremen, Antwerp, Rotterdam, Havre, Boulogne, and Cherbourg. British ports will be Londonderry, Cobh, Belfast, Dublin, and Galway, in Ireland; Glasgow and Greenock, in Scotland, and Liverpool, Plymouth, Southampton, and London, in England. Under the flags of nine nations, including the United States, all of the above foreign ports will welcome travelers from this side this summer.

Except for those who have crossed the Atlantic many times and have acquired preferences for particular lines or liners, and a few who follow the recommendations of friends, the large majority of those who go to Europe will travel by the liner which best suits their convenience, a selection often made in cooperation with the local steamship agency. This is usually commended, as in this way the tourist who is new to trans-Atlantic travel has the opportunity to experience the pleasures of ocean voyages under different flags and thus learn of those that please him best.

Once in Europe, ships and ports will be forgotten in the thrill of seeing old world life and events in a vast variety of

A HISTORIC CHATEAU OF THE LOIRE

More or Less Personal

Charles Kozminski, general western passenger agent of the Red Star Line, was host on Thursday at a luncheon at the Palmer house in honor of John J. Dwyer, passenger trafic manager of the line. Mr. Dwyer, who has just visited many middle western cities, said he was pleased with the travel business coming out of this territory. He pointed out that, contrary to general opinion, both the majority control and operations of the Red Star Line rest entirely in this country.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Trafic club last Monday Miss Allanora Shantz, passenger agent of the New York Central lines, was elected president; Miss Eleanor Luebker, first vice president.

Travelogues of the week: "Beautiful Hawaii" is the title of the illustrated talk to be given at the Fair store Friday at 11 a. m. by R. A. FOREIGN TRAVEL

Sweden Never Fails to Lure the Traveler

By Mason Warner.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden.—The constant plaint of the foreign tourist in Sweden is that he has not sufficient time to go to all the places he would like to see. Upon arriving in Stockholm for the fourth time in ten years and having toured Sweden for weeks on previous occasions there remained so many intriguing regions to be visited that I found making up a two weeks' itinerary difficult.

I was tempted to travel again through Scania, the southernmost province, with its abundance of archæological and historical antiquities. Some scientists are of the opinion that here it was that man first found permanent abode after the glacial age, as it was the first northern area in which the long shining summer sun melted the ice. Old fortresses, ruins of castles and medieval chateaux freckle the fair face of the country. Stone age sepulchres delight the archæologist, and Skane's imposing royal tomb at Kivik dates from the same period as does Tutankhamen's tomb, about 1350 B. C.

The Swedes are an ancient race, having lived in and ruled their country for 5,000 years. They traded with European, African and Asiatic nations 3,000 years ago. The kingdom of Sweden is the oldest political unit in Europe, with a continuous history of 1,200 years.

One need not go to the orient to see colorful native costumes. The province of Dalecarlia puts on no mean show in the way of gorgeous shades and vivid tints. Many old customs have given way to modern progress, but the women of Dalecarlia cling to their picturesque 18th century styles, and when they assemble for a holiday celebration or a wedding party they are a pleasing picture.

Another claim to the attention of the tourist is the old copper mine at Falun, the chief town of Dalecarlia, or Dalarne, as the Swedes call it. The mine was discovered nearly 1,000 year ago, but it was not until the year 1284 that a company was formed to bring out the copper in commercial quantities. That company is still in existence and with its unbroken record of more than 700 years in business is now the oldest corporation in the world.

Anders Zorn, painter, etcher and sculptor, was a citizen of Dalecarlia. He was born at Mora and lies buried in a churchyard there since his death in 1920, after having gained worldwide fame.

The province of Varmland attracts many tourists because it is the scene of Selma Lagerlof's "Gosta Berling's Saga." The patriarchal system of which she wrote has given way to modern industrial organization, and several of the old mansions have been transformed into hotels, but her readers love to wander around the Fryken lakes where the incidents of the "Saga" occurred.

To write about Stockholm at length would be repetitious. Suffice it to It was a truthful sloganeer who say that the first-time visitor feels it his duty to inspect the famous Town Hall, the Royal Palace, the Royal Opera building, the House of the Nobility, the Engelbrekt church [16th century], Storykan [the Great Church, 13th century], and the National Gallery of Art. In this case duty is its own reward and it is generous.

Drottningham palace, on an island in Lake Malaren, is less than an hour's ride on a brisk and tidy little white steamer. The palace is one of the royal summer residences and is reminiscent of Versailles. Near the palace is the Drottningham theater, built in 1764, the only complete theater of the period retaining intact its original interior and exterior. The palace is open to the public when the royal family is absent.

The most magnificent historical castle in all Sweden, a country of many castles, is Gripsholm, on a small island in Lake Malaren, three hours' run from Stockholm. The original fortress dates from the 14th century, but additions were made afterwards, and Gripsholm is a fine example of medieval architecture. Here, too, there is a little theater, but the gallery of 2,000 historical portraits is where the visitor lingers to study pictures that present an amazing variety of human physiognomies.

I went to Visby from Stockholm by boat one night and returned the next. christened Visby "the Town of Ruins and Roses" and the isle of Gotland, "the Pearl of the Baltic." Visby was once the headquarters of Viking bands, when the Norse raiders were attacking and pillaging other peoples. Later it became the center of the powerful Hanseatic league that once controled the commerce of the western world. Visby was strongly fortified and the old city walls and towers still stand.

The Voice of the Traveler

GREEN RIVER GORGE.

To the Travel Editor.—March 3.—Will you come with me a minute and look over the bridge railing into Green river gorge near Mount Rainier National park?

The first thing that impresses one is the great distance down to the water. In reality it is about 200 feet, but in looking down one loses the sense of distance. There are trees clinging to the sides of the gorge from the water's edge to the top. By looking down from directly above them the cedar boughs give a beautiful green, lacy effect.

Almost directly in front and above us, where the canyon makes a bend, is a small stream which dashes over the cliff and forms a beautiful falls for over a hundred feet, then rushes madly down the remaining part of the cliff to join the river below. A little to our left is another stream which follows a more leisurely course and joins the river by leaping down a series of cascades, or rapids.

When one watches this busy river at work for a time one can then realize how it was possible for it to carve such a gorge out of solid rock. The main rock strata appears to be limestone, as the stream has worn or carved many grottoes in the almost solid rock wall.

These form a sort of fairy glen with a great, thronelike rock standing in the middle of the river. A beautiful grotto is carved in its base. Almost surrounding the throne are other grottoes, some secluded and shady, which one may imagine as the fairies' private bathing pools. If our fairy queen wishes a shower instead, a step or two to the right or left will provide that luxury.

Wherever the stream has a possible chance to rest it lies in deep, green pools from which the river gets its name.

Swiss Country Delightful to the Motorist

By Sydney A. Clark.

Last summer my brother and I rolled on pneumatic tires through 5,000 miles of Europe's most stunning scenery, whose center and symbol is Switzerland. We found wherever we went in the surrounding countries we were continually turning our motor's nose back in the direction of this paradise of assorted marvels and my diary now reveals we actually spent three times as many days within the borders of the confederation as we originally planned.

Many were the elements that combined to form this country into an irresistible holiday magnet to our humming motor: mountains that are the talk of the world, valleys like the Emmenthal and the Val d'Hérens that are as individual as the cheese and the sand pillars for which they are respectively known, lakes as blue as the gentians on the Alpine pastures, falls that roar like a Brazilian resaca and others so tenuous that they dissolve into impalpable "water-dust" while falling, a score of mountain passes, each vying with the others in spectacular beauty, a pervading cleanliness that has long made Switzerland a legend and a model, cool terraces of Gasthof, auberge and albergo where beer, aperitif or vino may be sipped "in three languages" within the same country, the gayeties of casino, kursaal and dancing café beneath lanterns and stars, the virtuosities of unseen yodlers heard faintly from distant alm, the tuneful "hallali" of the big post buses recalling the postilion's horn of a departed century.

These and other facets of Switzerland's composite brilliance had been familiar to me for years, most of them from boyhood, yet the potency of their charm was unabated. I have mentioned the motor, however, humming as eagerly as my own excited spirit, and this must have sensed some special magnetism suited to its talents. It did, indeed. Its alien nostrils whenever they drew near to a Swiss frontier twitched with ecstasy as they whiffed the fragrance of inexpensive gasoline.

This is a practical point, earthy if you like, but the American motorist and his machine simply cannot outgrow their passion for saving even a cent or two per gallon on fuel. In Switzerland, as against its neighbor countries, one saves ten, twenty, THIRTY cents per gallon.

Oil, tenderly served to the motor almost by the spoonful, as if it were choice table oil from Lucca, cost us sometimes as high as a dollar a quart! How natural then that I should burst into italics when presenting the joyous fact that Switzerland does something practical to ease a burden so disheartening to motorist morale.

To be specific it grants to the foreign holiday motorist a 30 per cent concession on its regular gasoline prices, which are already low by European standards of comparison. The visitor must remain in the country three days or more and the reduction is applicable up to 300 litres [sixty-six gallons] which should take almost any car a thousand miles.

I think this is one of the smartest moves any nation in Europe has yet made in the competitive bidding for tourist favor. With such a friendly fillip to one's travel budget, how doubly glorious does everything in Switzerland seem! Our meandering tires cut the map of the confederation into metaphorical ribbons, entering from France [Delle-Porrentruy] and leaving for Austria [Martinsbruck-Landeck]; entering again from Italy [Como-Chiasso] and leaving for France [Vallorbe]; entering still again at the double village of St. Gingolph on the lake of Geneva, a village which splits its allegiance squarely between France and Switzerland, and bisecting the country to emerge at Constance in Germany.

This criss-cross technique gave us in a short space of time, as no other form of locomotion could have done, roadside touch with almost every type of enchantment that this small wonderland offers to the holiday minded. We turned back the centuries in such slumbrous old towns as bilingual Morat, perching on a lovely eminence above its own lake, and Avenches, a hill town which, as capital of the Helvetii, loomed large on the maps of Roman conquerors.

We delighted in wild strawberries and cream in Gruyères, that ancient castled town whose symbol is the crane [grue]. Leaping across language lines as easily as Remus leaped his brother's wall, we knotted together by quick motor jumps a chain of Swiss cities from Geneva to Zürich, from Lugano to Basle.

We swam in half the lakes of Switzerland, from the supercivilized plage of Montreux to the gorgeous Wallensee. On Switzerland's dependable roads we negotiated stupendous mountain passes by the dozen, or at least the half dozen, voting the Klausen pass from Altdorf to Glarus the grandest of all, until we had done the Lenzerheide-Julier pass, the San Bernardino from Grisons to Ticino, and most of the others. By that time a decision became impossible.

We drove up several superlative valleys to culs-de sac where the Alps said: Thus far shall ye roll and no farther! One such drive brought us to Saas-Balen whence we climbed on foot to that lofty miracle village of Saas-Fee, which depends on muleback transportation to supply the needs of thousands of tourists every summer.

The infinite varieties that make up Switzerland seen from train, funicular, and lake boat had been accumulating in my mental treasure chest of travel for more years than I like to admit, from the era, in fact, when cube root and Latin verbs blurred my vision of Montreux and Lucerne for weeks together, but the recent experience of motor travel has woven with threads of intimacy a bright tapestry of the whole land.

Roads feel the heartbeat of any country. They climb over mountains instead of boring through them. They lead from door to door of homes whose occupants have never been in a train, or perhaps never seen one. They let you hear the bucolic symphony of cowbells and smell the fragrance of wild flowers.

Big brother to the private car in Switzerland is the Postal Motor coach, a great yellow chariot which is to me one of the most glamorous articles on four wheels. A large fleet of these sleek monsters covers forty-five postal routes in Switzerland and about half of them I have taken. Their motors, their brakes and their drivers are specialists in mountain roads and they scale incredible heights even when snow twelve or fifteen feet deep is on both sides.

A PEACEFUL SWISS VILLAGE

aspects. The great international exhibitions at Glasgow, Oslo, and Rome will attract many, but of recent years Europeans have expressed surprise at the large numbers of visitors who go to places which have not been famous as resorts in the past. "Off the beaten track" is becoming a well worn pathway.

Killarney still has its lovers, but so have the Aran Islands. Stratford-on-Avon yet welcomes thousands to Shakespeare's shrine, but other thousands go south to wander the country lanes of old Wessex or journey north to the land of Burns, Barrie, and Stevenson. Paris is never passed by, but thousands wander off into the castled land of the Touraine or the villages of Brittany. Berlin and Munich are the rendezvous of great numbers, but in the little villages of the Bavarian highlands American visitors can be seen every day.

The beautiful northern lands, from the fjords of Norway to the attractive cities of Copenhagen and Stockholm, welcome thousands today where only hundreds went a decade ago. Indeed, the entire Balkan region from Finland to Poland is alive with tourists from the United States and Canada throughout the summer. The Mediterranean still keeps its lure, a lure which has existed for two thousand years, and from Gibraltar to Rome and Greece eyes used to the sights of Chicago and New York are daily feasting on eternal cities and lovely villages which have kept unspoiled the beauty of long bygone ages.

By the quiet canals and picturesque bulb fields of Holland, high among the snowy giants of the Alps, and in the mysteriously beautiful forests haunted with old legends in Austria and Czechoslovakia the travelers from overseas will be found enchanted. No land closes its gates to them. All are glad to see them and because they want to see them not one year but many years they treat them with a hospitality which seldom fails in its warmth and sincerity.

Spring Beckons Cruise Ships to Mediterranean

Cruise and passenger travel to the Mediterranean promises to set an excellent record for March, April, and May. Spring goes out to meet the American visitor to the French and Italian Rivieras, and Egypt, with its brilliant sunshine and balmy days, offers a taste of summer. Luxor, center of antiquity, boasts a maximum March temperature of 82 degrees, and at Assuan, where one may gaze down on the black mirror of the Nile, the thermometer stands at 84.

In Rome the opera season continues until the first week in May. This is true, too, of Naples.

The bay of Naples is never more beautiful than in the spring when it is radiant with early foliage. The whole peninsula is a country of contrasts. A few hours from warm, seaside Portofino, for example, is Sestriere, where there is skiing as late as April.

Complete spring tours visiting Naples, Pompeii, Amalfi, Sorrento, Capri, Rome, Orvieto, Assisi, Perugia, Siena, Florence, Venice, Milan, Lake Como, Lake Lugano, and Lake Maggiore may be made in as short a time as twenty-five days. Itineraries can be made to suit individual desires, with costs varying to the type of service selected and the class of accommodations required.

Beware the Shark!

"Watson and the Shark," by John Singleton Copley.) (Courtesy of Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.)

Foreword

DO SHARKS BITE MEN? This question, which has been argued for centuries, is brought to the front anew by recent disasters at sea. One of these occurred when the Greek freighter Tzenny Chandris sank off Cape Hatteras, leaving a crew of twenty-nine to the mercy of the waves—and the sharks. When a navy flyer spotted fif[illegible] of the crew the next day they were clinging to floating wreckage and taking turns splashing [illegible] in an attempt to frighten the sharks away. Pigs and poultry that had fallen into the sea [illegible] the freighter apparently had attracted the sharks, and survivors stated that more than one of the seven sailors who lost their lives had fallen victims of them.

Another incident was the discovery in Samoa last Jan. 15 of a man's shirt and human bones in the stomach of a shark [illegible] near the [illegible] where the Samoan Clipper plane had exploded and sunk with Captain [illegible] and his crew of six a few days before.

All of which intensifies curiosity as to whether sharks are man-eaters or whether the deep-sea authorities, such as Dr. William Beebe, are justified in their [illegible] attitude toward these reputed [illegible] of the deep. The writer of this story set himself the task of [illegible] this question and of trying to arrive at some factual conclusion. This article is the result of his investigations.

Swiftly and Silently He Scours the Seas

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

THE PAINTING reproduced above should give pause to any one who refuses to believe in man-eating sharks. For it is an illustration depicting an incident that actually happened (probably not quite so dramatically as the artist shows it) about the year 1750 in Havana, Cuba.

● The artist was John Singleton Copley of Boston, and he painted it in 1778 with a realism that was sensational in his day. He had met one Brook Watson, a distinguished looking man who was later to become lord mayor of London, on a sea voyage four years earlier, and, seeing the Englishman had a wooden leg, had induced him to tell the story of how his misfortune had come about.

● Watson responded with the hair-raising tale of how he was swimming in Havana harbor at the age of 14, when suddenly he was attacked by a shark which he judged to be about twenty feet long. As he attempted to swim ashore the savage monster seized him by the right leg and bit it off near the knee. As a boat hastened to Watson's rescue the shark returned to devour him and was thwarted barely in time by the rescuers, who lunged at the attacker with a boat hook and frantically pulled the bleeding boy into the boat.

● The truth of this story certainly was not questioned by Copley, who spent years of his life depicting it in the above and two other dramatic paintings, and his acceptance, added to the known fact of Watson's missing leg, gives the incident a fair authenticity.

● Yet there are many who have had considerable experience in shark-infested waters and who still declare sharks both timid and harmless to man. In fact, there seems to be a wide variance of opinion concerning sharks and a general lack of definite knowledge on the subject.

● This is probably due partly to the many different kinds of sharks, ranging from the whale shark, which sometimes attains a length of more than sixty feet, to the little dogfish and from the vicious flesh-eating white shark to the harmless and toothless basker, which strains all its food through a brush that serves as a sieve. It is due also, no doubt, to the unlikelihood of a swimmer's being able to tell for certain just what sort of a creature is attacking him from under the water when these rare attacks do occur. The fallibility of shark-bite witnesses, for instance, had been demonstrated by the undersea movie camera, which a few years ago disproved the well established theory that a shark has to turn over on its back in order to bite.

● So in plumbing the "shark bites man" [illegible] to its bottom we need to examine the evidence with a critical eye and to beware of any testimony not based on first-hand knowledge.

● Let's begin with Dr. William Beebe, who holds the world's record for deep diving and probably has more first-hand knowledge of undersea life than any other authority. He says in describing a diving adventure at Cocos Island:

● "I anchored the flat-bottomed diving boat fifty feet off shore in the quietest spot I could find and then submerged in about thirty feet. Visibility was remarkably good and I could see clearly for one hundred feet in every direction. . . . The swell was heavy and the end of my swaying ladder reached alternately from twenty to within ten feet of the bottom as the boat rose and fell on the surface. I knew my leaping ability in this gravitationless medium, so I did not hesitate to drop from the lowest rung at the moment when it was nearest the coral floor. I landed on a table of lava and was at once the center of a school of great grazing fish, triggers, parrots, and surgeons, the largest I had yet seen, with now and then a unit of swift carangids, gleaming like purplish jade as they shot past.

Killer or Coward, He Has No Friends

● "Out of the blue distance there materialized a [illegible] length of white-finned shark, then another and another, until sixteen were milling slowly about between me and the surface. This was a new habit and an unexpected [illegible] of these fish, and I [illegible] the ladder looked very long and [illegible] above me. . . . The sharks, however, showed no more than curiosity. . . .

● "[illegible] distance I could see a very beautiful sea fan, and started for it. . . . After much effort I reached it and hung on to it while I floated in mid-water, waved about by the current like a rag on a bush. Twisting around, I saw a tiger shark weaving slowly toward me. I would gladly have given my place to any eager scientist in the world, or relinquished it to one of the thousands of men with more courage than I possess. But at least I was not bothered with a choice of action—there could be no thought of escape by flight. I crouched close to my wisp of sea fan, although hiding behind it was as effective as an attempt (Continued on page four.)

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

Cary Grant, Roland Young, and Constance Bennett (left to right) in a scene from "Topper," the play they all thought would ruin them, but which proved a success.

Both Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert were fretful about the parts they enact here, but the play, "It Happened One Night," was a record-breaker.

Fame Often Comes in Part Player Had Scorned

As Story Pickers Stars Usually Are Flops

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood, Cal.

THERE ARE many things on which the bigwigs and the directors of Hollywood will disagree, but there is one point on which they all coincide. That is that the stars and players of Hollywood are the worst of all possible judges when it comes to selecting a story for themselves. Understanding that, you can understand a lot of the bitter fights that go on behind the scenes out here, for the stars all insist on having final rejection of a script, and the studios just as vigorously refuse to permit it.

Cary Grant and Irene Dunne, for instance, believed that "The Awful Truth" would ruin both of them. It was the finest thing either of them ever had achieved. Claudette Colbert was so certain that "It Happened One Night" was a flop that she almost refused to attend the preview of the picture that was to win her the Academy award. Day after day the Hollywood stars give evidence that they don't know a good rôle when they see one in script form. "Topper," which spurted Cary Grant, Constance Bennett, and Roland Young to movie prestige, was marked by more company rows than accord. Grant was certain that the picture was slated for failure. So thought Miss Bennett and Roland Young. It developed into one of the laugh toppers of the industry. Wallace Beery was so convinced that "Bad Man of Brimstone" had failed to hit the mark that he was ready to enter into negotiations with the studio to liquidate his contract.

Fred Astaire in his first picture offered the RKO studio money to buy up the prints, so convinced was he that his initial venture had been a miserable flop. He actually fled to England so that he would not be on hand to read the press reviews. He got rave notices and had to be recalled from England by cable. Maurice Chevalier's exit from pictures can be traced back to his insistence that he wouldn't work with Jeanette MacDonald. If he had gone along in that partnership he might be a box office favorite today.

So there is no doubt about it—performers can't judge stories or even their own performances. One reason is that when a performer reads a story in script form he looks only at the left edge of it, which indicates how many lines he will speak. If the number of lines is satisfactory his or her sympathy is half won, for actors from the dawn of the theater have counted their lines, often mistaking quantity for quality. Another reason is that a player can't visualize a typewritten script in playing form. He can't project his imagination beyond the printed page and imagine what situations will emerge under deft direction.

• • •

The stars can't even gauge a picture while it is being filmed. During the making of "Mannequin," directed by veteran Frank Borzage, I often visited the set to see Joan Crawford and Spencer Tracy. The two stars confided to me that the picture looked like a flop. Yet when it was cut into shape "Mannequin" developed into the first solid box office hit that Joan had made in at least a year. Conversely, the stories and rôles which she insisted on playing proved fatal. It was Joan who insisted on playing "The Gorgeous Hussy." She thought that the character of the girl would win her a new following. The picture was a dreary flop. Then Miss Crawford picked from a series of submitted scripts the manuscript of "The Bride Wore Red." I liked her performance in that picture, but the fans didn't, and they are the most potent jury of all. "Bride Wore Red" was flop No. 2.

The star system of Hollywood creates this situation, of course. Once an actor or actress develops conspicuous box office strength, he or she can dictate practically the terms of employment. Woe betide the director when he ruffles the feelings of a big star, for if the star decides not to play ball with the director the businesslike solution is for the studio to remove the director and substitute another one.

The star, from his viewpoint, is only trying to protect himself, and he does not realize that the very thing he insists upon as protection is destruction. Then his agent often is a trouble maker, and star plus agent can raise havoc at a studio.

You might think that "Mutiny on the Bounty" would have been so impressive in script form that the stars tumbled over each other in their anxiety to get a part in it. It may surprise you to learn that the exact opposite was the case. Both Charles Laughton and Clark Gable flatly refused the rôles.

Laughton, whose portrayal of Captain Bligh was one of the fine documents of celluloid, stormed and carried on when notified that he was to be given that part. He carried his fight to the biggest executives of M-G-M and tried in every way to be released from a part which he was sure would hurt his career in movies. Finally Laughton even went directly to Director Frank Lloyd, a fellow Britisher, and pleaded to be released. "Frank, you must let me out of this," said Laughton frantically. "I don't look like a sailor, I don't act like a sailor; the part is insane; modern audiences don't care whether or not such a scurrilous character ever lived." Lloyd tried to point out that the rôle had meat in it, but Laughton was inconsolable. As a last resort Laughton argued: "I get violently nauseated on any type of boat. I must turn it down. I can't act the part of a captain. I'll throw up my contract."

That is how positive Laughton was that the part was bad and that the picture would be bad. Clark Gable was equally emphatic in his refusal to play Mr. Christian. "It lacks conviction; the audience will laugh at me," said Gable. He went to the big M-G-M execs to get a release from the part. Yet it was in the part of Captain Bligh that Laughton scored his outstanding success, and Mr. Christian certainly added to the luster of Clark Gable. None were so surprised as the actors.

• • •

Laughton wasn't fooling about his tendency to seasickness. First time out on the big Laughton became violently ill. Perhaps this was fortunate, for while Laughton was stretched out on the deck he hit upon something that added to the picture and perhaps made his characterization so moving. Flat on his back and very ill, Laughton suddenly let out a violent exclamation. "Frank, I've got it, I've got it!" he yelled. "Got what?" asked Lloyd doubtfully. "I was watching you just now, Frank," said Laughton, sitting upright, "and noticing how you cocked your eyes up to the mast of the boat. It's your eyebrows that give you that sailor expression. Look here, I have no eyebrows, just a fuzz. Get me eyebrows like yours, big, bushy eyebrows, and I'll be able to play Bligh."

That's exactly what was done. The cameraman made pictures of Director Lloyd's eyebrows, and the wig department made up a false pair, which Laughton pasted on. From then on he was Captain Bligh.

Gable, who is a swell scout, used to stand on deck plainly unhappy and disapproving. Finally, after a series of exasperating delays, Lloyd and Gable went ashore at Catalina to have a few drinks. "You look tired, Frank," said Gable. "I am tired," wearily replied Lloyd. "I guess I've upset you some, haven't I?" asked Gable. "Well, Clark, to tell the truth, your attitude has upset me," confessed the director. "Well, from now I'll do whatever you ask me to do, Frank," said Gable. "I won't guarantee you that I'll believe what we're doing, but I'll do it." Lloyd says that Gable's sympathies are so keen that if you appeal to them he'll do anything.

The point I'm making, however, is that Laughton and Gable didn't like "Mutiny on the Bounty" in script form, but on celluloid it was a smash hit and provided outstanding individual successes for them. Performers fight for parts and fight against other parts, but few of them know what is best for them.

Paul Muni, after a series of great successes, wanted to go comic. The studio begged him to sidestep it. He insisted. "Hi, Nellie" was the result, an egg layer. Jimmy Cagney, anxious to get away from tough guy rôles, tried to become a hoofer in "Something to Sing About." It flopped. Robert Montgomery, cocktail-shaking smarty of films, rebelled and asked to be assigned to "Night Must Fall." It flopped. Myrna Loy and Clark Gable essayed "Parnell." It flopped. In each instance the performers fought to get these rôles, and in each instance the performers gave a good performance, but what they forgot was that moving picture fans want their favorites only in the rôles to which they've become accustomed. In fighting for parts the players forget the fans and the box office, which can't be forgotten.

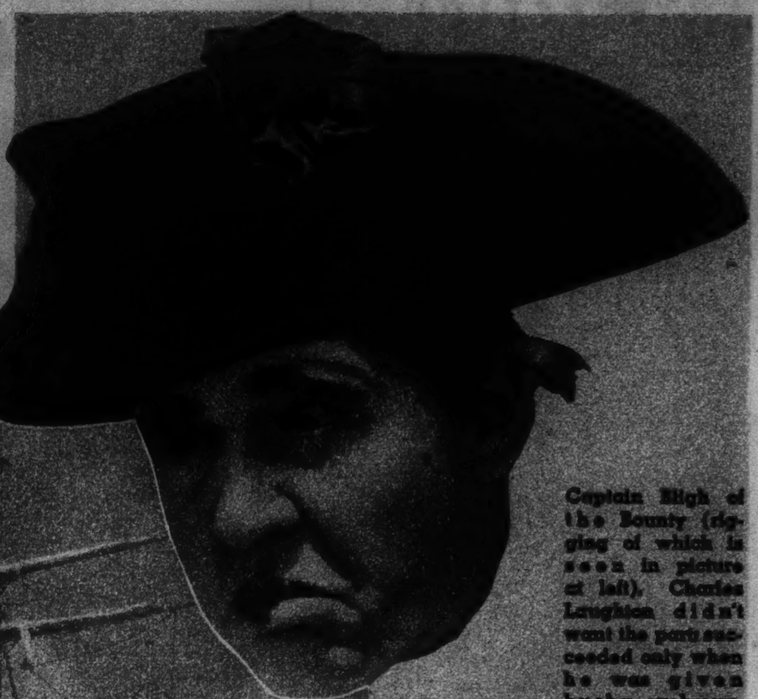
Andrea Leeds, who scored so solidly in "Stage Door," is that rarest of performers. She had set her heart on getting that rôle. Bill Grady, then at RKO, agreed with her that she could play it to the hilt. For a month the battle went on, but she got it, and spurted to fame on the strength of it. She is the exception to the rule, however.

• • •

Much has been written about Bette Davis and the fight she made to get the feminine lead in "Of Human Bondage." I asked her about it, and she told me the stories were not so. "They didn't even let me look at the daily rushes on the picture," she pointed out. "They knew that if I saw myself I would have quit, or at least insisted on having the part toned down so that it would be more sympathetic."

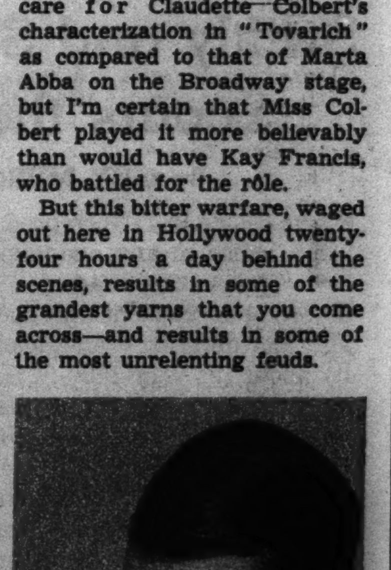
So the next time you read that a star is fighting a studio because they've given somebody else a rôle which he or she craved, don't jump to the conclusion that the star is being discriminated against. More likely than not the star wants something which will ruin him at the box office. I didn't particularly care for Claudette Colbert's characterization in "Tovarich" as compared to that of Marta Abba on the Broadway stage, but I'm certain that Miss Colbert played it more believably than would have Kay Francis, who battled for the rôle.

But this bitter warfare, waged out here in Hollywood twenty-four hours a day behind the scenes, results in some of the grandest yarns that you come across—and results in some of the most unrelenting feuds.



Captain Bligh of the Bounty (rigging of which is seen in picture at left). Charles Laughton didn't want the part; succeeded only when he was given bushy eyebrows.

"Mutiny on the Bounty" looked like a suicide play to Clark Gable, seen here as Mr. Christian, but after protests he gave in and played himself into a new high rating.



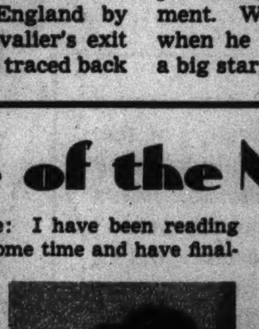
Maurice Chevalier is out of American films, but the girl in this picture, against whom he is said to have had a prejudice—Jeanette MacDonald—is at the crest of her career.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mae Tinée: I have been reading your column for some time and have finally decided to write and ask for some information. A few months ago I saw "Lost Horizon" and enjoyed it very much. I wonder if you could tell me something about Jane Wyatt and if you could possibly print a picture of her. I would appreciate it very much.

Very sincerely,
ELAINE WEBER.



JANE WYATT
Appeared in "Lost Horizon."

Editor's note: Glad to oblige. Miss Wyatt was born in New York City, Aug. 10, 1913. She was educated at Miss Chapin's school and Barnard college. Appeared in many stage productions before going into pictures. She's married to Edgar B. Ward.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have a kick to make. May I? Well, do you remember "It Happened One Night" and "My Man Godfrey"? Of course; who doesn't? They were so gay and new and fresh (O, so fresh!) then. And we went time and time again and laughed ourselves sick. We were delighted when they began to make more on the same order.

But here's my kick: It's being overdone. This flock of dizzy comedies is beginning to get sickening. I realized it fully for the first time when our dashing Mr. Flynn was capering around wrapped up in blankets in "The Perfect Specimen." Now, I understand, good old reliable Katie Hepburn has gone whimsy in "Bringing Up Baby."

And then (though this isn't exactly the movies themselves) look what Charlie McCarthy has done to (heaven help us!) Nelson Eddy!

Maybe I'm just a crank, but I think it's getting unbearably silly. When we get something we can sink our teeth into, like "Emile Zola," it's a distinct relief.

Would it be too much to ask if you would print this and find out what others think? Or am I being presumptuous? Anyway, thanks for your time. Sincerely,

WILLEMINA PHILLIPS.
Kewanee, Ill.

Editor's note: My time is all your own—and now we'll see what "others think."

Dear Mae Tinée: I have enjoyed your column a long time and find it impossible to stay silent any longer.

Quite some time ago a person said that the Mauch twins could not act, that the prince did not gawk enough at the way the pauper lived, and likewise the pauper. If that person can, at the age they are and with the amount of training they have had, stand in front of a camera and drool at the mouth at a dish of fruit they have seen all their lives, he has my hearty congratulations. Of course, you say, that is the art of acting, but you must remember they are only boys.

I would be most gratified if you would tell me when they were born and give a short description of them. Thanks loads.

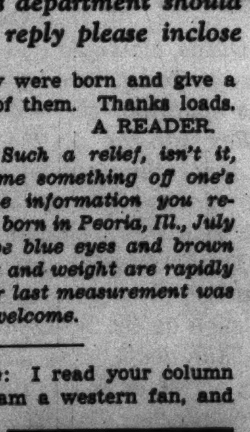
A READER.

Editor's note: Such a relief, isn't it, to get a bothersome something off one's chest? Here's the information you request: They were born in Peoria, Ill., July 6, 1924. They have blue eyes and brown hair. Their height and weight are rapidly changing, but their last measurement was five feet. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: I read your column every Sunday. I am a western fan, and Ken Maynard is one of my favorites. Would it be possible for you to print a picture of him and tell me a little about him? Is Kermit Maynard his brother?

Thanking you, I am yours very truly,

DOROTHY HUNT.



KEN MAYNARD
Not a brother of Kermit.

Editor's note: Here's a picture and some jottings about Ken. He was born in Mission, Tex., July 21, 1895. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 180 pounds, and has black hair and gray eyes. Graduated from Virginia Military institute. He is not Kermit Maynard's brother. Ride horseback, Dorothy? I bet you do.

Dear Miss Tinée: Please let me know at once the cast of that old movie, "The Royal Family of Broadway." Very truly yours,

VICTOR STERNFIELD.
Peoria, Ill.

Editor's note: The cast is as follows:

Julie Cavendish	Ina Claire
Tony Cavendish	Fredric March
Gwen Cavendish	Mary Brian
Fanny Cavendish	Henrietta Crosman
Perry Stewart	Charles Starrett

The Strange Case of Mollie Fancher

Invalid for Half a Century, She Baffled Science with Her Mental Feats

Mollie Fancher at 16—a year before she began her fifty years as an enigmatic invalid.

By CHARLES COLLINS

THE STRANGE case of Mollie Fancher, often called "the Brooklyn Enigma," has been almost completely forgotten, but it was a matter of national curiosity during the stretch of years between the Civil and the Spanish-American wars. Physicians, clergymen, and journalists made a hobby of it; thousands of people went on pilgrimages to Mollie's doorsteps; and P. T. Barnum wanted to take her on circus tours in a gold-plated bed. If she were alive today she would be equally famous, for she could see, although oculists pronounced her blind; she gave convincing demonstrations of a faculty for telepathy and clairvoyance, and she had at times five different personalities.

The evidence in Mollie's case was submitted to an international congress of psychical researchers at Chicago's world's fair (Columbian exposition) of 1893 by Judge Abram H. Dailey, who had studied her closely. The book that he wrote on the subject is still the standard authority for Mollie's mind-reading exploits. It bears the title "Mollie Fancher: The Brooklyn Enigma," and its subtitle proclaims it to be "An Authentic Statement of Facts in the Life of Mary J. Fancher, the Psychological Marvel of the Nineteenth Century—Unimpeachable Testimony of Many Witnesses." Other accounts of her are scattered through the old files of periodicals dealing with abnormal and supernormal psychological phenomena. The New York newspapers also are rich sources of Fancheriana.

• • •

Miss Fancher took to her bed when she was 17 years old and stayed there exactly fifty years and eleven days, or until her death on Feb. 11, 1916. Her first thirty years were the strangest; in 1896 her psychological eccentricities faded away and, except for paralysis of the legs, her condition was fairly normal. She recovered her sight, lost her mind-reading gift and her multiple personalities, and became an average invalid. Her restoration to comparative normality began at the death of her constant attendant, an old aunt. This fact has a significant bearing upon her entire story.

When Mollie's mother was dying in 1860 she said to this aunt:

"I can see that Mollie is a child of sorrow and will need your care. I want you to make one promise: that if anything happens to her you will look after her and care for her as for your own daughter."

The prophecy came true and the promise was fulfilled. The aunt, Miss Susan E. Crosby, was Mollie's mainstay, nurse, solace, and ever-present manager through the thirty amazing years of the "enigma" business.

A modern psychological investigation of the case would give special attention to the personality of Miss Susan E. Crosby. Her influence, perhaps subconscious, may have been the determining factor in Mollie's hysteria. The partial recovery after the death of the eternal aunt provides psychological detectives with a stimulating clew. But in her own time Miss Crosby was suspected of nothing more than participation as an accomplice in Mollie's mind-reading acts. Skeptics also hinted that Miss Crosby might be the actual maker of the crocheting, embroidery, and wax flowers that were sold to pilgrims as the invalid's work.

Four years after her mother's dismal prophecy Mollie Fancher, then 16, was thrown off a horse, striking her head on the roadway. She became subject to fainting spells and violent headaches. About a year later she stepped off a moving street car, caught her dress on a projecting piece of metal, and was dragged for a distance—a block, according to some accounts; several yards, according to others. This caused severe nervous shock and some injury, never truly diagnosed, to the spine. She was not incapacitated, but went about as usual, complaining about not feeling well.

Seven months later she had an attack of convulsions. She was working in the kitchen with her aunt; suddenly she shrieked and began to spin around on tiptoes like a ballet dancer. Then she bent down, clasped her feet with her hands, and rolled wildly on the floor. Thus the strange case of Mollie Fancher began its course of half a century.

Her malady was apparently a violent form of the nervous disease called hysteria, frequently encountered in medical practice. She lost in rapid succession speech, sight, and hearing. She was almost completely paralyzed. Her condition was not static, but involved anesthesias, contractures, and convulsions in bewildering variety. She gave the doctors of her epoch a veritable extravaganza of the symptoms of a deep hysterical seizure. Many eminent physicians examined her and treated her without result. One of these theorists had the happy idea of moving her bed to put her body in the assumed direction of the earth's magnetic currents, with a large horseshoe magnet at her feet, but he did not prove anything.

She was blind; her eyes were open and immobile; a doctor put his fingers on her eyeballs without getting any reaction; an oculist stated that he found gray atrophy of the optic nerve. But she often proved that she could see by extrasensory perception. For example, Prof. Charles E. West, principal of the school she had attended, told of her seeing a canary which had been released from its cage in her room at night. There was no lamp burning. The sound of the bird's fluttering wings had ceased. He asked what had become of it, and Mollie answered:

"Why, don't you see him there on the mantel, fast asleep?"

He lighted the lamp and found that Mollie was right. This may have been merely a guess on her part, or a deduction from known habits of the bird; but many other witnesses testify to numerous incidents of the same kind. She could read newspapers by putting her hand on them, and books by keeping them under the bedclothes.

She told Judge Dailey:

"My vision is not always the same; much depends upon how I am feeling and the weather conditions. Sometimes the whole top of my head seems on fire with the influx of light. . . . Sometimes I can see all through the house."

This form of vision without eyesight extended into telepathy and clairvoyance. Her uncle, Ike Crosby, had left Brooklyn when she was 7 years old and had not communicated with his relatives for twenty-five years. One day her doorbell rang, and she said to her aunt, "Uncle Ike is at the door, and he is very ill." Sure enough, there was Uncle Ike, come back from California to die of tuberculosis among his old friends.

To illustrate her clairvoyant faculty Judge Dailey tells a story about the loss of her dog, for which she had a greater affection than for her other pets. (They included three parrots, six canaries, three cats, and four bowls of goldfish.) He had been missing for several days, and she was grieved, but insisted that he would return. One night at 2 a. m. she aroused her aunt and said:

Miss Crosby was slow in bestirring herself, and Mollie continued:

"Here he comes nearer! Go down and let him in; he will be here by the time you get to the door. There he is now, across the street! Now he is on the step!"

And there he was, bedraggled, gaunt, hungry, and glad to return to his fantastic domicile.

• • •

Prof. Henry M. Pankhurst, an astronomer, subjected Mollie Fancher to a test of her extrasensory perception which he regarded as conclusive proof. He submitted to her a sealed envelope containing a passage of printed matter which he had never seen. He knew only that it was taken, at his suggestion, from the published bills of the Maryland constitutional convention. Any part of this text, he felt, would be unfamiliar to Mollie, her aunt, and the people with whom they came in contact. She touched it and then told him that she could read the words "court" and "jurisdiction" and the figures 6, 2, 3, 4. He opened the envelope and found that she was correct.

These were some of her other accomplishments:

She could distinguish colors in the dark; she could give the location of lost or mislaid articles; she could tell time by touching a watch crystal or listening to the ticking of a clock; she could describe the dress of a friend in another city; she could foretell a thunderstorm by several hours and the ringing of fire bells by five minutes.

These feats of clairvoyance were phenomena of trance states, which were common occurrences with her. She dropped off into a condition similar to the hypnotic trance nearly every day. It is believed that the first nine years of her illness were a constant state of trance, during which time she was occasionally fed by force. Just before this condition began Dr. Robert Speir told her that he was going home for a dinner of chicken potpie. Nine years later, when she snapped out of it, his brother, Dr. Samuel Fleet Speir, was at her bedside; and her first words upon becoming normally conscious were:

These periods resembled the typical trance states of mediums, but there is little of the supernatural or mystic in the records of her behavior and utterances. Many preachers visited her with spiritualistic intentions, but they did not get much satisfaction. Professor West, her former school principal, however, indulged his mysticism to the point of stating in print that Mollie Fancher often went to heaven in her trances.

"I cannot tell you," he wrote, "that strangely interesting part of her experiences. After her death it will be known, but it is more of a revelation than that seen by John from the isle of Patmos."

Both of them are dead, but the revelation has not been given to the world.

In 1878, three years after her nine years' trance had ended, Mollie developed five different personalities, expressed in short trance states. They had names, given by one of Mollie's friends; they had their own special tricks of speech, vocabulary, and topics of conversation. These personalities were called Idol, Sunbeam, Ruby, Pearl, and Rosebud. Sunbeam was a capable version of the real Miss Fancher; she managed the house, was diligent in handicrafts, and liked daylight. Rosebud was an infantile Mollie, aged 6 or 7. Idol and Pearl were sweet sixteeners, quiet and modest; the latter specialized in poetry. Ruby was also young, but a veritable hoyden.

The parlor of the little house at 160 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, became a shop for the sale of souvenirs to pilgrims. A thriving business was done in examples of Mollie's needlework (executed with one arm fixed in paralytic contracture back of her head) and wax flower designs. If Aunt Susan secretly helped to keep up the supply of these articles of commerce, what of it? The pilgrims went away content with their bargains.

In 1894 the New York Medico-Legal society, through its psychology section, wanted to subject Mollie Fancher's carryings-on to a thorough scientific inquiry, but her friend, lawyer, and biographer, Judge Dailey, persuaded her to refuse. His point was well taken; Aunt Susan had died, and Mollie's physical condition was notably improved. Her five personalities had assembled into one; her blindness was no longer total; she could use both arms and move her body above her waist; she had found an appetite and gained in weight and strength. With these physical improvements her psychic powers had waned.

But she remained in bed, an eccentric and ageing woman, expert at needlework. One week before her death she invited a large group of her friends to a "golden jubilee testimonial" at her home. President Wilson received an invitation and acknowledged it with his "regrets."

Sharks—Cruel Killers or Chinless Cowards?

They Are Literally Tough Enough to Eat Nails to conceal oneself behind a handful of ostrich feathers.

"The shark appeared enormous—thirty feet came to my mind. Then, like Dunsany's ghost watcher at the Castle of Oneleigh, I sought to distract my fear with geometry. I estimated the shark's length, I compared it with other fish near it, and I was more composed by the time my mind settled on eighteen feet as the extreme length I could assign to it. I had already faced scores of sharks and even other tiger sharks in my diving, but never so large a one, nor in such unprotected surroundings. The great elasmobranch came on until I could see the black veins in its yellow, catlike eyes and the loose, adenoid gape with its lining of triangular teeth. The mighty tail swept farther to one side, the shark veered—and passed."

Later on Beebe, in summing up his feelings about sharks, wrote: "There is no doubt that since history has been recorded a few authentic cases of attacks by sharks upon men have occurred. To condemn sharks in general is like never taking a taxicab because men have been run over and killed by taxicabs. . . . The ability of the human imagination to see what it thinks it ought to see is astonishing. As long as my book-and-legend-induced fear of sharks dominated, I saw them as sinuous, crafty, sinister, cruel-mouthed, sneering. When I came at last to know them for harmless scavengers, all these characteristics slipped away and I saw them as they really are—indolent, awkward, chinless cowards."

Another great authority on the subject is Charles Haskins Townsend, director of the New York aquarium, and, like Beebe, a member of the editorial staf of the New York Zoölogical society. Says he:

Rescue! A Greek seaman from the storm-wrecked freighter Tzenny Chandris reaches for a hand hold as he floats in shark-infested waters.

"There was a time when I was more or less skeptical about the shark as a man eater, but after several cruises in the tropics . . . my views underwent a change.

"The customary question of the skeptical, 'Did you ever see a man killed by a shark?' may properly be met with a similar one: 'Did you ever see a man murdered?' . . . The Polynesian has the same regard for the shark's prowess that the African has for the lion, and, like the latter, does not fear to hunt and kill him when the conditions are favorable. The shark, however, takes no such toll of human life, as he cannot stalk his prey on land. The Polynesian is amphibious and in some parts of the South seas will plunge down after a lone shark and kill it with a knife, but this exploit is not attempted with all kinds of sharks, nor, indeed, by many natives.

"The attitude of the native toward the shark is different in the daytime from what it is at night; the shark has the advantage in the dark and is more aggressive. In some parts of the South Pacific where sharks are numerous they are persistent in following boats and canoes at night, nipping at the oars and paddles and not infrequently at the light outriggers of the native canoes. Large sharks are especially dangerous at night and frequently tear heavy oars away from the hands of the rowers. There are many authentic cases in which they have seized the floating outriggers used on all South sea canoes and capsized them with fatal results.

"A tragedy of the Ellice Islands was related to us at widely separated points in Polynesia. About forty natives, crossing in canoes at night between islands several miles apart, were caught in a squall. One of the canoes was swamped and the occupants were seized by sharks which had been following the fleet of boats and nipping the paddles. In a few minutes great numbers of maddened sharks were seizing paddles and outriggers, until all the canoes but one had been swamped and their occupants devoured. Two natives only escaped to describe the disaster. A similar account we got in the Fijis, where one of the large double sailing canoes was capsized well off shore and more than twenty natives clinging to the wreck were pulled under by sharks—only a few escaping.

"At Pepekeo, Hawaii, in 1907, a Japanese fisherman, holding a net, fell from his boat, and persons on the cliff near by, who could do nothing to help him, saw him pulled under by a shark.

"On Oct. 8, 1907, a Japanese fisherman at Kalepolepo, island of Maui, while diving to take fish from a net, was seized by a shark which stripped the flesh from his arm. He was taken to the hospital at Wilku, where the arm was amputated at the shoulder.

"On Jan. 8, 1908, at Mana, island of Kauai, still another Japanese fisherman swam out to gather fish floating on the surface which had been killed by dynamite. When warned of the presence of a shark he swam frantically for the rocks, but was seized and pulled under. As he disappeared in bloodstained water it was seen that he had his arms around the shark's body."

According to F. A. Potter, director of the aquarium at Honolulu, who can list almost endless shark attacks on island fishermen: "Sharks will at times attack not only men but canoes. When sharks are hungry they grab at anything they see in the water."

• • •

Another specific case of shark attack comes first-hand from one John E. Kirby of New York, who described his adventure thus in a letter dated Oct. 14, 1927: "Soon after the surrender of the Spanish army at Santiago, Cuba, I was one of a party of thirteen out in a sailboat. The boat capsized and sank. We were compelled to swim for the shore, and out of thirteen men the sharks dragged down six. We could see the sharks very plainly."

Still another eyewitness case, which is remarkably similar to Brook Watson's story, is related by Ralph De Sola, who saw a shark attack in Tampico harbor in June, 1929. "Just as the freighter Casanova [on which he was a passenger] was dropping her anchor, a member of the crew dove over the side for a swim. He disappeared when only a boat's length away. The third mate seized a boathook and descended into the waiting pilot's launch. The man's head appeared and signs of a struggle were seen as the dorsal fin of a shark appeared near the seaman's head. He was rescued minus a leg, bitten clean off below the right knee, and sent to the hospital."

Perhaps the most dangerous place on earth so far as sharks are concerned is Australia, and many shark fatalities are reported from there. Here are some observations by T. C. Roughley, economic zoölogist of the Technological museum in Sydney, dated Oct. 23, 1929:

"Up till about twenty years ago the fatalities from sharks in Australian waters were confined to the estuaries, but at about that time surf bathing began to have an extensive vogue, and shortly afterward an occasional fatality occurred amongst surf bathers. . . .

"Persons attacked usually have their flesh torn most frightfully, the amputation of one or more limbs may be rendered necessary, and frequently the patient dies from shock and loss of blood. After the initial attack the shark usually returns quickly and continues the attack until it is frightened away by other bathers rushing to the rescue. The greatest risk of attack appears to be at dusk; it is then that the greater proportion of the fatalities have occurred."

As to a shark's appetite, Townsend of the New York aquarium says: "There is little in the way of gally refuse that sharks will not pick up. We found by dissection that they swallowed things indiscriminately; there were ham bones, moldy bread, decayed oranges, greasy rags, oily cotton waste from the engine room, empty sardine tins, and parts of other sharks that had been killed and thrown overboard. When sharks have been excited by a few mouthfuls of food they will seize almost anything. . . . The stomach of a large shark taken at Honolulu contained a horse's leg with hoof and shoe, a gunny sack, a tin can six inches square, one squid, a peck of turtle shell, and various small articles."

A shark's digestive juices must contain one of the strongest acids in nature, for another authority, Col. Hugh D. Wise, in commenting on this same half-digested horse's hoof with the iron shoe on it (which he had seen), said: "The bones had been completely dissolved, the horn casing was softened to the consistency of lether, and the iron was being rapidly corroded. . . . In this digestive fluid there is a very high content of hydrochloric acid, and I have seen it remove the varnish when spilled on a deck."

• • •

One of the most peculiar characteristics of the shark—and one which goes far to explain the divergence of opinion as to his tendency to attack a man swimming—is his initial discrimination as to the helplessness of his prey. As explained by John C. Hilder: "Normally sharks do not attack healthy, vigorous fish. . . . One can sometimes see them gliding along right in the midst of a school of mullet (their natural food) and apparently ignoring them. Actually they are on the lookout for stragglers. Sharks have an amazing, mysterious sense that enables them to detect anything amiss with another fish.

"Let a fish be hooked by an angler, and if there is a shark in the vicinity he will go right after it. The smell of blood attracts him, and as soon as he sees the hooked fish he can tell by the way it swims that something is the matter with it."

"The instant we hooked one, great, swift gray and yellow-green shadows appeared out of obscurity. We never got a fish near the boat. Such angling got on my nerves. . . . All kinds of fish lived together down there. We saw yellowtail and amberjack swim among the sharks as if they were all friendly. But the instant we hooked a poor, luckless fish he was set upon by these voracious monsters and devoured. They fought like wolves. Whenever the blood of a fish discolored the water these sharks seemed to grow frantic. They appeared on all sides as if by magic.

"An interesting and gruesome sight was presented when Bob, after dismembering one I had caught, tumbled the bloody carcass back into the water. It sank. A cloud of blood spread like smoke. Then I watched a performance that beggared description. Sharks came thick upon the scene from everywhere. Some far down seemed as long as our boat. They massed around the carcass of their slain comrade and a terrible battle ensued. Such swift action, such ferocity, such unparalleled instinct to kill and eat! But this was a tropic sea, with water at 85 degrees, where life is so intensely developed. Slowly that yellow, flashing, churning mass of sharks faded into the green depths."

In explanation of this blood lust of sharks Colonel Wise says: "Under skin flaps in the anterior portion of a shark's head are two large nostrils, and, as his olfactory organs are excellent, his sense of smell is acute. He gets the blood scent at amazing distances and rushes toward it. Literally it seems to make him see red."

According to another authority: "Some fish, including the sharks, seem to take a delight in killing far more than they can eat—perhaps the nearest approach to real gluttony. The teeth of these predaceous fish are slender, very sharp-pointed, and adapted for capturing swift and slippery prey. It follows that they are not suitable for chewing food. Possibly also their owners have no time to do so. The prey is disposed of as quickly as possible by swallowing, and it is not surprising, therefore, that the booty should reach the stomach of the capturer alive. In fact, it is on record that a fish so swallowed has eaten its way out through the stomach wall and actually escaped!"

That fish might have been a barracuda, which is considered by many to be more dangerous and vicious than a shark. At any rate, Hilder has made a comparison between the eating tactics of these two fish: "With its seven rows of thin, flat, triangular, saw-edged teeth, the shark is a ripper, a tearer of flesh. The barracuda, with long, razor-sharp fangs projecting from the roof of its mouth and its jaws rimmed with smaller, needle-pointed teeth, is a slicer. The shark scrapes a jagged wound; the barracuda neatly cleaves."

Evidently an expert can tell by one look at a wound whether it was make by a shark or a barracuda. A good illustration of the barracuda's formidableness was the adventure had by two men who were fishing from a rowboat in 1930. One pulled in an apparently exhausted barracuda and dumped it in the boat, neglecting to hit it on the head. The next moment the barracuda sprang into action and the men took to the water and let their catch have the boat to himself.

• • •

The shark, however, probably will remain the most generally feared fish—and not without reason, as the already mentioned incidents have shown. Still another proof of the shark's guilt is the new industry of shark meshing that has arisen in New South Wales, Australia. It is the result of a government scheme for the elimination of man eaters, which had become so numerous that the popular sport of surf bathing was in danger of becoming a back number.

The government signed a $100,000 contract with a fishing company to hunt the tigers of the sea, and the venture has proved profitable to both parties. Not only are the beaches being made safer, but the tough hides of the sharks find a ready market in fancy lether for women's shoes and pocketbooks. Oil is extracted from the meat, and the fins are exported to China, where they are a favorite table delicacy. An idea of the size of the business may be had from the figures for the first six days of fishing. Fifty-four sharks were caught, and the government bounty alone amounted to $3,000.

There is one more point to discuss in the question of sharks attacking men, and that is that skeptics may reasonably bring out the fact that Herman Oelrichs some years ago offered through New York papers a reward of $500 for authentic information of such an attack in the general region of New York, where there had recently been a shark scare. But the reward was never claimed. Other rewards offered later also remained unclaimed, and newspapers took up the discussion without discovering any authentic instance of a shark attack in northern waters—although there were a number in tropical waters.

• • •

The late Dr. F. A. Lucas of the American Museum of Natural History, who thoroughly investigated this subject, once said that in his opinion the danger of being attacked by a shark in the vicinity of New York was "infinitely less than that of being struck by lightning."

It seems, then, in summing up, that shark attacks on men—which are rare—happen in water that is well above 70 degrees in temperature. They are most apt to happen at night—or rather at dusk, because few men go swimming in the dark. The shark must either be very hungry or excited by the smell of blood or other food, and he must get the idea that the swimmer is more or less helpless. In other words, perhaps Dr. Beebe's nonchalance on the ocean bottom was his salvation and the fact that he was apparently at home in the depths made him respected by the same shark which would have looked upon him as a pitiable morsel of nourishment had he been kicking his way along at the surface.

And then, also, the particular kind of shark involved makes a difference, for a great white shark or a tiger shark is far more belligerent than most others. Even the dauntless Dr. Beebe once said: "I have seen a tiger shark snap up a baby sea lion close to a rookery of big males as though it were a minnow, and I have observed and shared the respect with which fish sometimes greet his appearance. I should catalog him as an uncertain character—safe enough usually, but to be interviewed with the iron ladder between us."

There is still much to be learned about sharks, and one of the most puzzling things of all is their immediate awareness of a potential meal even from a great distance. If the bloody carcass of a dead fish is dumped into the empty ocean it is only a matter of a minute before scores of sharks have appeared from nowhere to devour it. It is hardly conceivable that the smell of blood could diffuse through the water fast enough to attract sharks at that speed, and perhaps a more logical explanation is that sharks, which keep at more or less even distribution throughout the tropical ocean, are aware of each other's presence and get the hint one from another like buzzards in the sky. They probably also are more numerous in the vicinity of a ship, being lured by the traces of oil and refuse that are inevitably a part of its wake.

Rest, and Beauty, for the Weary

It takes some doing for the tired business woman to transform herself into the bright-eyed butterfly after office hours. But men expect it and in the long run the girls enjoy it.

After-Hours Salon for the London Working Girl

By ELEANOR NANGLE

OVER in London a former office worker named Marjorie Agar is doing a noble job of making life worth living for the poor working girl. She has inaugurated the Business Girls' Beauty salon, operated on the club plan, which not only saves the working girl the hurly-burly of hurrying home to prepare for an evening out but provides beauty services at extremely low rates.

Every girl who works for her living can applaud the idea. One of the things guaranteed to plunge us into a "Who started this careers for women business, anyway?" mood is the problem of being two quite different persons in the same day. It's not easy to be an efficient, unobtrusive little machine for eight hours a day, then to make a quick change into a rested, beautiful creature with no thought other than being a good companion to the man with whom you dine and dance.

The privilege of being tired, and looking it, or of being worried, and saying so, is reserved in this peculiar world entirely for the men. Just let a working girl try it and she steps right to the head of social flops. Come the 5 o'clock whistle and she must step right into her butterfly rôle, no matter how weary her wings nor how droopy her spirits. The tired business man wants no dealings with the tired business woman.

The Business Girls' Beauty salon is a great help. As operated by Miss Agar it's inexpensive. For about 25 cents the business girl about to step out for the evening has a lot of life savers available. She may hop right over to the salon from her office; she bathes and changes from office frock to finery.

If time permits, and if the state of her weary frame indicates, she can have any one of a number of beauty services. A manicure, so that the fingers that are ink-stained eight hours a day become romantically pale and pink-tipped for the evening. A foam bath, maybe, followed by a massage, so that jangling nerves are soothed and aching muscles refreshed. A treatment to erase every line of fatigue from her face; a makeup that sends her out radiant. She can be freshly shampooed and waved. She can even have a permanent, with as many coy curls as she thinks the trafic will bear.

But, best of all, according to report Miss Agar permits the girls to purchase the evening's beauty on the instalment plan.

Apple Dumpling Time

Above: These are honest-to-goodness gingerbread men, not just cookies. They're made from a prepared gingerbread mix which needs only the addition of a little milk to make the dough.

By MARY MEADE

A DESSERT for the whole family and a dessert for the children—apple dumplings for the first, gingerbread men for the second.

APPLE DUMPLINGS

2 cups flour.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
⅓ cup shortening.
⅔ cup milk.
6 Rome Beauty apples.
6 tablespoons sugar.
3 teaspoons cinnamon.

Sift flour before measuring and resift with baking powder and salt. Work in shortening until the mixture is of a coarse consistency. Add the milk and stir vigorously to mix. Place the dough on a floured board and knead lightly for a few seconds. Roll out dough and cut into six squares, one to cover each apple. Core the apples and place one in the center of each square. Fill each core cavity with a tablespoon of sugar and a half teaspoon cinnamon, combined. Bring the dough up around the apples and place them in a baking dish with a sirup made by boiling together for 5 minutes 1⅓ cups sugar and 4 cups water and adding ½ cup butter. Bake the dumplings at 375 degrees for 20 minutes, then reduce the temperature to 300 and continue baking until the apples are tender. Baste occasionally with the sirup in the pan. Serve warm with cream.

GINGERBREAD MEN

Place the contents of a package of gingerbread mix in a bowl and add a third cup of milk, or enough to make a rather stiff dough. Chill for half an hour and roll the dough, a third of it at a time, to about a fourth inch in thickness. Cut out gingerbread men and make eyes, nose, and buttons with currants or bits of date. Using a pancake turner or spatula, place the gingerbread men on a greased baking sheet and bake at 375 degrees for about 10 minutes. Ice with an uncooked icing if desired.

At right: Apple dumplings are the old-fashioned type of dessert. Baking apples in biscuit crust with sugar and cinnamon and a buttery sirup are awfully good when they're served with cream.

The Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

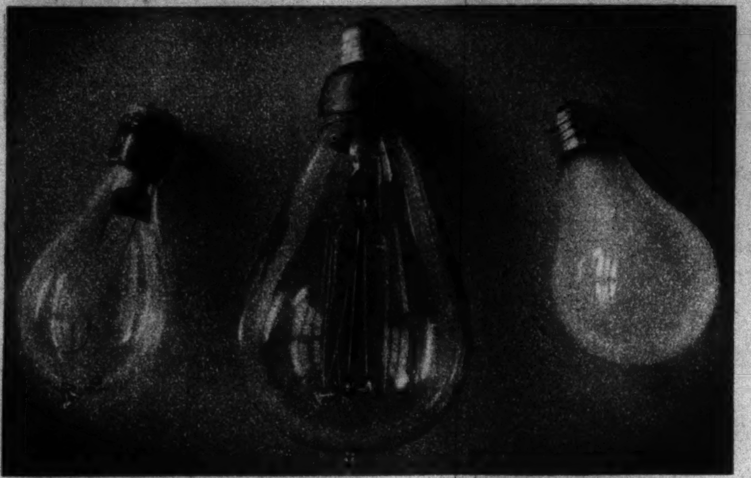
By Dr. Michael Ference

OUT OF THE research laboratories of the country comes the report of the development of a new electric lamp whose operation depends upon physical principles basically different from those of the incandescent lamp. This new fluorescent tubular lamp, as it is technically known, is a more efficient source of light than the best of the available tungsten filament lamps.

The guiding principle that led to the development of the present tungsten lamp is this: Every object when heated to a sufficiently high temperature will begin to emit light—the higher the temperature the more like sunlight does this radiation become.

In spite of the fact that this technique of producing illumination has been eminently successful in providing a convenient and quite adaptable source of light, as is evidenced by the millions of lamps now in daily use, it is nevertheless a technique of sheer awkwardness and brute strength, for of all the electrical energy used, say in a 60-watt bulb, only 6 per cent is useful energy, that is, energy in the visible light range. The rest is wasted in the form of heat. Stated in perhaps more realistic terms, of the estimated one billion dollars spent last year for electrical energy for lighting purposes alone, $940,000,000 was wasted!

Dr. N. C. Beese studies an experimental tellurium vapor discharge lamp through a glass filter. Tellurium, a semi-metallic element which produces a "garlic breath" if inhaled, gives off a continuous spectrum like sunlight instead of the line spectrum ordinarily found in metallic vapor lamps.

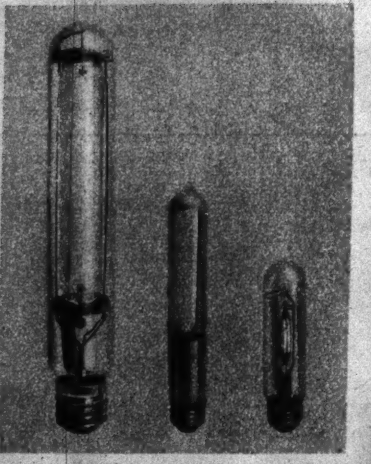


Forty-five years of progress in lamp making. Left to right: Carbon lamp of 1892, vacuum tungsten lamp of 1910, and modern lamp.

It is this fact that has given impetus to research laboratories throughout the world to investigate sources of illumination. Although the efficiency of incandescent lamps can be improved by increasing the temperature of the filament, nevertheless there is a practical limit to which this can be done. In order that a hot body shall emit the maximum amount of energy in the useful visible range, the body, theoretically, must be heated to the fantastic temperature of 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit! All known substances vaporize before reaching this temperature.

• • •

The research physicist has pushed his investigations along entirely new lines, using as a clew this simple basic fact: If light from the sun (the ideal to be attained) is analyzed by allowing this radiation to enter a prism of glass, which has the property of resolving light into its spectrum colors, the original light is found to be nothing more nor less than a mixture of colors ranging from deep indigo through violet to red in the visible range and bordered on both sides by the invisible infrared and ultraviolet. Moreover, it is found that of the radiation of the sun that can stimulate the retina of the eye 38 per cent can be roughly classified as red, 37 per cent as green, and 25 per cent as blue. These three colors, red, green, and blue, are known as primary colors, for any other color in the spectrum can be matched, in so far as the eye is concerned, by an appropriate mixture of primary colors.



Three commercial types of high-intensity mercury vapor lamps, nearly twice as efficient as tungsten filament incandescent lamps.

As early as 1680 Newton learned that white light could be approximated by mixing just two colors, known as complementary colors. The sensation of white produced by the mixture of two colors, however, is a physiological effect. Blue and yellow of the proper tints and intensities will make white; also, green and red may be complementary. In order to completely match sunlight, of course, it would be necessary to blend all the colors of the white light spectrum. But since the eye cannot appreciate the entire gamut of colors, the physicist has taken advantage of this fact in blending 38 per cent red with 37 per cent green and 25 per cent blue to obtain a mixture that is visually sunlight. This is what is effectively done in the new fluorescent lamp.

The phenomenon of fluorescence, briefly explained, is this: Light from an ultraviolet source, for example, is absorbed by the atoms of an element; the energy of the absorbed waves, instead of appearing simply as heat, as is generally the case, produces an excitation of the atoms, and the energy shifts during the readjustment produce light waves from these atoms—light that is characteristic of the atoms, not of the exciting waves. In the case of sodium vapor the fluorescence is marked by a beautiful yellow color.

Some of the aniline substances are extremely fluorescent, notably fluorescin and eosin; the sulphate of quinine gives rise to a delicate blue, as do various sulphide salts and æsculine, obtained from crushed horse chestnut bark. Zinc orthosilicate glows with a green coloration, while the tungstate and molybdate salts fluoresce in the blue and violet. Red color can be obtained from the excitation of zinc phosphate, while some of the samarium salts give beautiful yellow and red tints when excited with ultraviolet light. If these various radiations are combined with the proper relative intensities it is possible to match accurately the light from our sun.

The accompanying diagram illustrates how this may be accomplished in practice. Electrons from the wire at the left are shot into the mercury vapor, exciting the mercury atoms so that on reorganization to their normal state they emit intense ultraviolet light. This light is allowed to irradiate the shell of a tube that contains thin coatings of the proper fluorescing materials, causing these salts to fluoresce strongly—some red and yellow, others blue and green. This mixture of colored radiations is what the eye identifies as white light. Not only are these new lamps capable of producing white light, but by proper choice of fluorescent material many delicate hues hitherto impossible are available.

Rough sketch illustrating principle of cool lighting. Electrons from the gun at left ionize the mercury vapor, which then emits ultraviolet light. This light is absorbed, causing salts in the coatings to fluoresce.

In order to fully appreciate the historical importance of this new contribution of science it is perhaps desirable to point out in retrospect the development of incandescent lamps from the early parchmentized thread filament to the modern gas-filled tungsten lamp of 1938.

Common impression to the contrary, the first patent granted on an incandescent lamp was issued in England in 1841 to Frederick De Moleyns just a few years after Michael Faraday had discovered the basic laws of the dynamo. No outstanding progress was made until the years 1877-'80, when Sir Joseph Swan in England patented his parchmentized thread filament and simultaneously Thomas Edison in this country perfected his carbon filament. The Edison patent, No. 223898, covered four outstanding improvements: (1) It was a high-resistance lamp; (2) the lamp was entirely inclosed in glass; (3) it operated in a high vacuum; and (4) the carbon filaments were held in place by platinum parts. A year later Edison announced the carbonized bamboo filament. This lamp had an efficiency of 1.6 lumens per watt.

(The illuminating engineer rates the efficiency of his lamps in the units lumens per watt. The watt is an electrical unit of power—the rate at which electrical energy is consumed. The lumen, on the other hand, is a unit specifying the rate at which energy in the form of visible light is emitted by a device. The maximum theoretical efficiency of an incandescent lamp emitting just visible radiation is 621 lumens per watt.)

• • •

These early carbon filaments were certainly a fragile lot! But their chief disadvantage lay in the distinctly yellow cast of the light—the reason, too low a temperature of the filament. Since these filaments were already operating just under the vaporization temperature, nothing could be done about it. A real improvement came with the introduction of the tantalum metal for filaments, which permitted much higher temperatures to be attained. In the year 1910, however, after long and brilliant research, Dr. William D. Coolidge succeeded in drawing out into a very fine thread the hard, tough metal tungsten. This accomplishment was the turning point in the manufacture of electric lamps, for tungsten filaments may be raised to the incredibly high temperature of 4,800 degrees Fahrenheit, with the result that the emitted light begins to approach the texture of sunlight. The efficiency of this lamp was 8 lumens per watt, a fivefold increase over the carbon lamp.

It was soon found that this new evacuated tungsten filament lamp became black with continuous use, due to the rapid evaporation of tungsten. In 1913 Dr. Irving Langmuir introduced the inert gas, nitrogen, into the lamp. The presence of this gas materially reduced the rate of evaporation of tungsten and in addition permitted the temperature to be raised. The present gas-filled lamp contains argon, with just a little nitrogen. Lamps of this type are being manufactured with efficiencies ranging from 8 to 30 lumens per watt.

Other developments of comparable importance were the introduction of the tipless lamp by Mitchell and White; the inside frosting process by Pipkin, which diffuses the light properly and thus eliminates glare; and finally the replacement of the straight filaments by the highly efficient helical ones.

Today there are some 6,000 styles of lamps, from the ⅛-watt lamp used in surgical instruments to commercial lamps of 30,000 watts.

Sodium vapor lamps which give rise to a characteristic yellow light are now successfully used for highway and flood lighting. This lamp, which utilizes the principle of fluorescence described above, has an efficiency of 60 lumens per watt!

Other lamps used for definite commercial purposes are the mercury vapor lamp, with an efficiency twice that of the best tungsten incandescent lamp (see the accompanying photographs), and the neon lamp, which has the unusually high efficiency of 20 lumens per watt.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

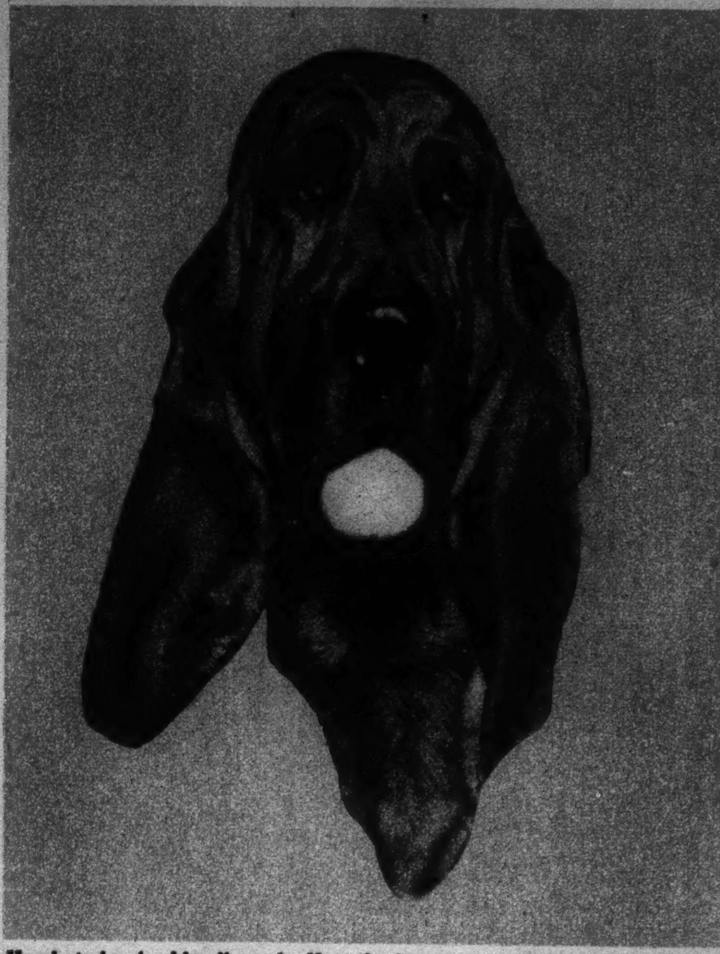
Bloodhounds Linked to Drama

KNOWN for its use by law-enforcing agencies, the bloodhound today is associated with the thrills of posses on the trail, exciting hunts for dangerous escaped convicts, or perhaps lost children.

One of the most widely used packs of bloodhounds, constantly being called upon to follow human scent, is that owned by Edward and John W. Reindl. The former is sherif of Menominee county, Michigan. John, his brother, is a deputy sherif. Their dogs are registered A. K. C. bloodhounds. John Reindl describes them and their uses as follows:

"In traveling to cases calling for the use of our hounds we have a bus which has room for our dogs as well as sleeping quarters for six men. On hurry calls we use a plane. The dogs enjoy traveling by plane very much. We have used our bloodhounds to track down escaped convicts, locate missing children and adults, find holdup men who tried to escape in the forest, and many other similar cases. Since the dogs have done such good work, we have had many chances to sell them, but they have been so faithful and so successful that nobody could buy them at any price. Dusky Boy and Virginia Lassie, two of our pack, came from Morristown, Tenn.

"Our dogs are silent trailers. They do not bark or make a sound when on the trail. But you can tell when they get close to the person we are after, as they grow very excited."



Head study of a bloodhound. Note the long ears of the breed. The eyes of a bloodhound are deeply set in their sockets and the lower lids are pulled down, which gives the dog a melancholy expression.

Happy Scott, a bloodhound in the Reindl pack that has been used a great deal for trailing. The dog is wearing a harness to which is fastened a long lead. When the dog is being used it is handled by one man.

• • •

Reindl says he always runs one man to one harnessed dog, with the man holding to a long leash. One thing that Reindl stresses in his description of these dogs, that have made crime headlines in the middle west and Canada, is their affectionate, gentle disposition. Many persons picture the bloodhound as a savage, bloodthirsty, ferocious dog that delights in attacking people, especially the person being trailed. Actually bloodhounds have about the kindliest disposition you could ask for in a dog. They are friendly and docile. Trailing is a game to them. They enjoy it. They have no animosity toward the person whose trail they are following. In fact, a bloodhound is quite apt to register great pleasure when finally it corners its quarry. One bloodhound authority who has worked the dogs in England was telling us the other day that he used dogs which actually would fawn on the person that had been trailed. The bloodhound is not a killer.

The Reindl bloodhounds of Menominee have been used successfully in many cases, including the following:

Dusky Boy and two of his pals once were called to track a murderer. This meant some long, hard hours trailing in swamps and woods. The dogs found the murderer. He had committed suicide.

Dusky Boy, Virginia Lassie, and Happy Scott were called in a case involving an escaped prison inmate. They trailed through a swamp and into a cornfield, where the convict was found. The dogs earned a fee of $50 for their work on this case, as a reward had been offered for the capture of the escaped convict.

But the hounds are not always put on the trail of a lawbreaker. Once they were called on to find an 86-year-old man who was lost in a swamp. The dogs followed the scent perfectly and found him after a few hours of trailing in heavy timber. Another case involved a lost boy. After posses had searched for the boy for twelve hours and had not found him, the bloodhounds were put to work. Six hours after taking the trail Dusky Boy gently awakened the lost boy, who was sound asleep under some brush.

Although bloodhounds have been exhibited in the United States from the beginning of organized shows in this country, not many have been seen on the bench as compared to the large number of dogs exhibited among our more popular breeds.

DOG NOTES

The American Kennel club recently announced plans for a year book for dogs which will be comparable to "Who's Who." Dogs which have been outstanding in dog shows and field trials will be listed in the book, along with information on their accomplishments. The A. K. C. Year Book, as it will be called, will be based on results of shows and field trials.

A woman in Kalamazoo, Mich., is engaged in what is probably one of the oddest occupations in the world. She is a manufacturer of caskets for pets. Most of her business is with dog owners, veterinarians, humane societies, and owners of dog cemeteries. She hires a carpenter to make the casket frames, and she covers and lines them with cloth and puts aluminum handles on the ends. Mrs. Flanigan entered the business several years ago when she was unable to buy a suitable casket for her dog when it was killed by an automobile. She makes the caskets in various sizes.

Champion Barnacle Bill of Waseeka, best Newfoundland at the 1938 Westminster dog show. The Newfoundland is a working breed that makes an excellent guard and friend. Dogs weigh up to 140 or 150 pounds. They are almost as much at home in water as they are on land.

War Provides Test for New Type of Fighters

By WAYNE THOMIS

THIS department today is devoted to photographs and information from the miniature world war in Spain. All the machines shown here are German or Italian and are in use by Gen. Francisco Franco's pilots. Censorship on the loyalist side of the lines is strict and thus far no authentic photographs of the new Russian machines—said to be among the best—have become available.

The information—sketchy, perhaps inaccurate, since there is no way to verify it—follows:

Virtually all the air fighting is done on a formation basis. The day of the individual dog fight is past. Tactics consist chiefly of a dive and zoom away. Stragglers who are unable to keep their places in the formations usually are the casualties. Maneuverability, always hitherto considered a prime essential of pursuit machines, is giving away to fire power and speed as more important characteristics. Modern high-speed bombers, defended from every angle, can take on two single-seat fighters and beat them. It takes a concerted attack by four or five machines to drop such a bomber.

Modern high-speed machine guns fire so fast—1,200 rounds a minute—that the individual explosions are lost. Their fire sounds like the tearing of cloth. World war guns sounded something like a pneumatic rivet hammer, but they were firing about 600 r.p.m. All the new fighters carry at least four of the modern guns. The weapons are chiefly of Norwegian or Czechoslovakian origin. The Skoda plant of the latter country is responsible for one of the best of the guns. Pilots say they virtually never have jams or stoppages—an extraordinary statement to any one who knows automatic arms.

Most of the engines used in bombers and fighters are British or American in origin, although many of them have been built under license. The Germans use a great many Hornet engines of 750 h.p. The Russians use Wright Cyclones of 800 h.p. almost exclusively in their ships. The Italian planes use British Bristol engines, Mercury or Pegasus designs prevailing. The German machines are capable of speeds of 250 m.p.h. or more, while the Italians are generally slower. The Russian bombers cruise at more than 200, and the fighters at 280.

The German squadrons with Franco use two types of fighters—the Arado biplane, with a BMW 700-h.p. liquid-cooled engine, and the Heinkel monoplane, 600-h.p. Daimler-Benz liquid-cooled engine. The Aradc is built of metal spars and longerons with fabric covering. Speed is about 220 m.p.h. Very reliable and maneuverable. The Heinkel is very fast, speed about 270 m.p.h., carries two machine guns and two cannon, and is built entirely of metal, structure and skin, with retractile landing gear, controlable-pitch propeller.

The Germans have two light bombers—the Henschel, a two-place all-metal biplane dive bomber, and the Heinkel two-place monoplane high-speed bomber. The Henschel has a Hornet engine, the Heinkel a 900-h.p. Daimler-Benz or Junkers liquid-cooled engine. The Henschel does about 215 m.p.h., while the Heinkel is credited with 250. All the twin-engined German bombers have Hornet engines. These ships are either Heinkel, Dornier, or Junkers machines, capable of 240 m.p.h., with a big bomb load and a 1,000-mile range.

The Italian machines in Spain are of three types—pursuit, light bomber-attack, or heavy bomber. Of the first type two machines are in the majority. One is the Fiat C.R.32 biplane, with metal spars and fabric covering. It is powered with an 850-h.p. Fiat V-12 liquid-cooled motor and has a top speed of 211 m.p.h. at 16,500 feet, but is extremely maneuverable and solidly built.

One of these machines made fifty turns of a spin with the motor full on when the pilot passed out at 20,000 feet through oxygen mask failure but regained consciousness after falling into denser air. He was able to right the machine immediately, which speaks well for its construction and controlability. This is one of the most severe tests ever given any plane.

The second machine is the I.M.A.M RO-51 an all-metal low-wing monoplane, with a 900-h.p. double-bank engine. Its top speed is supposed to be about 295 m.p.h. at 14,000 feet. It lands at 70 m.p.h with flaps.

The light bombers, which correspond roughly to American attack machines, are mostly Breda 64s. This is a two-place low-wing monoplane with a double-bank radial engine of about 850 h.p. and retractile landing gear. The speed of the machine is supposed to be 260 m.p.h. It is very lightly built of metal tubing with fabric covering, reinforced at the leading edges and the cockpits with metal sheets. The plane is armed with six machine guns and 500 pounds of small bombs.

The Italian heavy bombers are almost all the Savoia S-79 trimotored machines which have made such excellent records in Italy. These machines, with double-bank Bristol engines, have a top speed of 290 m.p.h. and cruise at 250 m.p.h. with a large load.

CHAIN STORE SHOPPERS

"You'll never guess where I and Hazel was last night, and was Edna's boy friend stewed!" (This male shopper at the hardware counter is too much engrossed in the salesladies' conversation to remember what he came to the five-and-dime for.)

Lady shopper at the bulb and plant counter expects the salesgirl to be a botany shark and tree expert combined. Wants to know when it will bloom (snake plant), how much water it needs, and will it get along with other plants.

"Isn't it wonderful what you can get for the kiddies at a five-and-ten?" Maude was surprised at the cocktail accessories department. Just as well if the friend doesn't see her buying caviar and olives at a five-and-ten.

These girls are just looking around, picking up things, poking and pawing, and putting things back in the wrong places. Salesgirls want to murder them.

"Is your cold better today, Harry?" Chain store grocery shoppers have favorite clerks, and no others need try to wait on them. A clerk with great big saucer eyes is more often the favored one.

Showing chain drug store, with booklovers clustered around the book counter, where "The Life of Calvin Coolidge," and "How to Win Friends Away From Your ENEMIES, and Get Them Crazy About You," are selling for nineteen cents.

"Warren and I are getting things for Lil Stoppard's party. Warren is going as Clark Gable, and I'm going as Mae West, and I'm going to carry Charlie McCarthy around and say 'Why don't you come up and see me some time?' And I do think it's a cute idea!"

The Knit-tex Throw-on . . $30

Adapted From the English Town and Country Coat

This is the type of coat that is generally worn in England by well dressed men to meet the changing moods of English weather—where in a single day it can be warm, cold, wet, dry and windy. And we frequently have the same conditions here.

With the collar open as in the photograph above, it is one of the smartest topcoats imaginable.

With the collar buttoned up as in illustration (A), you are protected against windy or rainy weather.

With the collar completely turned up, as in illustration (B), you are insulated against real stormy weather.

In each case, the coat retains that air of swagger and nonchalant smartness resulting from the natural raglan shoulders and the full English flare and sweep of the skirt.

And best of all, it is made of genuine Knit-tex cloth; light as a feather, warm as toast, soft as velvet.

HIMSELF: By Robert Henri

HERSELF: By Robert Henri

• Atmosphere as Irish as next Thursday's observance of St. Patrick's day pervades the three pictures presented in full color here.

• Mr. Craig's County Donegal scene is one to bring a nostalgic tear to Irish eyes.

• Mr. Henri painted the land and its people with a loving brush. For the titling of the two types at the left he made use of quaint colloquialisms. To the Irish, "himself" is the head of the family, "herself" is the woman of the house.

Copies of the above paintings, in the sizes and colors shown and appropriately framed under glass, can be obtained at the Chicago Tribune Public Service offices, Tribune Tower and 1 South Dearborn street. Each, 40 cents; by postpaid mail, 50 cents. (Do not send coin or currency.)

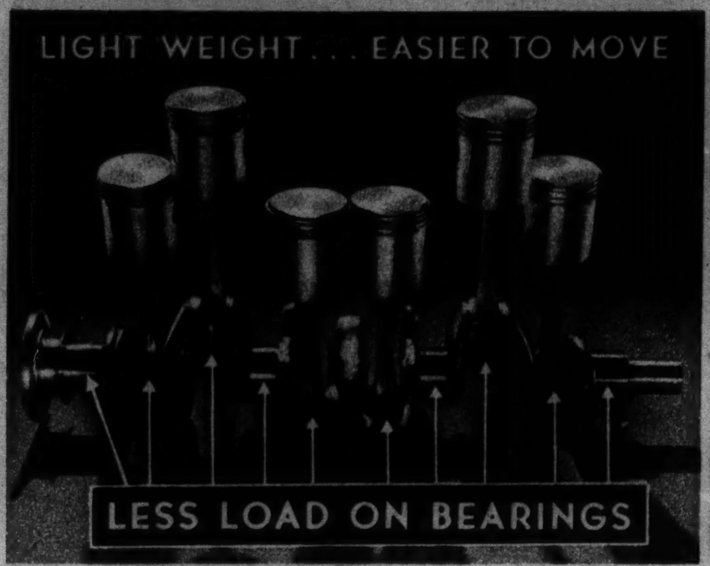
It's a Family Matter of Great Importance

NEXT TO THE PURCHASE OF A HOME, BUYING A NEW CAR IS USUALLY A FAMILY'S BIGGEST PURCHASE. THAT'S WHY IT'S SO IMPORTANT TO GET COMPLETE INFORMATION BEFORE YOU DECIDE.

1 Naturally, They're All Interested. It's an important family decision. But, their interests should go deeper than mere matters of color or upholstery, or whether it should be a coupe or a sedan. The basic points of value should be examined closely by all.



2 Vital Differences Here. Plymouth pistons are made of aluminum alloy with four rings each... give more power, cut oil consumption. The crankshaft has four main bearings for greater strength. No other low-priced car offers both features.

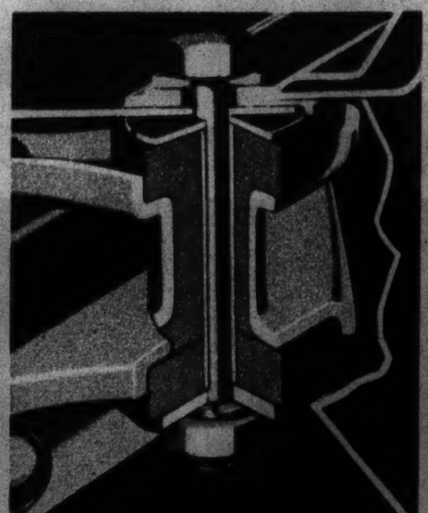
4 The Family's Safety demands the best of brakes—Plymouth's famed double-action hydraulic brakes are the safest type made. And you get safety interior styling... with Safety Glass at no extra charge.



5 Only Plymouth ends road vibration with "cushions" of "live" rubber between body and frame... your ride is smooth, relaxed.

6 Greater Room for All—plus the greater riding comfort of Plymouth's big, airplane-type shock-absorbers. And you'll be amazed by Plymouth's new, faster steering and easier handling. You can't know today's biggest value until you take a ride in the 1938 Plymouth.

7 Rich Upholstery and Deep-Cushioned Seats give you a distinct feeling of luxury. Seats are "chair-high." You sit naturally. Floors are low, level. And Plymouth's new ventilation brings new comfort.

8 The 1938 Plymouth 4-Door Sedan with Trunk delivers in Detroit for only $815—other models as low as $645—including Federal taxes. State, local taxes not included. Don't Be Fat

"Eat sensibly and drink Welch's Grape Juice," says Irene Rich

Here's that amazing, new way to take off ugly fat without suffering a hungry moment or taking strenuous exercises, or drugs

FROM coast-to-coast, you now hear women singing the praises of a thrilling new reducing method. A method, which Dr. Damrau of New York demonstrated in actual tests among a large number of people, and which was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month.

Most amazing, this method does NOT call for special diet lists. You never suffer a hungry moment. Nor is it necessary for you to take strenuous exercises, or drugs.

How This Pleasant Way Takes Off Excess Fat!

All you have to do is eat sensibly, and drink ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice, mixed with ¼ of a glass of water, before meals and at bedtime.

Nothing could be easier, or more pleasant. Yet!—this is what happens. First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire to over-eat fattening foods—but you do feel comfortably full. Second, the grape sugar in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process helps nature to consume excess fat.

Thus weight is lost naturally and safely. And this remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men, as it is for overweight women.

Watch One Thing Carefully

There is only one thing to watch in following this proved way to take off excess fat. Eat sensibly—and be sure to use Welch's pure, aged, unadulterated, full-strength grape juice before meals. Made from the finest grapes grown. No water added; no artificial coloring. Good Housekeeping approved. Insist upon the genuine Welch's Grape Juice for the results you want. And for economy's sake—buy Welch's by the case.

THE EARLY GULL GETS THE FISH.

In spite of all that has been written about bad breath, thousands still lose friends through this unpleasant fault. Yet sour stomach with its resultant bad breath is frequently only the result of constipation. Just as loss of appetite, early weakness, nervousness, mental dullness, can all be caused by it.

So keep regular. And if you need to assist Nature, use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This mild laxative brings relief, yet is always gentle. Extremely important, too, is the mild stimulation it gives the flow of bile from the liver, without the discomfort of drastic, irritating drugs. That's why millions use Olive Tablets yearly. At your druggists, 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

The Calendar said: "be quiet"
MIDOL said: "be yourself"

DOCTORS long have known that severe periodic functional pain is not natural to most women. For thousands more, science has found a way to make it unnecessary. Yet many women still go on letting the calendar regulate their lives — living in dated dread of pain and setting aside certain days each month to inactivity.

If you are one of them, you should know about Midol. For unless you have some organic disorder calling for a physician's or surgeon's attention, Midol in all probability can help you.

Most women who try Midol find it permits them to go through the days of menstruation physically and mentally carefree. Midol is offered for this sole purpose. It acts quickly. In all but unusual instances it brings definite relief. Many women declare they have no pain at all — or even discomfort—since they learned to rely on Midol.

Get Midol, and "be yourself". Instead of saving yourself, let Midol take care of the pain. A few Midol tablets should see you comfortably through your worst day. Drugstores have Midol on the counter in convenient purse-size tins.

To Alkalize Acid Indigestion Be Sure You Get Phillips'

Signs Which Often Indicate "Acid Indigestion"

Pain after eating, Loss of Appetite, Frequent Headaches, Sleeplessness, Nausea, Mouth Acidity, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Feeling of Weakness

With "acid indigestion" it stands to reason that the longer it goes, the worse it gets — and the harder it is to alkalize. Therefore, act at the first sign of distress.

If you would relieve and "head off" nausea, "upset stomach," heartburn, gas, the thing to do is alkalize immediately.

Try this quick-acting way: take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets — or two teaspoons of the liquid which have the same alkalizing effect.

Almost at once you feel "acid indigestion" curbed. "Acid headaches," acid breath, pains from acid indigestion — all are given amazingly fast relief. You feel like a different person.

When you're going out carry your alkalizer with you — always in tablets. They taste like peppermint. They cost 25¢ for 30. When you buy insist on Genuine Phillips'.
